CABINET LEADERS RESIGN POSITIONS

Rebels Believed Members of 3d Infantry Regiment of 1st Army Division; 100 Officers Arrested.

TOKYO, Feb. 27.—(Thursday.)—High government military officers, fearful of another riotous outbreak in Japan's military purge, pushed their efforts today to bring the extremist revolt to a close without further bloodshed.

With three of Japan's high officials known to be dead in the rebellious uprising, the military leaders ordered strict enforcement of martial law over the Japanese capital.

Known victims of the guns of the revolting officers were Keisuke Okada, liberal premier; Admiral Viscount Makato Saito, former premier, and at his death lord keeper of the privy seal, and General Jotaro Watanabe, chief of military education.

There were conflicting reports that Korekiyo Takahashi, finance minister, also was killed. Admiral Kantaro Suzuki, lord chamberlain of the imperial court, was reported dying of wounds.

Their course guided by the emperor himself, who was reported to have convoked a council of highest surviving statesmen, the military leaders ordered strict enforcement of martial law over the Japanese capital.

As the city shook off a night's inactivity, cordons of military guards patrolled the vicinity of central police headquarters and kept silent crowds far from the scene of possible conflict.

U. S. KEEPS WATCH ON JAP SITUATION

Saito Assures Washington Coup Will Not Affect Future Relations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The United States government tonight studied closely the swiftly moving events in Japan, intent upon whether events there were possible forerunners of an extension of the Japanese expansionist policy.

American diplomatic officials were chary of public comment. In fact, one of the few positive diplomatic statements of the day was this from Hirosi Saito, ambassador to Washington from the Land of the Rising Sun:

"The situation will affect in no way Japanese relations with the United States."

Joseph C. Grew, the American ambassador to Tokyo, kept the State Department informed by frequent cable, but developments were so rapid, in the wake of the military coup, that few of the informed would attempt to assay the full consequences of the uprising. Speculation in private nevertheless was plentiful.

Expansion of Influence.

Should the aggressive military clique gain ascendancy in the government, students of Far Eastern affairs predicted a stronger and even more forceful extension of Japanese influence on the Asiatic mainland would result.

With border clashes already having occurred between Japanese soldiers and troops of the soviet sponsored state of Mongolia, an enlargement of Nipponese military activities in that area, in the view of some, might precipitate actual hostilities between the island empire and the Moscow government.

If the so-called "liberal" or moderate element gains the upper hand, however, some of the well-informed predicted a more passive expansionist

Dispatches Report Stalin Shot in Head

LONDON, Thursday, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Rumors that Josef Stalin, soviet dictator, has been shot in the head, were rife in Stockholm today, dispatches from the Daily Telegraph's correspondent said.

Speculation arose as to why Professor Olive Crona, eminent brain specialist, was hurrying to Moscow to perform a "big brain operation." The patient was unknown, but the unconfirmed reports said it was Stalin or another high soviet official, wounded in the head.

The surgeon left here Tuesday night by express train for Moscow and later took an airplane, traveling day and night.

GRAND JURY URGES SUIT TO RECOVER PHARR TAX MONEY

Stinging Rebuke Administered Participants in Collection Payment in Resolution by Jurors.

Payment of approximately $22,000 to County Attorney Ralph Pharr by the county commission for collection of back taxes from the Coca-Cola International Corporation received a stinging rebuke yesterday in a resolution adopted by the Fulton grand jury which recommended that immediate suit be brought to recover the sum.

Declaring the grand jury was "unable to bring an indictment in this case because Solicitor-General Boykin advises us he knows of no low justifying criminal indictment," Foreman J. T. Upchurch announced that suit should be filed against the five county commissioners, County Attorney Ralph Pharr, Special Tax Investigator John Armistead and the county auditing firm of Respess & Respess.

Legal advices were to the effect the suit can be brought by any interested citizens in his own name, or that the citizens could mandamus the county commission to bring the suit itself.

Long Session Held.

The grand jury's resolution was announced by the foreman late yesterday afternoon after a long extra session during which Pharr, Judge E. E. Pomeroy, T. K. Glenn, president of the Trust Company of Georgia; Marion Smith, attorney representing the Coca-Cola International Corporation; Tax Assessor Homer Gullatt, Tax Investigator Armistead and several others were questioned regarding the tax collection.

Pharr, it was understood, told the

PROBERS TO FIGHT DELAYS IN TRIAL

Sturdivant To Appear Tonight; Only Legal Excuse To Be Accepted.

Legal technicalities will not be permitted to prevent early trial of Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant, scheduled to begin at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the police station, if members of the committee are able to prevent delays, it was decided last night.

If Sturdivant and his attorneys fail to present a "legal and valid excuse, one which would hold good in a court of law" he will be placed on trial tonight. The decision came during a conference late yesterday between police committee members and City Attorney Jack C. Savage, during which last-minute preparations were made for the prosecution of charges of inefficiency, incompetence and illegal release of liquor cars to Ralph Owens, alleged bootlegger.

George Finch, one of Sturdivant's attorneys, yesterday conferred with Savage relative to a demurrer to the charges filed against the suspended chief, but Savage told Finch he saw no grounds for sustaining the demurrer and would so recommend to the police committee at tonight's session.

Finch Demurs to Charges.

Finch demurred specifically to the liquor car release counts, contending that Sturdivant had complete and discertionary authority in the matter of releases, and further that the inefficiency and incompetence complaints lacked definiteness and are insufficient.

Savage reiterated that the chief's moral fitness to remain at the helm of the Atlanta police department will be in issue under the charges, and that the police committee can find him guilty of reprehensible conduct un-

Cobb Says: Hagood Changed Blanton

By IRVIN S. COBB.

(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 26.—At this moment the question before the house is whether it is more perilous to be a stateman in Japan and give offense to the soldiers or a soldier in America and give offense to the statesmen?

Howsomever, at the risk of being penalized for punning, this innocent bystander ventures the prediction that amongst us there won't be any more of these summary removals for the Hagood of the service, as it were.

Because when something happens off or on a military post to make Tom Blanton, the blood-sweating behemoth of Texas democracy, line up with a lot of republicans—well, I never thought I'd live to see the day. I don't believe Uncle Tom did, either. I'll bet nobody is more surprised than he is.

SEED LOAN VETO STIRS OPPOSITION

Robinson Advises Solons Against Further Effort To Obtain Enactment.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—A threat of a revolt in the senate over President Roosevelt's veto of the $50,000,000 seed loan bill today brought a speech from Majority Leader Robinson advising against efforts toward re-enactment.

The executive declined to sign the measure with an explanation that his financial program had not taken it into consideration, and that congress had failed to provide revenue for the additional drain on the treasury.

On Mr. Roosevelt's assurance, however, that he would order a transfer of work relief funds to aid farmers still in distress from "unforeseen disasters," Robinson, who had hoped for presidential approval, advised against further action.

But the bill's author, Chairman Smith, democrat, South Carolina, of the agriculture committee, said he would insist, nevertheless, on a vote to override because "the need for the money today is as great as it was in the past."

Overrider Unlikely.

Robinson's speech generally was regarded as killing any chances for passage over the veto. The Arkansas senator also expressed hope that federal expenditures and loans for all forms of emergency relief would soon be ended.

Action on the conference report adjusting differences between senate and house on the $500,000,000 soil conservation-subsidy bill was held up until tomorrow to permit printing of the conference agreement.

The house, which today completed general debate on the $161,863,147 supply bill for the agriculture department, will act first on the soil bill. Then the senate will decide whether to accept the conference report. No strong opposition was in sight in either branch.

Funds to defray the half-billion-dollar cost of the subsidy program to replace the AAA will be raised through new taxes. A conference with house leaders on the tax program has been tentatively set for the White House tomorrow night.

Must Levy Taxes.

In his veto seed loan message, the President again admonished congress that appropriations outside budget limitations should be followed by taxes to raise the money.

"No provision was made in the financial program for the fiscal year

FAMILY ARGUMENT ENDS IN SLAYING

Controversy Over Pot of Coffee Precipitates Death Struggle Here.

A family argument, inflamed anew by a controversy over the morning coffee pot, culminated yesterday morning in the death of Albert C. Gray, 39, former utility officer at Veterans' hospital.

The veteran was stabbel to death with a butcher knife by his wife in the kitchen of their home at 898 Rose circle, according to police who investigated the fatality.

The story of the events leading up to the tragedy and the stabbing itself was reconstructed from statements given to police, to the coroner and to reporters by Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Hoyt Lowe, her daughter, and Albert C. Gray Jr., son of the slain man.

Mr. Gray, according to the combined stories, had been in ill humor for some time because his daughter would not draw from the bank some money said to have been saved to invest in a farm. Mrs. Lowe also declared that her father had been at odds with her husband and had objected to his having a cup of coffee each morning.

Mrs. Gray told police her husband came home drunk about 2 o'clock Wednesday morning. The young son said he heard his father and mother arguing during the night. With the family arising early, Mrs. Gray went to the basement to put some coal on the furnace and Mrs. Lowe began making coffee.

Mr. Gray soon got up and came into the kitchen. When he saw his daughter making coffee he became infuriated, she told police, and grabbed the coffee pot from the stove and struck her. She screamed and Mrs. Gray ran up from the basement, where she had been putting coal on the furnace, and joined in the struggle.

They both fell to the floor, the report stated, and while on the floor Mrs. Gray seized the knife and stabbed her husband. She declared that she meant to stab him in the arm only, and did not intend to kill him.

The blade entered Gray's chest just above the heart and penetrated several inches. The man collapsed after the knife thrust and Mrs. Gray called her brother, Dr. Noah Baird, a physician living near by. Dr. Baird formerly was president of the Board of Education.

Mrs. Lowe told Coroner Paul Donehoo that the climax to the family argument grew out of her father's hatred for his son-in-law. She had intended making coffee for her hus-

British Fear Jap-Russian War As Result of Tokyo Military Coup

LONDON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—British officialdom expressed two fears today over possible results of the military coup in Toyko-Japanese war with Russia and a renewed drive against China.

Authoritative observers felt the Japanese military revolt was inspired by three recent developments:

1. Lack of more forceful action by the Japanese government in Manchukuoan-Mongolian border disputes.

2. The sudden unexplained halt of Japanese penetration in North China last November.

3. Dismissal of General Jinzaburo Mazaki, former inspector general of the military education deparament, whose successor, General Jotaro Watanabe, was reported assassinated.

It was believed these events enraged military forces and their anger was further heightened by clashes between the military and civilian elements.

The lack of authentic reports on the Tokyo situation was viewed ominously as fears increased the movement was more widespread than at first indicated.

The most hopeful sign, based on preliminary reports, was the appointment of Fumio Goto, home minister, to the premiership. Officials pointed out that Goto has liberal connections. (A report received through the Japanese embassy indicates that Goto, with his new cabinet, had resigned).

Another hopeful sign, these sources said, was the fact that none of the

FULTON NATIONAL DEFIES GOVERNOR DESPITE THREATS

Demand for $100,000 Is Refused; Other Institutions Agree on Policy; Troopers Flank Daniel.

Flatly refusing his demands for cash and ignoring his threats of reprisal to collect 7 per cent interest on all state funds deposited in the institution, the Fulton National Bank, holding $895,000 of state money, informed Governor Talmadge for itself and in behalf of the other members of the Atlanta Clearing House Association that no money would be paid out until the courts have adjudicated the financial controversy.

The decision of the banks was publicly announced in a letter from Ryburn G. Clay, president of the Fulton National, to the Governor.

The definite refusal to bow to the Governor's demands came when J. B. Daniel, the de facto state treasurer, personally called at the bank and demanded payment of a check for $100,000. The public policy of the bank was made known when the Governor, informed that Daniel's check had been turned down, filed a formal demand with the bank that it turn over all of the state money deposited in it.

Bank Reverses Stand.

Meanwhile at Augusta, the Georgia Railroad and Banking Company, which had previously announced that it would honor checks of the de facto treasurer, reversed its stand and announced that it would not honor checks until the courts had determined who is the legal treasurer. At the capitol, Governor Talmadge said "four or five banks" had agreed to cash checks on Daniel's signature. He declined to name the banks and it could

GEORGIA SITUATION KILLS LEAF PACT

Tobacco Agreement Dies on Talmadge Refusal To Summon Legislators.

By PAUL H. BARKLEY.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—All hope for a 1936 tobacco compact died today with word that Governor Talmadge, of Georgia, was unwilling to call a special legislative session for any purpose.

Spokesmen for North Carolina and South Carolina jumped to their feet to tell a special committee, headed by Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus, of North Carolina, that those two states could not enter a compact for tobacco control without Georgia.

After the turmoil subsided, however, hope was sounded that something could be done for later years.

Legislatures to Vote.

The committee decided that proposed legislation should be submitted to the legislatures of Virginia and South Carolina, which are now in session, with the understanding the plan will not become effective until other leaf-growing states agree.

Under the compact plan, each cooperating state would enact uniform regulatory legislation. The federal government would ratify the agreements and provide protective legislation over interstate tobacco shipments.

The action of the committee in making the proposal contingent upon arrival by other states left 1937, when the legislatures of North Carolina and Georgia meet in regular session, the earliest possible date for adoption of compacts.

Talmadge Spokesman.

Talmadge's spokesman was J. D. Rogers, of Pelham, Ga.

"Georgia growers hold no threat," he said, "but they have not the privilege of coming into this thing through legislative action this year."

Governor Ehringhaus would not say whether he was willing to call a special session in North Carolina.

Rogers' assertion followed a statement by Representative E. E. Cox, of Camilla, Ga., that he was confident

Albert Fall Sinking; Reported Near Death

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 26.—(UP)—Albert P. Fall, who, as secretary of the interior, was chief figure in the Teapot Dome oil scandal during the Harding administration, was near death today. He is 74.

An official bulletin from his physician late today read:

"Mr. Fall is steadily failing in strength. For a long time he has had similar sinking spells, but he has been strengthened. But now his reserve seems exhausted. No complications other than general weakness have developed."

Fall had been suffering from arthritis. Pneumonia developed recently and he did not recover fully.

STATE POSTPONES HIGHWAY LETTING

Cessation of All Work Appears Probable, Due to Financial Situation.

Cessation of all state highway work in Georgia as a result of the state's present financial situation appeared likely yesterday when oil companies definitely agreed to place February's gasoline tax collections, which will approximate $1,300,000, in the hands of the courts and it became more and more apparent that the federal government will not release any more money to Georgia.

Chairman W. E. Wilburn, of the State Highway Board, said during the day that a contract letting which was originally scheduled for March 13 had been postponed. The chairman said that the board hoped to have the letting March 19 but added that he "didn't know about it."

It is understood that among the projects to be contracted for would be the new North Side drive underpass under the tracks of the Southern Railway, a job long sought by the federal government and the Fulton county commission.

To Ask Impounding.

No formal announcement came from the oil companies and none is expected. The February gasoline tax payments are not due until about March 20. Then, according to reliable information from the major company, the representatives of the companies will go into Fulton superior court and ask that the money be impounded until the financial controversy is settled by the courts.

"The oil companies have been advised by their attorneys, the best lawyers available in Georgia, that to pay these gasoline taxes into Mr. G. B. Carreker, Governor Talmadge's de

Other Officials Ready To Split With Governor Over Recognition of De Facto Treasurer and Comptroller General.

TREASURY CHECKS REFUSED BY BANKS

Obstacles Pile in Path of Would-Be Dictator Who Cries "No Extra Session" in Spite of All.

Chaos reigned over Georgia's disrupted financial organization last night. While J. B. Daniel, de facto state treasurer, and G. B. Carreker, de facto comptroller general, named by the Governor to take the place of George B. Hamilton and William B. Harrison, ousted treasurer and comptroller, sat in their offices with little real authority to exercise, Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans added the newest sensational development when he announced he had never given the Governor or anyone else an opinion the state could be legally operated without an appropriation bill.

Banks, state depositories, met Governor Talmadge's demands for money with open defiance, informing him they would not honor his de facto treasurer's signature on state checks until the courts have decided who is rightful treasurer of Georgia.

His efforts to put through a dictatorship brought new and greater obstacles into the path of the harassed Governor as a number of state officials made it known they were ready to announce they could not recognize Talmadge's de facto comptroller general and state treasurer, oil companies revealed they planned to place the gasoline taxes they collect in the hands of the courts for disposal, the postoffice department tied up thousands of dollars of state monies while awaiting an order from Washington as to whom it should be delivered.

Yeomans Urges Session.

In a brief but clear-cut statement from his Decatur home, where he is ill, Judge Yeomans announced he had continuously urged an extra session of the general assembly and that he now urges an extra session to end the turmoil.

The Governor received the Yeomans statement with this retort:

"There ain't going to be an extra session."

Attorney-General Yeomans said the opinion he had given the Governor regarding the payment of funds under a proclamation he issued last week before the ouster of Comptroller General Harrison and State Treasurer Hamilton had been misunderstood, emphasizing he meant it to convey only that these officials, Harrison and Hamilton, could not be held liable under their bonds. He pointed out that if the state institutions and agencies received the money paid out under the proclamation the state could not complain against the officials or their bondsmen.

The attorney-general did not say definitely what recognition he would

VEGETABLE BODY HITS TALMADGE AND LINDER

Laxity in Itinerant Peddler Law Laid to Governor, Farm Bureau Head.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Governor Talmadge, Tom Linder, commissioner of agriculture, and State Representative Guy Jackson were criticized today by speakers at the Georgia Vegetable Growers' Association's convention here for lack of effective truck licensing laws in Georgia.

The growers decided to start at once a movement for regulation and licensing of itinerant peddlers who, they said, brought worthless farm produce into Georgia to compete with quality vegetables grown in this state.

Speakers at the convention said lack of effectiveness of the present truck licensing law was due to alterations making it practically useless, which alterations, they charged, were due to the Governor, the commissioner, and to Jackson, now an employe of the State Department of Agriculture.

The association re-elected R. F. Sams Jr., of Clarkston, as president for two years, and named other officers.

A committee was appointed to make plans for the year's activity. On it were named R. E. McNamara, Savannah; Otis Woodward, Tifton; George Firor, Athens; L. M. Scheffer, Athens, Harry Brown, Athens; A. J. Nietzschke, Savannah, and G. C. Garner, Athens.

Officers elected with Sams were Mr. McNamara, first vice president; D. A. Russell, Atlanta, second vice president; F. W. Schroer, Valdosta, third vice president; H. W. Long, Atlanta, secretary; Freeman Strickland, Atlanta, treasurer.

The association's planning board will select the next meeting place.

Will Uphold Traditions of Historic Societies

Historic Debating Clubs Will Stage Forensic Battle at Athens Today

Representatives of Demosthenian and Phi Kappa Societies, Sponsors of Thousand "Bloodless Battles of Imagination," To Meet at University This Morning.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 26.—(AP)—University of Georgia literary societies, sponsors of a thousand "bloodless battles of the imagination," tomorrow will celebrate their anniversaries with addresses by two Lumpkin law school students.

Edgar I. Lane, of Millen, will represent the 135-year-old Demosthenian Society and Jack J. Flynt, of Griffin, the 116-year-old Phi Kappa Society. The exercises will be in the historic University chapel.

Lane will speak on "The Government Must Show the Way to Real Progress," while Flynt has chosen for his subject, "The Challenge of Our Heritage."

Demosthenian and Phi Kappa have played inmportant parts in student life since the early days of the first chartered state university. Sometimes members spoke under spreading elms.

Demosthenians and Phi Kappans have debated everything. They started with the relative merits of a monarchy and a republic. Later they considered slavery, divorce, science and religion, agrarianism and industrialism, and women.

Strong rivalry has marked every move between the two organizations. Years ago, along no line was it more pronounced than in obtaining honorary members.

It was a Phi Kappa honorary initiate who coined the figure of speech calling the society's debates "bloodless battles of the imagination." Theodore O'Hara, author of the poem "Bivouac of the Dead," wrote it in his letter of acceptance.

Students destined to become distinguished statesmen, jurists, teachers and scientists made their first speech in Demosthenian and Phi Kappa halls.

In Phi Kappa were Joseph Henry Lumpkin, Alexander H. Stephens and, later, Georgia's Governor Talmadge. Demosthenian had Robert Toombs, L. Q. C. Lamar and Joseph Le Conte.

In the 1920's the societies lost favor, continued with but few active members. In recent years, however, their rich, mellow romance and appeal has caught on again.

In the sheriff's race, T. L. Henley, incumbent, had a lead over Pat Coile. J. T. McElroy, in the race for coroner, outdistanced two opponents, the incumbent, C. L. Williams, not being a candidate.

The runover races were necessary because the candidates in today's election did not receive a majority of the votes cast in the recent county-wide primary.

SOLDIERS' HOME HEAD ACCUSED OF FORGERY

Mrs. Mary Goudelock, Superintendent of Institution Indicted.

Mrs. Mary D. Goudelock, superintendent of the Confederate Soldiers' Home, was named in a true bill yesterday by the Fulton grand jury on charges of forging the signature of a Confederate veteran to a pension check for $360.

The grand jury indictment came after similar charges had been dismissed in the municipal court by Judge Ralph McClelland, who stated that the charges against the superintendent were not substantiated by the evidence presented by William Schley Howard, attorney for the veteran, W. F. Lumpkin.

Mrs. Goudelock is specifically charged with signing the mark of Lumpkin to his pension check June 1, 1935, and cashing it at the Trust Company of Georgia.

The superintendent yesterday stated she turned the money over to Lumpkin and that he spent it. She said he was "out of his mind" at times, and her assertion was backed up in municipal court by a physician who testified the aged veteran was "mentally affected" after an illness last year. Lumpkin is 89 years of age.

He declared Mrs. Goudelock had cashed his check and had not turned the money over to him.

The superintendent showed in municipal court a receipt alleged to have been signed by Lumpkin and Mrs. Leila Moore, a former nurse at the home, testified she witnessed the transaction and saw Mrs. Goudelock give the veteran his pension money.

Mrs. Goudelock declared Lumpkin went to the conventions at Amarillo, Texas, and at Adel, Ga., last year and she produced witnesses who testified the veteran spent large sums at both cities. Mrs. Goudelock likewise declared Lumpkin spent "a great deal of money in the stores in the neighborhood of the home."

The home superintendent was shot and seriously wounded several years ago by an insane veteran at the Confederate home. He killed himself after attempting to shoot several others at the institution.

FUTURE IMPORTANCE OF RURAL PRESS SEEN

Dr. H. C. Nixon Says Southern Country Papers Fit in New Social Trend.

That the rural press in the south is destined to occupy an important place in the new social trends, is the belief expressed by Dr. H. C. Nixon in "The South Today," next Sunday in The Constitution.

"The rural newspaper and the rural editor in the south have a future," says Nixon, "for the physical decentralization of industry, made possible by cheap transportation, cheap power, and various mechanical aids, and made necessary by population problems, will give us a balance between industry and agriculture in nearly every community. That balance will be certain to give support to the local press."

Beginning with the early development of rural newspapers by such distinguished editors as Joel Chandler Harris, Bill Arp, Ed Howe and William Allen White, Nixon traces the history and progress of rural journalism to Sherwood Anderson's famous publishing venture in Virginia, and the successful farm papers with hundreds of thousands of circulation.

No one who is familiar with Dr. Nixon's previous contribution to "The South Today" will be surprised by the fascinating manner in which he handles this important subject in The Constitution next Sunday.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest: It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.
Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

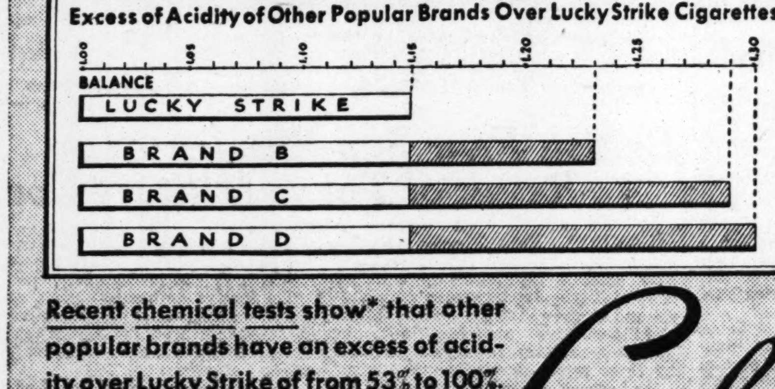
Luckies are less acid



Recent chemical tests show* that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

*RESULTS VERIFIED BY INDEPENDENT CHEMICAL LABORATORIES AND RESEARCH GROUPS . . .

Over a period of years, certain basic advances have been made in the selection and treatment of cigarette tobaccos for Lucky Strike Cigarettes.

They include preliminary analyses of the tobaccos selected; use of center leaves; the higher heat treatment of tobacco ("toasting"); consideration of acid-alkaline balance, with consequent definite improvement in flavor; and controlled uniformity in the finished product.

All these combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.

YEOMANS HOLDS ACTS OF TALMADGE ILLEGAL

give G. B. Carreker, the de facto comptroller general, or J. B. Daniel, the de facto treasurer.

Reason for Statement.

The attorney-general called newspapermen to his home to issue the statement. He said he had decided to put it out because of a statement attributed to the Governor, made in a press conference, in which the chief executive was quoted as saying he was proceeding in accordance with the views of the state department of law.

The Yeomans statement follows in full:

> The scope and effect of my opinion to the Governor on the liability of the comptroller general, the state treasurer and their bondsmen have been misunderstood, according to statements appearing in the daily press of Tuesday as having been made at the Governor's press conference on Monday.
> The opinion was based entirely on the fact that their bonds are made payable to the state; that no one can complain but the state and that if the state and its institutions receive the money, there could be no recoverable liability. This is sound law and sound common sense. This principle has been approved many times by our supreme court.
> The opinion has reference only to the liability of the comptroller general, the state treasurer and their bondsmen and goes no further. It was not intended to go any further nor cover any other subject.
> I have never advised anyone that the financial affairs of the state could be operated legally and constitutionally without an appropriation act. On the contrary, I have on several occasions advised and urged that the general assembly be called into session for the purpose of passing a general appropriation act.
> A session of the general assembly now would relieve the tension, doubt and uncertainty and the state would function normaly.

Outside the Law.

Capitol observers said the statement of Judge Yeomans revealed conclusively that Governor Talmadge is outside the law in his action in removing Comptroller Harrison and Treasurer Hamilton and appointing Carreker and Daniel in their places.

"By his own past actions and his own statements the Governor cannot go into court and defend his action in the face of Judge Yeomans' statement," one observer said. "The Governor always has contended the state department of law has the final word on legal matter pertaining to the business of the state. The Yeomans statement shows beyond a doubt that the department of law does not concur in the legality of the Governor's action."

Meanwhile there were reports that groups of members of the general assembly, both of the house and senate, were discussing the possibility of an impeachment session.

Impeachment Discussed.

Senator W. W. Larsen Jr., of Dublin, said he knew such discussions were taking place. He insisted, however, he was not participating in them. Senator Larsen, an independent during the regular session of the assembly, is a son of former Congressman W. W. Larsen, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for governor to succeed Talmadge.

In Atlanta, Representative Paul L. Lindsay, of DeKalb county, arch foe of the Governor, said he was contemplating presenting articles of impeachment to Speaker E. D. Rivers, of the house, and President Charles D. Redwine, of the senate. Rivers is considered a political foe of the Governor while Redwine still is considered friendly to the Talmadge administration.

The law provides the general assembly cannot convene itself but those discussing impeachment proceedings against the Governor yesterday cited the case of the impeachment of Governor Sulzer, of New York, about 20 years ago. In that case the general assembly convened itself and impeached Governor Sulzer of high crimes and misdemeanors. Governor Sulzer took the case into the courts and the courts held the constitution of the state had granted the general assembly judicial powers over the Governor and no one could challenge its right to exercise that power, regardless of whether or not it had been called into session or convened of its own volition.

Treasury Closed.

Although De Facto Treasurer Daniel was on the job throughout the day the treasury remained closed yesterday.

Mrs. Albert S. Hill, secretary to the state board of control, announced she had received a check for $139,000 from Daniel but as far as could be learned she made no effort to cash it. The check was in response to the requisition which Harrison and Hamilton had refused to honor and which directly brought about their removal. It was given her by Daniel after the requisition had been countersigned by Carreker.

Mrs. Hill declined to say on what bank the check was drawn. Neither would she say if she had attempted to cash it. Chairman E. E. Lindsay, of the board of control, refused to discuss the subject.

Meanwhile employes of the Department of Agriculture who have not yet been paid for the first half of the month still were without their salaries and it could not be learned when Commissioner Tom Linder would make an effort to get them their money.

Daniel would not discuss his situation. He received some $540,000 in checks Tuesday but whether or not he had opened an account in any bank could not be learned. It is understood the banks will not permit him to open an account as state treasurer, although they have made no formal announcement in this connection. As far as could be learned he received no additional money yesterday.

Postmaster Livingston decided to check his situation to Washington authorities, when Carreker and Daniel protested his action in delivering all mail addressed to George B. Hamilton, state treasurer, and William B. Harrison, comptroller general or mail addressed to the state treasurer and the comptroller general to Hamilton and Harrison and delivering only that mail to Carreker and Daniel as is directly addressed to them.

The postmaster said he had submitted a full report on the situation to Washington authorities and would await orders.

Meanwhile Harrison and Hamilton continued their plans for going into court to protect their offices. Both said they were being delayed in taking action because of the voluminous mail and the large number of telegrams they have received indorsing the stand they have taken in the controversy.

SENATOR CHAPPELL SUGGESTS LEGISLATIVE CONFERENCE

AMERICUS, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Senator Allen Chappell, of the thirteenth district, tonight issued a call to Georgia legislators suggesting a conference to consider the state's situation under Governor Talmadge's financial "dictatorship."

In a message broadcast tonight, Senator Chappell asked members of the senate and house to indicate "immediately by letter or wire whether you are willing to meet at your own expense at some time and place to be named in event a sufficient number are willing to assemble to justify the meeting."

The purpose of the assembly, he said would be to "consider any matter affecting the welfare, security and progress of the state."

"It appears," Chappell said, "that because of the financial status of the state, the grant of $320,000 to the University System, allotments to the Highway Department for roads and all PWA allotments to the state as well as loans to farmers are in great danger of being withdrawn by the federal government.

"I therefore conceive it to be our duty to the state to counsel to the end that the welfare of the state may be protected and preserved."

GOVERNOR DENIES LATE BOND SIGNING

Surety Company Qualified First With Carreker, Says Talmadge Statement.

Governor Talmadge yesterday issued the following statement:

"The statement of The Atlanta Constitution that the Western Casualty & Surety Company signed the bond of J. B. Daniel as state treasurer several hours before they qualified, is incorrect.

"The bonding company, on the advice of their attorney, Leonard Haas, of Atlanta, posted the bonds and filed the amended statement of their assets with the comptroller general before they signed the bond of the state treasurer.

"Immediately, when they signed the bond of state treasurer, after J. B. Daniel took the oath of office, Mr. Carreker, comptroller general, delivered to J. B. Daniel as state treasurer the $25,000 in government bonds, after they had been approved by me as governor of Georgia."

Southern Governors at Leaf Pact Talks

SITUATION IN GEORGIA KILLS LEAF PACT HOPES

Talmadge would not call a special legislative session "to consider proposed tobacco compact legislation or any other legislation."

Rogers' suggestion that Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina go ahead with compact plans with Georgia growers participating in 1936 on voluntary basis aroused spokesmen for the Carolinas.

Representatives Allard H. Gasque, of Florence, S. C., and Harold D. Cooley, of Nashville, N. C., flatly asserted they would not ask growers of their state to join in a compact not including Georgia.

"Ten-Cent Tobacco."

Meanwhile, the committee was warned by J. B. Hutson, farm administration tobacco chief, that unless the states did something to regulate tobacco production, extremely low prices would prevail.

He mentioned 10 cents a pound, and added that if this prediction were true growers would demand that something be done.

Hutson also said $640,000,000 pound flue cured leaf crop was the maximum amount that could be profitably produced this year.

TALMADGE JUBILANT AT PACT BREAKDOWN

Governor Talmadge last night met the news that Georgia non-participation had precluded the forming of the tobacco compact at Washington, with a unqualified pronouncement of "Great going That's the best news I've heard in a long time."

The chief executive asked if J. D. Rogers, of Pelham, his spokesman at the conference, "stood pat" on the issue. When Rogers' statement to the meeting was read over the phone to him, the Governor exclaimed:

"Glory to Rogers. That's the way to tell them. Georgia will keep this pact from being formed in 1936 and we'll have another President in 1937 and won't be bothered with any such foolishness."

COMMITTEE TO FIGHT CHIEF'S TRIAL DELAY

becoming a superior officer and discharge, suspend or demote him in their own discretion.

Acting Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby and Virgil H. Whitley and George G. Caldwell, who served as assistant station lieutenants, will be principal witnesses against Sturdivant, and it is on their testimony, which conflicts materially with Sturdivant's version, that the committee had considered amending the accusations against Sturdivant by adding one of perjury.

Conditions to Be Cited.

Bug operations, vice and crime conditions will play an important part in the trial, it was indicated yesterday when it was learned that two crack city detectives have been assigned to running down evidence for the past several days, and that they probably will be called upon to testify.

In addition to summoning every superior officer of the police department, several surprise witnesses will be called, according to reports. Police committee members yesterday declined to allow publication of the witness list, and information seekers were referred to Lieutenant R. P. Burnett, who has been investigating police department records since Sturdivant and his first assistant, A. Lamar Poole, in charge of detectives, were suspended under charges.

There were unconfirmed reports that at least 60 witnesses will be called by the prosecution to bolster the charges which have been filed against the chief.

Among them will be members of city council, former police committee members, citizens, members of the police department and persons who have had dealings with Sturdivant's office.

Samuel D. Hewlett, another of Sturdivant's legal staff, will not be at the hearing tonight. He is in Miami, where he is engaged in the trial of a case, but his absence need not cause postponement of the trial, police committee members hold.

WILBURN POSTPONES LETTING OF CONTRACTS

facto comptroller general, they would be making themselves liable to a second collection" a spokesman said yesterday. "The companies feel by having the courts impound the collections they are taking the only course which appears safe to them."

In Washington the official order withholding further highway funds from Georgia, which has approximately $13,000,000 to its credit, was awaiting the return to his desk of Thomas H. McDonald, director of the federal Bureau of Public Roads. Mr. MacDonald is ill but other high officials of the bureau have strongly indicated that his course has been determined on and that Georgia will get no more federal road money for the time being.

To Lose PWA Funds.

It was made clear in Washington yesterday that while no other state was likely to get any portion of those funds earmarked for Georgia there was a grave possibility, if not a probability, that the delay brought about by conditions in Georgia might cause the state to lose some of the fund. The road money is PWA money and almost every day PWA projects are being cancelled because the states, cities and counties interested in them have not acted fast enough to warrant their being maintained on the PWA program.

There was no additional word from the national capital yesterday on the PWA grant of $360,000 to the board of regents of the University System for building purposes, which also was reported in jeopardy.

The attitude of government officials in Washington is that they do not know who is the official and legal treasurer of Georgia and under the law all federal checks sent into the state for PWA funds are sent to the state treasurer. Previous funds have come to George B. Hamilton, state treasurer, and it appears doubtful if the government will recognize Governor Talmadge's de facto regime.

The statement of the Highway Board chairman yesterday about the postponement of the contract letting was taken to indicate that he hopes the situation will be clarified in a week. Under the law projects to be contracted for must be advertised two weeks in advance and if the letting is to be held March 19 the projects must be advertised in the county newspapers not later than next Thursday.

FLOOR 'DENTIST' FILLS CAVITIES IN TERRAZO

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—(UP)—Playing "dentist" to the largest expanse of terrazo flooring under any roof in the world Benato Nunzi's full-time job—and Benato plays it on his knees, eight hours a day, every working day.

The 54-year-old Italian has been mending this type of floors ever since he came to this country in 1907. Now he spends all his time filling crevices in the 248,000 square feet of terrazo in the Merchandise Mart's more than four miles of corridors, the largest stretch of terrazo in the world.

A trowel, a hammer, a chisel and a sack of the special kind of Italian broken stones that distinguishes terrazo, constitute his equipment.

City Attorney Loses Dog, Threatening Trial Delay

Scheduled trial of Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant tonight was threatened late yesterday, and all because Jack C. Savage, dog fancier de luxe, who serves incidentally as city attorney, lost a prize package from his valuable kennels.

"How can they expect a man to work when his best dog and one of the smarest and highest bred canines in this part of the country is lost?" Savage's plaintive voice asked in an urgent appeal for help. "Just help me find her. I'll pay any reasonable reward."

The dog in question is a six-month-old wire haired fox terrier bitch. She has a black and white body and a tan head. Some time yesterday she dug beneath the kennel fence and has not been heard from since. Savage asked that any information be relayed to his home, 1627 Barclay place.

People suffer the effects of winter more — when their general resistance is low

Many people dread common winter ills at this time of year. And they have reason to be concerned about them.

Scientific studies show these winter conditions follow a regular cycle. They are not so prevalent early in the season, but they reach a peak during mid-winter. February is one of the worst months for them.

This is explained partly by the fact that many people have low general resistance after a hard winter. They are more susceptible to winter ills and need something to help them in building up good general resistance!

ADEX TABLETS and CAPSULES
SQUIBB

Adex often proves an important aid. One reason is because of the high Vitamin A content—6,600 units in every capsule. Vitamin A, more than any other vitamin, helps to build up general resistance! Adex also furnishes Vitamin D obtained from sunshine in summer, but often needed from another source at this season. And both vitamins come from natural sources only, fish liver oils known for their richness in these vitamins.

People who start with Adex now should keep it up regularly. At any good drug store. E. R. Squibb & Sons, manufacturing chemists since 1858.

FULTON NATIONAL BANK REFUSE FUND RELEASE

not be learned to which institutions he was referring.

Daniel went to the Fulton National Bank shortly before noon to present his check. It was for $100,000 and made out to cash. The de facto treasurer was with two national guardsmen, not in uniform. Bank officials had knowledge that he was on the way.

Mr. Clay was in conference with William B. Crowley and G. C. Evans, cashier of the bank, when the treasurer entered. Daniel went to Evans' desk, whence proceeded the vice president and the cashier.

Daniel presented the check and Crowley formally notified him that the bank could not honor it. He attempted to return it to the de facto treasurer but Daniel declined to take it back. After some discussion Crowley laid the check on Daniel's lap and returned to his own desk. Daniel lingered a few minutes and then returned to the capitol.

Mobley Dispatched.

The de facto treasurer did not see Clay at the bank but when he reported what had happened the Governor addressed his demand for withdrawal of all of the state's funds on deposit in the institution and dispatched his executive secretary, Carlton Mobley, to Clay's office. The banker dictated an immediate reply and it was sent to the Governor.

In his demand for the entire amount, Governor Talmadge cited a code section which he said gave him authority to take charge of the funds and placed Mobley in control of them.

Clay's Letter.

The views of the banks, expressed through Clay, were made known to the Governor in this letter:

"Hon. Eugene Talmadge, Governor,
"State of Georgia,
"Atlanta, Georgia.

"My dear Governor:

"We have your letter of this date with regard to the state funds deposited with this bank.

"The problem of state deposits in the present situation has been a subject of long and anxious discussion by the clearing house banks of Atlanta and their counsel. It is the desire of all the clearing house banks to return these funds to the state in any manner that will afford a definite protection in doing so. The difficulty arises out of the fact that it is the unanimous opinion of the counsel of all the clearing house banks that they cannot feel entirely safe in surrendering these funds on demand of Mr. Daniel or under the code section you refer to, until there has been some judicial determination of the present status.

"Therefore it has been determined by the clearing house banks that, until the matter is clarified they cannot comply with such demands. Our decision, of course, is to follow the determination made by the clearing house and its counsel.

"I note you refer to the fact that the regular counsel for this bank, Mr. Marion Smith, is, also, advising Mr. George Hamilton. At the clearing house meeting Mr. Smith called attention to this fact and suggested that he withdraw. He was asked to remain and did so, but made it perfectly clear that this bank would follow the decision of the clearing house as a whole, each of the other banks being advised by their own cunsel.

"It was also the decision of the clearing house to say to you that they would co-operate in every possible way in expediting an early determination of the question as the counsel for the banks and your counsel could obtain.

"We have no desire whatever to withhold any funds. We have an absolute duty to our depositors and to our stockholders not to surrender funds where all of the counsel consulted agree that so much doubt exists as to create a peril of having to pay again.

"With my highest regards, I am
"Sincerely,
"RYBURN G. CLAY,
"President."

Governor's Demand.

The letter of the Governor, demanding release of the $895,000, follows:

"Mr. Ryburn Clay, President,
"Fulton National Bank,
"Atlanta, Ga.

"My dear Ryburn:

"Code Section 100-103 (1251) provides that the Governor shall make contracts with the different banks for interest on deposits of state funds.

"You have in the Fulton National Bank approximately $895,199.69 deposited by the state treasurer.

"The legal rate of interest in Georgia is 7 per cent without contract or as much as 8 per cent by contract.

"If your bank wishes to hold these funds of the state of Georgia interest will be assessed from this date at 7 per cent per annum.

"I am forwarding the state treasurer, Mr. J. B. Daniel, a copy of this order, and am requesting him to collect interest at 7 per cent per annum on the deposits of the state in the Fulton National Bank of Atlanta, from date.

"Mr. J. B. Daniel is the legally-appointed treasurer of the state of Georgia. He has given bond as required by law and has taken the oath of office an dis now performing the duties of the state treasurer.

"In the event counsel for your bank, who is also counsel for George B. Hamilton, advises you not to accept checks from J. B. Daniel as state treasurer, I respectfully call your attention to Section 40-305 (159) of the Code of Georgia. This section reads as follows:

"'The Governor shall have power to engage the services of any competent person for the discharge of any duty required by the laws, and essential to the interests of the state, or necessary, in an emergency, to preserve the property of funds of the state.'

"Under the authority in this section, I hereby appoint and designate Carlton Mobley to act under the authority of this section to receive from your bank all funds of the state of Georgia, if you do not wish to continue to hold the funds of the state of Georgia and pay 7 per cent interest from date.

"Mr. Mobley's receipt will be ample protection for your bank.

"Sincerely yours,
"EUGENE TALMADE,
"Governor."

$3,000,000 On Deposit.

State Treasurer Hamilton had approximately $3,000,000 on deposit over the state in the name of George B. Hamilton, state treasurer, when he was evicted from office Monday.

In addition to the $895,000 on depoist in the Fulton National there is approximately $600,000 in the First National Bank here and another $400,000 at the Citizens & Southern National Bank. The balance is scattered in small amounts over the state.

Whether or not the Governor will attempt to get money out of any other bank, in view of what happened yesterday, could not be learned last night. His next move remained a secret.

2 Rescued From Boat.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 26. (AP)—H. L. Williams, winter visitor from Roanoke, Va., and his nurse, Mrs. Elinor Browne, were rescued by a local coast guard seaplane after being marooned all night in a small cabin cruiser on the Gulf of Mexico about 12 miles offshore. The boat's motor was disabled.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR ALBERT C. RITCHIE

BALTIMORE, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The body of the man who guided the state of Maryland for 15 years from the governor's chair was buried here today beside the bodies of his mother and father.

As funeral services were started for former Governor Albert C. Ritchie, the chimes of Christ Protestant Episcopal church rang out with 'Maryland, My Maryland." As the body left the church, the chimes again sounded the song of the state which Ritchie served for so long.

Before the services, moer than 31,000 persons had filed past the bier of the former Governor. Every available seat in the church was occupied during the brief and simple service, hundreds of persons stood along the walls and in the rear of the building and thousands lined the streets along which the procession passed to the cemetery.

TROOPS AND WARSHIPS SUMMONED TO TOKYO

stations sped to strategic ports to enforce public safety measures.

Daylight brought no direct contact between the insurgents and the government troops although military officers declared a "showdown" possible and expressed their fear of more bloodshed in the rebellious uprising which has already cost the lives of three of Japan's high officials.

First reports of actual rioting in the military insurgence described the siege of the police headquarters by a considerable force of infantry which moved on the building at dawn Wednesday under cover of a swirling snowstorm.

Police Chief Kazuo Oguri was believed to have been killed at first, but later was reported to have fled from the building and set up temporary headquarters in another section of the city.

Police guards patrolled the grounds of the imperial palace where, the Domei (Japanese) News Agency reported, a solemn council of venerable statesmen and government officials was in session in an attempt to solve the government crisis.

The first attempt to form a new cabinet after the assassination of Premier Okada ended in failure when Home Minister Fumio Goto, designated the new acting premier, handed resignations for himself and his ministers to Emperor Hirohito.

Chuji Machida, hitherto minister of commerce, was made acting minister of finance in the place of Takahashi.

Streets Are Cleared.

Although Takahashi was declared officially to be alive he was persistently reported dead and morning newspapers published his obituary together with those of Okada and other well-known dead officials.

The Domei (Japanese) News Agency said Takahashi died yesterday.

(The Reuters (Brpitish) News Agency said authorities were negotiating with the mutineers in an attempt to persuade them to return to their commands. This dispatch added it was considered unlikely that force would be used, except as a last resort.)

In the capital thousands of citizens worked to clear the streets of the heavy snowfall as the police patrols diverted traffic from the main highways and many residents moved to and from their occupations by regular means of transportation.

Curious, well-behaved crowds shuffled the icy pavements pressing close to the principal scenes of yesterday's putsch. A far-flung cordon of guards kept them moving and military authorities declared their intention of preventing any neutral citizens from entering the conflict zones.

Military authorities said the headquarters of the Tokyo garrison, which is co-operating with the government, had declared a state of emergency as a precaution to maintain peace and order. Later an imperial ordinance, signed by the emperor and countersigned by all members of the Goto cabinet, spread martial law over the entire city district.

Dispatches to the newspaper Hochi from Shizuoka said that the venerable Prince Saionji early yesterday fled by automobile from the villa Okitsu near Shizuoka and went into hiding at the residence of the chief of police after taking a circuitous route to avoid an attack.

Countess Saito Wounded.

The guns of the military insurgents took the lives of Premier Keisuke Okada; Admiral Viscount Makoto Saito, former premier and at his death lord keeper of the privy seal, and General Jotaro Watanabe, chief of military education.

(The Reuters (British) News Agency reported from London that Countess Saito, wife of the assassinated former premier and lord keeper of the privy seal, was wounded herself on the hands in an attempt to defend her husband from an attack by the revolting troops.)

(A British news agency said that 3,000 of the rebellious troops held the police headquarters against government troops and that an imperial guard of 12,000 men and marines had been sent to the navy building and other centers after a manifesto of defiance was issued by the rebel forces.)

Present at the council session in the imperial palace, in the presence of the emperor himself were Prince Hiroyasu Fushimi, chief of the navy general staff; Yoshiyuki Kawashima, minister of war; Count Keigo Kayoura, former premier, and Kurahei Yuasa, minister of the imperial household.

In addition were four members of the cabinet of the late Premier Okada including Mineo Osumi, minister of the navy; Count Hideo Kodama, overseas affairs minister; Keisuke Mochizuki, minister of communications, and Takuchi Kawasaki, minister of education.

Bank of Japan Reopens.

The Bank of Japan and other large financial institutions which were closed yesterday reopened today. The stock exchanges at Tokyo and Osaka remained closed.

Financial leaders expressed confidence Japan's exchange control law would prevent a flight of capital or drastic recession of the yen.

An official communique stated that "various troops available in Tokyo have been ordered to guard the capital."

This announcement said the purpose of the uprising was set forth in a manifesto issued by its leaders which, the communique stated, declared:

"At this important time, when the nation is facing an emergency, a group of senior statesmen around the throne, plutocrats, and certain military elements, bureaucrats and political parties have been sapping the lifeblood of the country. Our purpose is to remove these men and establish the great principle of correct rule to protect the country."

Experienced diplomatic observers stressed that the issues were almost entirely domestic. They said leaders of the movement were motivated by a desire to remove statesmen whom they considered obstacles to a "militarist Utopia," in which an army dictatorship under the emperor would sweep away capitalists, politicians, bureaucrats and liberals influenced by foreign ideas.

(Riichi Takahashi, son of the finance minister, said in New York he was informed by cable his father was dead.

(Reports in Japanese newspapers abroad—which were not confirmable—said some 80 persons had been slain in all, including many during street fighting between loyal police and the insurgents.)

Several of the ministers' bodyguards and servants were reported slain.

Secluded in Homes.

Other members of the cabinet, including Koki Hirota, foreign minister, escaped injury. They remained secluded in their homes on advice of army leaders.

An automobile tour of Tokyo disclosed conditions were quiet. Most lights were out and traffic was suspended in several central districts. Virtually all theaters and restaurants were closed.

Lieutenant General Kohei Kashii, commander of the Tokyo garrison, broadcast this official statement last night:

"Orders to establish an emergency guard over conditions in Tokyo have been issued to the first division.

"By command of the emperor, I have ordered mobilization of a portion of my troops at important points, the purpose of which is to maintain order in the capital and to protect important objects.

"I hope both officials and the people will avoid spreading wild rumors and will co-operate in the maintenance of peace."

The first and second fleets, called to duty in Tokyo and Osaka bays to guard the ports, comprise the strongest units of the navy.

The military uprising began before 5 a. m. and apparently was completed before the city awoke.

The conspirators went to seven different points, surrounded the homes of their prospective victims, called them out into the snow and shot them. Okada was slain at his official residence.

The war office announced the insurgent officers believed those assassinated had attempted to destroy national polity and were "corrupt elements around the throne."

The government, the conspirators said they believed, was being weakened by financial factions and bureaucrats during a critical time and they wanted to fulfill their duties to the throne by protecting the national polity.

They had accused Premier Okada of not strongly supporting the military program in Asia.

100 Officers Arrested.

(The Japanese embassy in Moscow reported that 100 younger officers accused of the "purge" had been arrested and imprisoned.)

Trading on the Tokyo stock exchange was suspended. (Foreign Secretary Eden told the British house of common that the Bank of Japan had suspended business.)

The insurgents also attacked the office of the newspaper Asahi, a war office communique disclosed, and the country villa of Count Nobuaki Makino, former lord keeper of the privy seal.

He was understood to have escaped unhurt, although the war office said his fate was unknown.

"At 5 a. m. a party of young officers staged a coup," said the communique.

"They attacked government leaders and the following residences: First, the residence of Prime Minister Admiral Okada, who was immediately killed; second, the private residence of the lord privy seal, Admiral Viscount Saito, who was immediately killed; thirdly, the residence of inspector general of military education, General Watanabke, who was killed; fourthly, the Itoya villa at Atami (a seaside resort), where Count Makino was staying. The fate of Count Makino is not known.

"Fifthly, the official residence of the grand chamberlain, Admiral Suzuki, who was seriously injured; sixthly, the private residence of Finance Minister Takahashi, who was injured; seventhly, the premises of the newspaper Asahi."

"All Is Peaceful."

A government-approved statement broadcast over the national radio system said:

"According to information from provincial cities, all is peaceful in Tokyo; troops, gendarmes and police are co-operating in the maintenance of order."

The officers involved in the uprising were described as those of the same patriotic type who carried out a coup in May, 1932, in which Premier Inukai was assassinated. Enlisted men participated but government sources claimed a majority of these were ignorant of the purposes of the plot and merely followed blindly the commands of their officers.

Although the three victims were two retired admirals and one general on the active army list, all were considered comparative liberals and hence opponents of fascist militarists seeking a military dictatorship. General Watanabe had incurred the fascists' enmity because he displaced their favorite, General Jinzaburo Mazaki as inspector general of military education.

Military Coup Forces Resignation of Jap Cabinet

advisers to the court were attacked. Observers said this led them to hope there was still a chance for the politicians to weather the storm and retain control.

Should the reverse be true, however, the officials fear the drive on five North China provinces may be renewed suddenly to be followed by military preperations in Manchoukuo as soon as the weather permits.

An immediate clash with the soviets was not expected inasmuch as it was felt the military forces will need time to consolidate their position and prepare for action.

Authoritative sources in London declared they expected the final casualty list to include prominent industrialists and capitalists because of the belief the young army officers are unfavorable to them in the same manner in which they dislike the politicians.

JAP OFFICIAL SAYS COUP NOT "REVOLUTIONAY"

SHANGHAI, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Effects of the Tokyo revolt reached Japanese naval circles in China today when Vice Admiral Koshiro Oikawa, commanding the Japanese third fleet stationed in China waters, issued special instructions to the fleet personnel.

The nature of the orders was not disclosed.

Officials of the Chinese national government were represented as fearful that the events in the empire might result in a more "realistic" Japanese policy toward this country.

A spokesman for the Japanese embassy said although the Tokyo situation was "serious," it was "not of a revolutionary nature."

"There is no danger of the movement spreading," he added. "The revolt cannot affect Japan's national stability."

LEAGUE OFFICIALS FEAR JAP-RUSSIAN CONSEQUENCES

GENEVA, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Japanese businessmen in Europe, it was learned tonight, have received instructions to do everything possible to prevent a panic in Japanese securities.

As Japanese agents in large European cities carried on business as usual, apprehension was expressed in League of Nations circles that the Tokyo military coup might result in an additional strain in diplomatic relations between Russia and Japan.

Well-informed Japanese, viewing the situation from meager reports, interpreted the Tokyo revolt as an effort to preserve the emperor as the all-powerful pivot of Japanese national life. The uprising, these sources declared, could be considered in defiance of the attempted encroachment of parliamentary acts on the prerogative of the mikado.

They further saw the move as a means to uphold the supremacy of the emperor as a descendant of the sun goddess, Amaterasu Omikami.

In addition, some Japanese quarters declared the uprising could be held in the light of an attempt to improve the condition of distressed Japanese farmers, from which class a majority of the soldiers come.

"It would be a mistake," one Japanese official said, "to think this coup d'etat means a change in Japan's foreign policy.

"It should be noted the foreign ministry and the foreign minister were not attacked. The affair really may be explained as an internal dispute."

"This is a movement to get rid of elder statesmen who are suspected of misleading the mikado," another Japanese declared.

RUSSIA IS SILENT ON JAP DEVELOPMENTS

MOSCOW, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The effect the Japanese revolt may have on the delicate far eastern situation was the chief subject of discussion tonight in Moscow, but information from Tokyo was too vague to permit definite predictions.

Although the foreign office said direct communications had been re-established, official reports were still far from complete and consequently authoritative comment was withheld.

The effect of the uprising on Russo-Japanese relations could be very important, foreign observers believed, if the younger militarists have gained influence.

It was pointed out that assassinations have removed three senior statesmen who stood in the way of a more aggressive military policy.

"We are maintaining our customary policy of not interfering actively or passively in the affairs of other countries," said a spokesman for the soviet foreign office.

Foreign observers, however, said they believed the attempted coup would have important repercussions in the far eastern situation.

The Japanese embassy here reported it was advised that 100 young officers accused of responsibility for the assassinations had been arrested and imprisoned. The advices to the embassy were signed by Koki Hirota, foreign minister.

FRANCE VIEWS COUP WITH APPREHENSION

PARIS, Feb. 26.—(AP)—French officials viewed with particular apprehension today the Tokyo military coup because of the threat a successful military uprising holds against soviet Russia. The focal point of the French fears was the Franch-soviet mutual assistance pact now being debated in the chamber of deputies. Under the treaty, France and Russia agree to assist each other only to the western soviet frontier and the eastern French border.

Despite this limitation, war which would concentrate soviet attention in the far east might impair the workability of the pact so far as France is concerned in Europe.

GERMANY EAGERLY VIEWS JAP SITUATION

BERLIN, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Official Berlin, an eye on soviet Russia and France, eagerly followed events in Japan tonight with the hope, unofficially expressed, that the assassination of three Japanese statesmen might react against French signature to the projected Russo-French mutual assistance pact.

In certain government circles it was argued that Paris might see in an agreement with the U. S. S. R., hitherto regarded as added protection against German aggression, a threat of war in view of the delicate relations between Moscow and Tokyo.

Official comment, however, was not forthcoming from the third reich, enjoying perhaps closer relations with Japan than any other continental European country, pending a clarification of the Japanese situation.

policy to be folowed with regard to China.

On Capitol Hill, many spokesmen on foreign affairs preferred to await more stable conditions before voicing predictions. One of those who spoke out, Chairman Nye, republican, North Dakota, of the senate munitions committee, came forward with a forecast that the revolt was "the beginning of the end of the Japanese military."

"It was not difficult last fall over there to discern the public displeasure at the dominance of the military," Nye commented. "There was prophesy then of what the election result would be.

"The military was badly beaten three days ago and yesterday's coup will be hardly considered by the Japanese people as anything other than the military retaliation. In any event there is a better demonstration than ever before of the displeasure within Japan toward the military dictatorship."

SUIT FOR PHARR FEE URGED BY GRAND JURY

jurors he effected the settlement of the back tax claims against the corporation for $150,000 last December after he had been given a contract by the county board which provided a 20 per cent commission of all money collected by him in the matter.

He was paid $21,304, of which he stated he kept half and divided the other half equally between Armistead, who has a contract with the tax assessors to receive 10 per cent of all back tax settlements, and James L. Respess, county auditor, with whom the county attorney said he had an agreement to do auditing work on the tax claim.

Longino Comments.

The recommendation of the grand jury drew immediate comment from Commissioner George F. Longino, leader of the minority faction, who stated he and Commissioner J. A. Ragsdale had signed the contract with Pharr "as the result of fraud and misrepresentation" as to the amount of work the tax collection would require.

The resolution of the jury, signed by Foreman Upchurch, follows:

"The grand jury has carefully and exhaustively investigated the circumstances surrounding the payment of approximately $22,000 to Ralph Pharr, county attorney, for the collection of taxes from the Coca-Cola International Corporation.

"We condemn the practices of the county commission in voting the extra fees to the county attorney, who is paid a salary of $5,400 per year for services to be rendered.

Suit Recommended.

"We are unable to bring an indictment in this case for the reason that Solicitor-General Boykin advises us he knows of no law justifying criminal indictment in the premises, but we recommend that suit immediately be brought against the five county commissioners, Mr. Ralph Pharr, Mr. John Armistead and Respess & Respess for the recovery of this amount as being exhorbitant and excessive for the services rendered."

The grand jury decided Tuesday to investigate the Pharr fee after a four-hour session devoted to discussion of the legal aspects of the case.

Dr. Charles R. Adams, chairman of the county board, and Commissioner Longino were questioned by the jurors last week and it was understood Adams defended the contract as being a valid one and that Longino attacked it and told the jurymen he had demanded already that Pharr return the fee to the county treasurer.

"Signed Reluctantly."

"Commissioner Ragsdale and I signed the contract reluctantly only after it had been represented to us Pharr would have to sue this company in another state and would have to employ additional counsel," Longino said yesterday.

"They made Ragsdale and myself think it would take several years to collect the taxes but as a matter of fact the Coca-Cola International Corporation paid the county $150,000 within 11 days after that contract was signed and Pharr never left Fulton county.

"As soon as Ragsdale and I realized how the wool had been pulled over our eyes, we called it to the attention of the people," Longino stated.

The minority members of the commission demanded Pharr return the fee, which the county attorney refused to do. The matter was then referred to a three-judge tribunal but the Fulton superior court judges would not adjudicate the case nor have anything to do with it.

Agreement Decided.

It was understood Glenn, the Trust Company of Georgia president, told the grand jurors he had acted as a representative of the Coca-Cola International Corporation and described the agreement whereby the corporation paid the back taxes just before it was undomesticated as a Georgia corporation.

Judge Pomeroy, who signed the order allowing the corporation to dissolve its Georgia domestic charter, was questioned for nearly an hour by the jurors.

It was reported Tax Assessor Homer Gullatt told the jurymen he did 90 per cent of the work of collecting the tax claim, having been engaged on the job nearly a year. He was understood to have said he did not know of the Pharr contract until the claim was settled.

Regular Contract.

Armistead has a contract with the board of tax assessors to work up back tax claims on intangibles and he receives 10 per cent of the amount collected. It was reported he told the jurors yesterday the amount paid him by Pharr was only half his regular fee.

Pharr, armed with a mass of papers, was before the jury nearly two hours. He had no statement to make when he came out of the jury room.

Commissioner Edwin F. Johnson, leader of the majority faction, who stated several weeks ago that he himself effected the settlement of the tax claim for which Pharr received $21,304, was reported ill at his home yesterday and was not questioned by the grand jury.

ATLANTA TAX COMMITTEE REFUSES $150,000 OFFER

Atlanta's tax committee yesterday refused to accept $150,000 proffered by Coca-Cola International Corporation for 1931 municipal taxes, taking the position that the company if subject to taxation at all is liable for about $200,000.

Councilman Aubrey Milam, chairman of the finance committee of council and a member of the tax committee, urged acceptance to prevent an additional shortage of $150,000 in municipal finances for the year. The 1936 finance sheet anticipates the $150,000 fund and if it is not collected during the year the municipality will be faced with a real financial crisis.

Milam yesterday had under consideration a move to take the matter directly to the floor of city conncil at Monday's meeting and urge council to accept it. He will contend that Atlanta banks now consider the city finance sheet at least $350,000 out of balance and that any addition to that sum will precipitate an immediate and insurmountable fiscal problem.

Key To Be Consulted.

Milan announced yesterday he will confer with Mayor Key when the chief executive returns to his desk, probably today, about the discrepency in 1936 financial figures of the city. It is expected that the mayor will seek conferences with bankers, who are now considering a request from the municipality for additional credit extensions.

If Atlanta should accept the $150,000 from Coca-Cola International, it would have to pay $15,000, or 10 per cent, to John Armistead, tax investigator. The committee yesterday terminated an agreement with O. M. Fuller, another investigator, and voted to allow Armistead until May 1 to complete his check of 1934 records and then end the contract it has with him.

Council will be asked to cancel about $225,000 in fi. fas. issued against alleged tax defaulters in previous years because they are not collectable in the opinion of the committee. It has been decided that the old records should be cleared up and not carried over as assets when in reality that represent nothing of value.

Prisoner Hangs Self.

FRANKLIN, La., Feb. 26.—(AP)—A youth who said he was James McCade, 17, from Maine, hanged himself yesterday in the parish jail here. Sheriff Charles Pecot said the death was a suicide. His body was found by jail officers hanging from an overhead pipe by knotted leather straps. McCade was arrested Sunday night on a charge of breaking and entering.

STOMACH PAINS VANISH AS LADY TAKES INDO-VIN

Awful Indigestion Attacks Are Suffered by Georgia Woman for Years; Indo-Vin Gives Relief from Start; No Pains Now.

Nearly everyone suffers frequent or occasional attacks of pain from indigestion, gas, etc. Stomach ills of hundreds of Atlanta sufferers have been conquered by the new, scientific combination of natural herb extracts and medicines, known as Indo-Vin, introduced here by the Jacobs Drug Store, 77-9 Auburn Ave.

You can get some idea of the effectiveness of this medicine by reading this signed statement from Mrs. Hoke Henry, 1446 Piedmont Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

Food Turned Sour.

"My stomach was always upset. I was simply FULL of gas after my meals, and so tight and stuffy with gas in my chest that I could hardly breathe. This gas even had its effect on my heart, and the least little thing would exhaust me and take my breath away. My liver was sluggish, and this caused my complexion to turn a sallow, unhealthy color. I tried a lot of medicine and expensive treatments, but got NO RELIEF, until I got Indo-Vin, and three bottles of it have changed me entirely. It cleared the gas and bloating from my stomach organs and stopped that stuffy feeling in my chest and around my heart. I never get exhausted nor have that trouble with shortness of breath any more. My complexion is healthy-looking now. I have some real color in my face, and even my eyes are brighter. I am GLAD to endorse this medicine, for it deserves anybody's praise."

What Indo-Vin Does.

Indo-Vin is nationally recommended by leading druggists, and contains a combination of ingredients found in no other formula. These ingredients mix with the food in one's stomach; often acts in 10 minutes to stop gas pains, sourness and bloating. It will cleanse your bowels (gradually—not drastic or severe) and tone them into better daily action.

It will make the digestive organs sweet and clean, relieving headaches, biliousness, dizzy spells or lazy, drowsy, worn-out feelings; also helps avoid accumulations of impurities in the blood stream and kidneys.

It will make your STOMACH, LIVER and BOWELS more active, build you up in general, and make you LOOK, ACT and FEEL like a different man or woman.

If you suffer from stomach or bowels, ask for INDO-VIN at the Jacobs Drug Store, 77-9 Auburn Ave., Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

After the war he practiced law in New Orleans, and later went to France to continue his law studies for four years. During this time he was made an attache at the American legation in Paris.

Returning from Paris, he taught military science in a number of southern academies and once headed schools at Milledgeville, Thomasville and Marietta. He also taught in the old Marietta Female Academy here, and later at Shorter College in Rome. He retired 17 years ago to the historic old home place here.

ANOTHER BRAVE OFFICIAL BALKS AT LAW DEFIANCE

With his head figuratively on the block and ready for the ax to fall, as has been the fate of every state official who has differed with the Governor, Attorney-General Yeomans yesterday issued a statement that, to say the least of it, manifests his courage.

Whether or not his head will go to the basket along with those of others now there, remains to be seen.

In his statement the attorney-general disclaims any responsibility for the illegal attempt being made to operate the state government without an appropriation act, and again throws the spotlight on the extent of law defiance to which the Governor is willing to go in his inordinate desire to set up a dictatorship, giving him unlimited authority and making puppets of the elective officers of the state.

As Attorney-General Yeomans points out, the Governor has sought to make it appear that in his wild and uncontrolled course he is following the counsel of the attorney-general.

This effort at deception is spiked by the attorney-general in the unequivocal statement that he has rendered no opinion except as to the liability of the comptroller general, the state treasurer and their bondsmen.

He specifically states that "I have never advised anyone that the financial affairs of the state could be operated legally and constitutionally without an appropriation act."

More than that, the attorney-general announces that he has "on several occasions advised and urged that the general assembly be called into session for the purpose of passing a general appropriation act," urging that this now be done, saying "a session of the general assembly now would relieve the tension, doubt and uncertainty and the state would function normally."

Despite this advice of the attorney-general, the Governor defiantly states there will be no call for an extra session.

No wonder that Attorney-General Yeomans, a man of irreproachable integrity and with a long and honorable record of public service, repudiates the effort to use him as a cat's-paw in denial of the right of the people to name their public officials, and to nullify the constitutional functions of government.

The ability of the attorney-general is attested by the fact that during his three years of service he has not lost a single major case.

It is a matter of common knowledge that he has frequently advised the Governor for the past several months that an effort to operate the state government without an appropriation act would be illegal, unconstitutional and fraught with danger.

So here is official declaration that the Governor is deliberately and wilfully flaunting the constitution and the law.

The constitution provides:

The legislative, judicial and executive powers shall forever remain separate and distinct and no person discharging the duties of one shall at the same time exercise the functions of either of the other, except as herein provided.

Nowhere in the constitution is there to be found the slightest authority to warrant the Governor's attempt to seize the rights of the legislative branch of the government.

The attorney-general has promptly and courageously set the record straight, regardless of the fact that it may mean that he has placed his official head on the block.

If it falls, the people will pick it up next September!

In view of the Governor's apparent determination to defy the general assembly, the only alternative now seems to be an appeal to the courts. It is probable that the unprecedented condition of the state government will find its way into court within the next 24 hours.

It is to be hoped that this will be done. The state cannot afford to continue in the present condition of uncertainty and chaos.

THE JAPANESE REVOLT

The slaying of Premier Okada and two other high officials of the Japanese government, and the wounding of several others, as the result of a coup engineered by a group of army officers, emphasizes the weakness of the Japanese constitution in excluding the military from the authority of the civil government.

While the army and navy are represented by members in the cabinet, they are amenable only to the throne direct. The result has been that time and again the carefully worked-out plans of the government for the increase of friendly relations with other nations have been suddenly overthrown by the army and navy taking matters in their own hands and attacking nations with which new ties of friendship were actually in the making.

It has brought about a cocksureness on the part of military officials that has frequently brought recourse to violence, and the assassination of high officials whose policies of peace were objectionable to the militarists.

Premier Okada has been regarded as one of the grand old men of Japan. Although formerly an admiral, he had been in practical retirement from public life for many years when called by the emperor in 1934 to form a cabinet. Despite his service in the navy, his foreign policies have been decidedly conciliatory and he has striven to hold the militarists in check.

While the details of the plot that threw Tokyo into confusion are still somewhat meager, its origin, in the last analysis, undoubtedly lies in the unsound and dangerous constitutional clause that makes the military faction feel it can get away with anything it attempts, despite and in defiance of the civil branch of the government.

Against this weakness of the Japanese constitution is pitted an unusual governmental strength in the exalted position occupied by the emperor. Held as a divine guardian of the nation's affairs, there is never any question of an attack upon the throne, however violent may be the eruptions against the active leaders of the government.

Although widespread fears are being expressed that the downfall of the Okada cabinet may bring a more antagonistic attitude on the part of Japan toward China and Russia, the normal trend would be for the pendulum to swing the other way in rebuke to the violence of Wednesday. Especially is this so since the Okada policies received such a strong vote of indorsement in the recent parliamentary elections.

World's Window

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur.

That was a most thoughtful and appropriate act on the part of the government of the French republic: the elevation of Clark Howell to the dignity of Knight of the Legion of Honor. The Constitution newspaper under Mr. Howell's direction has been and continues to be a generous interpreter of the French view of world affairs, that is to say it proceeds along broad lines of international tolerance with a respect for treaties and an attachment to the principles of Woodrow Wilson. There is no conflict there with the fundamental interests of the American people. That The Constitution defends these inetrests, and these first and foremost, goes without saying. From the days of the Civil War, this journal has, without flagging and often in the teeth of prejudice and opposition, fought for reconciliation at home and abroad. Rapprochement of the various elements of the community, reconciliation between one-time enemies at home and across the ocean, the fostering of a sense of belonging together both in the national and in the international field, has been the aim and object of the paper's policy.

The Constitution had radiated good will and a broad cosmopolitanism, where a cheap and narrow-minded parochialism would almost certainly have been more profitable. Principles prevailed over personal considerations. The reward will be a better America, a nobler people, a happier Georgia. So long as The Constitution stands it will be a bulwark against division and chaos, strife and partisan hatred. It fights battles, this paper does, but it fights them with a gentlemanly respect of human dignity. In this, it reflects the spirit of its publisher, who knows that the future of America does not lie in any hard and fast doctrine, or unalterable dogmas of social conduct, but in a gradual, slow, evolution, which holds pace with the changing needs and requirements.

This spirit has found appreciation in high quarters, not only in Washington, but also in Paris. No honor was more deserved than Mr. Howell's knighthood.

Japan-American Peace Movement.

The first news of President Roosevelt's proposal to call an all-American peace conference has been received in Europe and in the near east, where I sojourn at the present moment, with mixed feelings of hope and amazement. To my way of thinking it is a terrible warning to Europe. It is as if Mr. Roosevelt would say, and in this respect he certainly speaks the mind of the whole American nation: "You Europeans may continue your intrigue and counter-intrigue and your senseless preparations for a new armed struggle, know ye that America does not join in that medley of hatred and rivalry." Mr. Roosevelt is fighting for peace. There are many who doubt that America can stay out of an eventual world conflict, that does not take away the fact that the fundamental desire of the American people is against war. If the President can bring the Latin-American republics and Canada into line, he will certainly have created a formidable bloc against the warmongers and the cannon merchants, who alone profit from war. It is good to hear, away over here, in the seething east, that there is one people which has the moral courage to say "No" to all this haphazard dangerous jockeying for position in a new conflagration. Mr. Roosevelt acted in complete accord with American tradition, which remains the hope of all men of good will throughout the world.

Hitler Gets A Protest.

Chancellor Hitler, of the reich, has made a colossal blunder—once more—in saying that the Nordic race, he means Germany, is destined by Providence to rule over lesser breeds. The Japanese government, through its ambassador in Berlin, promptly protested against this allegation and in India crowds demonstrated before the German consulates against this foolish pronouncement of the fuhrer. Perhaps Herr Hitler thought he would please Britain and France with that statement, give them a sort of seal of approval on their colonial empires. But he also blew his own gaff. The "lesser breeds" which Germany intends to conquer may look at what happened to the Jews in Germany and calculate what is in store for them if the Prussian militarists are victorious in this world.

Good Morning

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

NEIGHBORS OF NIPPON.

Mr. Y. Sato, Japanese consulate at New Orleans, sends me the November, 1935, issue of "Present-day Nippon," a magnificent industrial and commercial journal of 182 pages with a cover design of rare artistic effect, revealing their fine work as engravers and printers. Mr. Sato expresses appreciation of something I had recently written on the basis of world peace, being an interpretation of the remarkable address of Mr. Toyhiko Kagawa at the Atlanta Biltmore on January 6, 1936, in which address Mr. Kagawa declared that 99 per cent of the people of Japan are friendly toward the United States, and earnestly desire to see a closer relationship between the two nations.

I have read with interest an address by Mr. Renzo Sawada, consul general of Japan, in New York, and chairman of the American-Japanese Trade Council Session, held in Houston, November 19, 1935, in which he points out the fact that since 1931 our exports to Japan have steadily increased at the rate of more than a hundred million yen a year. In 1934 Japan bought 1,748,000 bales of cotton from the United States, more than Great Britain, France and Germany combined, according to Robert L. O'Brien, chairman of the American Tariff Commission.

That Japan is the determining factor in the orient today and indefinitely, no thoughtful person would debate for a moment. Shall we be neighbors of Nippon, or enemies of Nippon? That is the question. Ten million of their young people can read and speak English. They require eight hours of English per week in their public schools. They are reading our newspapers, our magazines, our books. They know what we are thinking and saying. I believe we can be real neighbors, joining hands and hearts in the common tasks of the world order.

Mr. Kagawa voiced the conviction of many of us when he said in his Atlanta address: "The ideal of a peaceful Pacific, and abiding friendliness between the United States and Japan, as between all nations, can be realized only as we follow the teachings of the Lord Jesus Christ as set forth in the sermon on the mount." Let us work and pray for such a basis of relationship with our neighbors of Nippon.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

BUSINESS ADVICE WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Politicos have been flailing the air increasingly with confusing business predictions. Some leaders of the outs are emphasizing more and more that inflation is imminent. The ins have now countered (see Postmaster-General Farley's Kansas speech) with the idea that prosperity is here.

A far more trustworthy line on things can be obtained from sound economists and business people whose confidential views are not acquired for political effect. The wisest ones hereabouts generally have the following carefully measured viewpoint:

The outlook for some months ahead is impressively good, but . . . it contains too many elements of artificiality and instability to warrant the definite conclusion that what we have now is a natural recovery of the self-sustaining cumulative variety.

DIRECTION In balancing up the prospects of the many obvious things that might happen, the odds now seem to favor expanding business, backed with more than ample credit facilities, which will become an increasingly active factor as the process goes on.

The broad direction of this movement is toward a highly expansionary plane, with prices tending upward, but only moderately upward for a considerable period of time yet.

Just how far these processes will go toward anything that might legitimately be called inflation, or what kind of inflation may eventuate, cannot now be told with any reasonable degree of certainty.

PUSH It is like the snowball which is moving and is also being pushed. The ball has weak spots and may change direction. But the direction in which it is now going indicates it will continue to enlarge itself moderately for some months yet. It is headed for a big drift of credit, which may swell it tremendously some time in the not near future.

CONSENT No bravery medals are being claimed by the house appropriations committee for burying President Roosevelt's old shelter belt idea. It was rather generally understood inside the committee that the White House would consent to the burial without any great fuss.

In fact, the hearings disclosed some very interesting testimony. It is extremely unusual for a government official to hint that he can get along without appropriations for his own department, but the forestry officials did. They pointed out that they avoided "getting too entangled in this project without the approval of congress." Also that they "developed the project so we could fold our tents and move out" if congress did not approve.

The invitation to congress was subtle but effective.

Note—The shelter belt was to have been 1,000 miles long and 100 miles wide and planted with 3,000,000,000 (count them) trees. The expenditure to date is about $1,000,000 for planting 22,000 acres. The other $14,000,000 originally allocated to the project was held up by the comptroller general.

RETRACTION A liberal leader within the New Deal told his comrades after the Parker power decision that it was a shame they had not let Circuit Judge Parker go on the supreme court some years ago in that famous fight. Now, after having received a copy of the Parker opinion, the liberal is not pressing his compliment.

The fact seems to be that the New Deal legal authorities are somewhat doubtful that what they won from the decision is more than they lost. They are letting their original cheers stand publicly, but privately are consulting their law books.

This is in accord with the new technique of both sides on the power issue. Both generally assert that they won, which is a fairly good indication that the matter has not been decided yet.

REPUTATION The simplest definition of government credit was given off the record the other day by an official in a position to know. He said: "The matter is as delicate and devastating as the reputation of a man. If a citizen is known to be a gambler or has the reputation of a spendthrift, he is apt to find his banker increasingly meticulous about lending him money. But a man with a reputation for care and caution can borrow far more on less collateral."

ZEAL Two young New Deal lawyers were arguing, where they thought they would not be overheard, that there is no future in the New Deal any more. They argued that the plodding was probably not worth the salary involved.

Less obvious symptoms have been noticed among far more prominent liberals near the seats of power. Another mourned: "If Roosevelt is re-elected, it will be so close that the government will not be able to do much anyway."

Note—Capable SEC Chief James Landis, whose organization is designed to limit gambling, took a wild flyer in fish a few days back. While angling with Ex-SEC Chairman Kennedy in Florida, they bet $1 on the largest fish to be caught, one on the smallest, and one on the first and last. Landis won $4. He caught the only.

SILHOUETTES

BY RALPH T. JONES.

The sweetest thing in life, my dear,
Is the dream I dream of you,
When night is dark and still and clear
And wraiths pass in review.

You are the loveliest of all,
Beauty's rarest queen—
You hold my very soul in thrall—
You, whom I've never seen!

Beneath Her Dignity.

She was black as night and a cook to rave about. She knew her gifts and had a proper pride in those abilities. A most worthy woman.

Her mistress persuaded her to attend a night class for adults, thinking she would appreciate a chance to make up for some of the classroom education she had missed as a child.

But the cook came to work the next day, after her first class, and announced she was through "schoolin'."

Asked why, she said it was "plumb foolish."

"That teacher, older'n me she was, too, talks the silliest of any ooman I ever heeard," she explained.

"Tells me to stand up befo that crowd o' men an' women and read "The little birdie had one egg in the nest—the little birdie had two eggs in the nest—the little birdie had three eggs in the nest—"

"Shucks. I ain't goin' ter mak a fool like that outer myself befo' all that crowd. No, mam!"

Speaking Of Beggars—

Valued member of this news staff used to work in Chicago. And, commenting on the ideas anent begging that have been expressed here, he told of his experience while a reporter in the midwest metropolis.

There was a handsome young beggar with a broken hip who sat, crippled, at an important corner in Chicago's Loop district. He reaped a harvest of coins in his tin cup, especially from women, and never had to plead with any one. Just his appearance and manner was sufficient to start the stream of nickels and dimes and quarters and to keep it coming.

One night the reporter happened to be on a street car and this beggar, with much difficulty, hoisted himself on board, evidently on the way home after the day's begging. The reporter and the beggar both left the car at the same corner and the newspaper man saw the cripple hitch himself into a small, fourth rate hotel.

Later, his business in the district concluded, the reporter was again passing the hotel and saw the erstwhile beggar, tall and straight and as physically sound as any of us, leave the hotel attired in tuxedo, top hat, with gloves, silk muffler and all.

Investigation Followed.

Curious, the reporter launched an investigation. It was revealed the beggar had the ability to throw his hip out of joint, and back again, at will. All day he sat and begged. At night he went to the little hotel and changed his personality into the handsome, straight and well-to-do habitue of the night clubs, theaters and more expensive places of amusement. He lived in an elaborate suite in one of Chicago's finest hotels and used the little hideout joint only for the transition from one character to the other.

And he was paying for it all out of the coins that dropped daily into his tin cup.

Of course, I don't know that there are any comparable cases in Atlanta, but the story, absolutely true, provides food for thought, doesn't it?

Coining A Word.

My friend Aubrey Milam writes questioning use, in this column, of the word "liver" as an adverb. He says its a noun, evidently referring to that well-known organ of our internal anatomy. And he thinks I should have used the word "livelier."

Maybe, Mr. Milam. But I don't try, in this column, to be grammatically meticulous. Write, rather, just as I think and as I'd talk. And I'll confess I do use the word "liver" as an adverb, in conversation, have done, all my life.

And in my interpretation there is a shade of difference in meaning between "liver" and "livelier." The former, I should say, expresses the idea that the subject is, in greater degree, more alive, has a deeper spark of life, feels life more deeply. While "livelier," in my private dictionary, means a more active expression of life.

Thus a dance may be livelier than another, while Tom may seem to me, by his thought, his conversation, his mental attitude, to be liver than Bill.

Of course, this is a strictly personal interpretation and merely explains what I mean when, in the course of this daily chatter, I say "lye-ver." Not "livver."

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

The brightest and most talented.

Important announcement of February 27, 1911, in The Constitution:

"The brightest and most talented people in the Players' Club, will present "Trelawney of the Wells" at the Grand tonight. The cast includes Mrs. Akers, Mr. Lamar Hill, Judge Broyles, Mr. Douglas, Miss Rawson, Mrs. Felder, Mrs. Owens, Mr. Ninniger, Mr. Ashby Hill, Mr. Symington, Mr. Cox, Mrs. Lawson, Mr. Stearnes, Mr. Donaldson, Mrs. Slaton, Miss Disosway, Mr. Smith, Mrs. Barnes, Mr. Sauls, Mr. Matthewson and Miss Fumade."

And Fifty Years Ago.

And the phonograph, motion picture, radio, automobile and airplane were yet to come.

Page One of The Constitution of February 27, 1886, had a story that began like this:

"Thos. A. Edison, the great inventor, the man who chains lightning, bottles it, carries it in his pockets, tosses it about as he pleases, is in the city.

"He and his bride are at the Kimball en route to Florida."

You'll get much enjoyment out of "Silhouettes in Rhyme," little volume of verse by Ralph T. Jones. It can be secured, either by mail or in person, from "Silhouettes," care of The Constitution. Price 25 cents.

Milk, of Course.

The dear old soul watched the gaily clad cowboy dexterously swinging his lasso in the grounds of the circus.

"What a long rope," she said at last. "What do you use it for?"

"Waal, lady," he replied, "when I'm out west on the ranch, I use it for catching cows."

"Catching cows?" she echoed. "How very interesting. Tell me, what bait do you use?"

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Americans At Olympics. PRAGUE, Feb. 26. It was a good thing, after all, that the American team came over to the nazi winter Olympic games, because the show served two very useful purposes.

It prevented, for the time being at least, a brutal raid on the German Jews and perhaps even scattered massacres by Hitler's brown shirts in reprisal for the assassination of Herr Gustloff, the nazi organizer in Switzerland, who was shot a short time before the athletes assembled in Garmisch-Partenkirchen.

It also vindicated the contention of thsoe who opposed American participation that the nazis could not be trusted to refrain from political and military propaganda.

But for the presence of the players and a couple of hundred foreign journalists in Garmisch the nazis undoubtedly would have swooped down on the Jews to avenge the killing of their organizer. Hitler had delivered an oration at the bier of the dead conspirator, in which he charged not only this killing but 40,000 others to Jewish terrorists and in ordinary circumstances the order undoubtedly would have been given to take a terrible revenge.

But Hitler found himself on the spot, for he had taken elaborate measures to pretend for the benefit of the visitors that the plight of the Jew was exaggerated. He had taken down thousands of vigorous signs which had hung in public places, such as the railroad stations and postoffices and had ordered the removal of anti-semitic posters from billboards, restaurants and stores for many miles around.

Thus the visiting athletes and the tourist reporters saw no outward evidence of the campaign of persecution unless they happened to come upon chance copies of the Sturmer, the official anti-semitic publication. The nazis tried to keep the Sturmer out of sight, but a few copies were smuggled into town to be exhibited to incredulous citizens of other nations, including the United States.

Incident Wasted. In view of the nazis' insistent claim that Jews had not been molested in the course of the slow massacre it would have been bad propaganda to turn loose the brown shirts to club and kick Jews wherever found in reprisal for the death of Gustloff, so a tempting incident was wasted and Hitler's oratory at the grave, of course, was not audible in gay and distant Garmisch, where the yodelers howled in the beer parlors by night and the apple-cheeked killers of the storm troops went about in civilian clothes, pretending to be jovial Bavarian villagers.

Not many of the athletes were reading newspapers during the games, so few of them saw Hitler's ambiguous tribute to the intelligence of the German race delivered at the tomb of the dead spy. In this remarkable oration Der Fuehrer led off with the customary exaltation of German character but wound up saying that in 40,000 other assassinations of German patriots the Jews had always contrived to persuade misguided Germans to do the dirty work.

It seemed a fine acknowledgment of the superior mentality of the Jews and a rather melancholy estimate of the patriotic character and brains of the members of the race of supermen.

The Sturmer reappeared after the foreigners had left town and was plastered on the walls of the government office in Munich a few days later. It is a lively publication, with a monopoly on pornography in the nazi state which was started as the private racket of Julius Streicher and brought him more than $800,000 in marks when he sold it to the nazi party a short while ago.

Compensation To Streicher. The party apparently intends to let the paper die before the summer Olympics take place and the purchase price to Streicher was merely compensation for the abolition of his racket. Ordinarily when Hitler wants to cancel a paper he just cancels it without compensation, but Streicher has been "one of the boys" and there is no denying that he brought to his task as editor and publisher a remarkably ripe taste in sex copy.

With the summer Olympics still to come it may be found convenient to hold a massacre in honor of Herr Gustloff and the Jews in Germany may yet admit that the ancient tournament served a humane purpose.

The political and military character of the nazi Olympics thoroughly obscured the sporting significance on three days, and the flags of other nations were seldom seem at any time amid the thousands of swastikas, as the moving pictures should prove if they are shown unedited in the United States.

Three times Hitler converted the show into a political gala day, and those Americans who were punched and pushed around by the aptly named black guards will assert that the spirit of fraternity through sport emerged from the party with contusions, abrasions and probable internal injuries.

Woman Socked. I would like to offer the affivadit of the wife of an American who got a back-hand punch on the nose from a black guard while trying to penetrate the military spectacle in order to reach the sport, but the lady prefers to say nothing for publication because her husband works in Germany at present and might be kicked out or locked up. If he were locked up it might take our scholarly ambassador, Mr. Dodd, three months to get his nose out of his book and ask the nazis to name the charges.

In view of the bold perversion of the games at Garmisch, however, there may be renewed opposition to participation in the summer games in Berlin. But the nazis were entirely blameworthy, for they simply do not know what the Olympic spirit is and decency is foreign to their nature.

If the summer games must be held, that, of course, will be no disaster, for it will give the nazis an opportunity to prove on a greater and noisier scale that they can't be honest and don't know the meaning of sportsmanship as civilized nations understand it.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

If you know a man's circumstances and environment, you can guess his convictions.

Vanity prompts the belief that we are free moral agents blessed with an unshackled will and guided by reason. But we are helpless tools of our beliefs, and we automatically believe the thing that butters our parsnips.

If the ordinary man's opinions were developed by a careful study of the evidence and the free exercise of unbiased reason, they would deserve respect. But he swallows the predigested opinions that are set before him by circumstance, and no matter how nicely they are garnished with fine sentiments and moral platitudes, the meat always has the simple meaning: "I believe in my own interests."

An orator can make it sound noble, but wolves fighting over their kill have precisely the same conviction.

If a democratic president makes a speech in support of heaven, home and mother, you know in advance that every democratic statesman interviewed on the subject will declare it a masterful exposition of the truth, while every republican statesman will call it nonsense or dangerous policy. They are not insincere. They are merely victims of their own interests, helplessly believing whatever their jobs require them to believe.

A southern aristocrat, having migrated to the wild west of other days, offered his services as mayor. During the campaign he slapped backs and praised the sturdy common man. He meant it, too. But when he was defeated, despite this unbending, he hired a hack to parade the town with a banner reading: "To hades with the common people. The poor man stinks."

Is a bonus or pension a righteous thing? Those who will get it or somehow profit by it sincerely believe it noble and necessary. Those who must pay the bill think it an invention of the devil.

The conservative is one who has something to conserve; the radical one who has nothing to lose by experiment or change.

We scold land-grabbing nations, for we have grabbed Panama and much of Mexico and now have all we need; but if we were situated as the overpopulated nations are, their policy would be our policy.

There is no sense in scolding the cat for catching songbirds. Give it enough meat and it will co-operate in saving our wild life.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

Woman 50 pounds overweight had tried many times to reduce, but had felt so let down and weak after a few days of restricted diet that she invariably broke training and gorged right back to her maximum weight. Then she took an optimal vitamin ration for a month, supplementing her regular diet, and once more attempted the reduction regimen, this time continuing the vitamin ration as a supplement to the reduction diet. She found she was able to stick to the regimen this time, and lost two or three pounds a week without difficulty. When she had reduced some 30 pounds she reported: "I find I can do all my housework without getting so extremely fatigued as I did before . . . to my sister's delight I no longer demand large quantities of coffee every day, which I formerly needed as a stimulant . . . for the first time in many years I not only do my daily keep-fit exercises but I enjoy them. . . ."

What has happened to this woman? I'll give you my own notion. Take it or leave it. For many years she has been trying to get along on nourishment which lacked something. What, a fairly well-to-do family subsisting on inadequate food? Yes, millions do, because up to now we knew no better. This woman had long suffered, whether she or her doctor recognized it or not, from moderate vitamin shortage. Ordinarily she would worry along, grunting and complaining more or less, but still alive and able to drag her weight about. But when she tried to follow a reduction diet, she cut her vitamin deficit or almost a total deprivation, and consequently the symptoms of avitaminosis began to manifest themselves more insistently and, of course, defeated the reduction scheme. After all, anyone who seeks to reduce must achieve the purpose in just one way—by eating less, burning more, or both.

I do not base this explanation on the incident mentioned, but on some thousands of similar cases observed, not by myself, but by good physicians throughout the country. How else account for the maintenance of good vitality on the same reduction regimen, if not from the building up of a moderate reserve of vitamins in the body?

Since the optimal vitamin ration referred to is itself good food, each teaspoonful representing 30 to 40 calories, it may seem strange at first that a person can reduce more successfully by supplementing his reduction diet with it, but experience has proved this in so many instances that there can no longer be any question about it.

In fact I think a fair test of any reduction regimen is whether one following it feels better or worse. If you do not feel better, with improved vitality, greater ambition to work and play, then your regimen is probably not suitable. If your health is not distinctly better when you have begun to reduce, your diet or other measures are not suitable.

In the booklet "Design for Dwindling" (copy for 10 cents coin and stamped, addressed envelope), I have outlined in sufficient detail the whole business of reduction, always with better health and vitality as the main consideration.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ganglion.

I really have no doctor. About a year ago I strained my wrist driving steel posts on my farm. The arm became numb for the time. Later a lump came on the wrist below the thumb, size of a hazlenut. It is painful at times. Local doctor calls it ruptured tendon. He advised operation, then told me to paint it with iodine. (B. C. C.)

Answer—So now you have no doctor, eh? The advice sounds good to me. The ganglion or "weeping sinew" may disappear without operation, but often it is necessary to remove the sac, through a small incision made under local anesthetic. In any case you should really have a doctor even if you think he doesn't know as much as you think you do.

Talmudic Tales

BY DAVID MORANTZ.

Number 260.

(Based upon the legends and philosophy found in the Talmud, which work contains the civil and canonical laws and traditions of the Jewish people, dating back as far as 3,000 years.)

THE REWARD OF GOOD DEEDS.

There was once a very poor man in Palestine who was known for his kindness and good deeds.

One day while he was working in the fields, Elijah came to him disguised as an Arab.

"It is destined unto you to have seven very happy and prosperous years," he said. "Do you wish them now or in your old age."

"Before I decide," replied the man, "I should like to speak to my wife. Tomorrow I shall give you my answer."

The man counselled with his wife that night and the next day when Elijah returned, he said, "It is our wish that we have the seven good years now." Upon returning home from his work that night, his wife hastened breathlessly to meet him with tears of happiness in her eyes.

"My good husband," she exclaimed, "the children, while digging in our yard, found a great treasure. Good fortune has indeed come to us."

That evening, while discussing the happy change of affairs that had come to them, they laid plans for the seven years of prosperity that were to be theirs.

"Let us make good use of these seven years," said the husband. "Now that we have the means, let us help the poor and do as much good as we possibly can."

So they spent the seven years in doing good deeds, helping the needy, bringing happiness to those less fortunate and giving aid wherever needed.

When the seven years were up, Elijah appeared again.

"I have come," he said, "to take back that which I gave you seven years ago." To which the man replied:

"During the last seven years my good wife and I have used this wealth to bring happiness to others and in doing so have found great happiness ourselves. If you know of anyone who will make better use of this wealth, which you placed in our care, I shall be glad to give it back to you."

"You have indeed put this wealth to good use," said Elijah, "and as a reward you may keep it always."

Due to the extensive interest in Talmudic Tales, 128 of the legends and over 500 pearls of wisdom have been collected in an attractive book of 195 pages, handsomely bound inn grained blue vellum cloth, with gold stamped title. Autographed by author. Suitable for gifts or prizes. Price $1.50, postpaid. Address orders to "Talmudic Tales," care The Atlanta Constitution.

Sewing Machine.

John J. Greenough was granted the first United States patent on sewing machines in 1842. His machine had to be threaded in short lengths, as in hand sewing. First patent obtained by Elias Howe, who usually is credited with invention of the sewing machine, was issued four years later. Both men were 50 years behind Thomas Saint, Englishman, who built a machine for sewing shoes.

Just Reversed!

A farmer who was a witness in a hog stealing case seemed to be stretching a point or two in favor of the accused.

"Do you know the nature of an oath?" the prosecuting attorney roared.

"Sure."

"Do you now you are not to bear false witness against your neighbor?"

"I'm not bearin' false witness again him. I'm bearin' false witness for him."

OFF THE RECORD - By Ed Reed

"On second thought, I'd better get Dad a tie for his birthday."

ALEX HOWELL GRANTED TRIAL POSTPONEMENT

Crowded Calendar in Federal Court Causes Decision To Delay Case.

A crowded calendar for the spring term of the United States district court, which opens March 9, has won an indefinite delay for Alex S. Howell, brother of Hugh Howell, chairman of the state democratic executive committee, in his trial on charges of falsifying WPA records and using WPA workers to broadcast private political propaganda.

The delay was granted yesterday by Lawrence S. Camp, United States attorney, who announced:

"A large number of cases of longer standing than the two indictments against Alex S. Howell are set on the current calendar and those cases will occupy probably the entire available time of the court for this term. It is improbable that we shall be able to reach the Howell cases before the court moves to Newnan.

Would Avoid Expenses.

"It is desirable to avoid the expense incident to the preparation and trial of the Howell cases until it is apparent that there is a possibility of their being reached on the calendar on which they are assigned. The cases will be removed for reassignment."

"Reassignment" is a vague term in federal court circles, but it is believed that the Howell cases will be entered on the calendar for the fall term of court.

The Howell trial had been scheduled on the March term calendar for March 20. Court opens March 9 and lasts four weeks, but Mr. Camp's office is making an intensive drive during the March term to dispose of all old cases that have collected. Mr. Camp hopes that by the end of the term the slate will have been wiped clean of cases that have been delayed for various reasons. It was because of these efforts that he agreed to delay yesterday, after a conference with Hugh Howell, attorney for his brother.

Second Indictment.

A second indictment against Howell was returned by the federal grand jury yesterday. It added no new charges, however, and was returned merely to correct typographical errors that appeared in the indictments returned two weeks ago. In the first indictment the WPA had been referred to as the "WPA of Fulton county," whereas in yesterday's indictment those words were changed to read "WPA of Georgia."

In five counts, the indictment charges Howell with using four of twelve WPA women workers for bundling, packaging, addressing and mailing copies of the Georgia Woman's World, a political publication, containing derogatory matter about the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, which was distributed at the Talmadge "grass roots" convention in Macon.

33,000 GIVEN HELP

Good-Will Industries Officers Told of Work.

More than 33,000 persons were aided last year by the Atlanta Goodwill Industries, Warren Banta, superintendent, stated yesterday in reading his annual report at the annual meeting of the organization at a downtown hotel.

Officers elected to serve for 1936 were Dr. Ben Holtzendorf, president; Claude S. Bennett, vice president; Miss Aurelia Taylor, recording secretary; Miss Reathea Heeden, corresponding secretary; Otis Cook, treasurer, and the Rev. Nat Long, chaplain.

"This organization gives many persons an opportunity to earn a livelihood for themselves," Dr. Holtzendorf said. "The policy is to give individuals work repairing the clothing and furniture given by Atlantans, and paying them in cash rather than giving them a handout and thereby helping to make them paupers."

HONOR COURT SERVICES TO BE HELD BY MASONS

Three Atlanta and three Macon Scottish Rite Masons will be installed as knights commander of the court of honor at ceremonies at 8 o'clock next Thursday night at the Masonic temple, it was announced yesterday.

Atlantans named for the honor at the October meeting of the Scottish Rite supreme council were T. C. Perkins, T. B. Fay and Dan I. MacIntyre Jr.

Any 32d degree Mason in good standing will be admitted to the ceremonies, according to E. P. King, secretary. A dinner will be held prior to the installation services.

JESSE P. ROBERTSON TO SING HERE SUNDAY

Jesse Phillips Robertson, of New York city, widely-known singer of psalms, will give concerts at two Atlanta churches Sunday night. He will sing at the Decatur Presbyterian church at 8 o'clock.

A former musical comedy star with Flo Zeigfeld and Eddie Cantor, Mr. Robertson began the study of sacred music after many years on the stage. For his concert here he will dress in oriental costumes and will accompany himself on oriental musical instruments. Following his concert at the Rock Springs church, he will exhibit oriental curios collected while studying music at Palestine.

SPEAKS ON PEACE

Mrs. Marion H. Miller Addresses Standard Club.

The role the National Council of Jewish Women is playing in the movement for world peace was described yesterday by Mrs. Marion M. Miller, executive director of the council, in an address before Atlanta members at a luncheon at the Standard Club.

Mrs. Miller is head of the children's welfare department of the national council and formerly was an associate director of the Child Study Association of America.

In addition to telling the work of the organization for world peace, she also explained the relationship between the national council and the 200 chapters situated throughout the country. In speaking of the council's child welfare work, she urged that adequate training in industrial schools be provided and compulsory education laws be respected.

ATLANTA REAL ESTATE SHOWN HEAVILY TAXED

City, county and state taxes in Atlanta are approximately 20 per cent higher on real estate than the average for all other cities of the United States in Atlanta's population group, it was announced yesterday by Edgar A. Neely, president of the Atlanta Taxpayers' League.

The comparisons are based on data from a report of "Comparative Tax Rates of 301 Cities, 1935," and is sued by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The average combined tax in cities in Atlanta's group was $25.23 per $1,000. Atlanta's combined schedule was $30 per $1,000.

6 PERSONS ARRESTED IN 'SOCIAL CLUB' RAID

City Police Continue Drive Against 'Bug' and Other Rackets.

A raid on a "social club" at 104 1-2 Forsyth street resulted in the arrest of two women and four men yesterday as Atlanta police continued the drive against the "bug" and other illegal rackets."

Besides those arrested at the "club," where police allegedly found lottery books and horse racing forms, six other persons were arrested on lottery charges yesterday, including Harry Jung, 68-year-old Chinese.

Those arrested at the club, located on the second floor of the building, gave their names as Mrs. J. A. Kaiser, 47, Lynchburg, Va.; Mrs. J. W. Peterson, 45, Chicago; Frank Guthas, 29, 133 Atlanta avenue; B. P. Carter, 30, 171 Ivy road; N. Bradoski, 29, 467 Kennedy street, and Harry Smith, 32, 1103 East Rock Springs road.

They were charged with disorderly conduct, lottery and disorderly conduct, playing horse races. They posted total bonds of $300 each $200 on the horse-playing charge and $100 on the other charge.

The raid was made by Lieutenant J. A. McKibben, head of the vice squad, and Detectives B. E. Blair, A. E. McNaughton, I. P. Jones and D. Simms.

Others who found themselves tangled in the police net yesterday were E. H. Hodges, Lonnie Derico and George Wall, negroes, who were bound over to the state courts under $200 bond each when arraigned on lottery charges before Recorder John L. Cone.

The negroes were arrested Tuesday when police raided an alleged "bug" check-up station in the northeast section of the city.

FILENE HITS SMITH

Boston Merchant Says Real Issue Found.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 26.—(AP)—An ironical view of portions of Al Smith's recent Liberty League speech in Washington was expressed here today by Edward A. Filene, wealthy Boston merchant and advocate of consumer co-operative department stores.

"Smith hit upon the real issue of the coming campaign," Filene said in an interview, "when he expressed his satisfaction with the old order of society, which enabled him to rise from obscurity to the du Pont dinner.

"In our different ways, Al and I both got ahead—and what more could anyone ask than an equal opportunity to get ahead while the masses are getting behind?

"Mr. Hoover seems to look at things in that light, too. He also got ahead, and he was constantly remarking that 'life is a race.'

"In this age of plenty," he continued, "we must devote ourselves not to the art of getting ahead of others, but to the greater art of getting ahead with others."

MRS. M'FARLAND DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Disciplining of General Hagood Is Defended by War Department

Intemperate Statements and Irresponsibility Charged to Noted Army Officer by High Officials; Republicans To Seek Probe.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Stepping into the politically-tinged melee over the disciplining of Major General Johnson Hagood, the War Department tonight published a statement that his entire record as a general officer was "marked by repeated examples of lack of self-control, irresponsible and intemperate statements."

The department's silence was broken in the face of a republican effort to force a senate investigation into whether the military exiling of Hagood had abridged his right of "free speech." Senator Metcalf, republican, Rhode Island, introduced a resolution to this effect, saying he wished to get the facts on "this reign of terror."

The department's action topped off also the third successive day of caustic debate on Capitol Hill. Further, while house members were engaged in rough-and-tumble argument over whether Hagood should have been so punished for his criticism of New Deal spending and his reference to WPA funds as "stage money," still another move was in the making. Congressional friends of the general arranged to see Secretary Dern about the tangle tomorrow.

However, the War Department's publication of a letter by General Malin Craig, chief of staff, flaying Hagood's past "references to War Department policies in which his opposition and contempt have been very thinly veiled," apparently precluded any softening of the army's attitude toward him.

"There have been reprimands and explanations to little avail," Craig wrote to Secretary Dern on February 18, recommending that Hagood be relieved of his command of the eighth corps area and sent home to "await further orders."

In fact, General Craig hinted further action might be taken. Although asserting in his conclusion that he was not recommending trial by court-martial, he said notices should be served that the War Department would not "tolerate this type of utterance," and added:

"General Hagood is over 62 years of age and is subject to compulsory retirement by the President, under Section 1244, revised statutes. (This was done in the case of Major General Adelbert Cronkhite) . . .

"A mere reprimand would be no more effective than it has in the past."

Earlier, after citing past official troubles in which Hagood had been involved, Craig had said:

"Evidently the trait of flippancy is too ingrained for reprimand or admonition to have much effect."

Senator Metcalf's resolution for an investigation of whether the disciplining of Hagood after his critical testimony constituted a suppression of free speech called for the creation of a five-man committee. It would not only inquire into the reasons behind Hagood's exile but also into "any allegations of the improper use of the powers of government for the suppression of free speech as may be brought to its attention."

The groups would be ordered also to find who was responsible for Hagood's removal; the precise reason for it; and whether the action was in conformity with the usual terms of army punishment.

At Metcalf's request, the resolution was referred to the senate military affairs committee. Chairman Sheppard, democrat, Texas, said it would be considered at the committee's routine meeting Friday.

Some of the points which Metcalf would investigate, however, apparently were answered by the publication of Craig's letter. In addition, the War Department put out a separate memorandum, apparently intended to give assurance that the army high command generally did not share Hagood's views about WPA money—"you can pass it around but you cannot get anything for it."

The statement carried also under Craig's name said in part:

"The various branches of the army have co-operated actively and thoroughly with WPA officials in developing these types of projects. (Those on which comparatively few skilled workers will be required.) It is the opinion of military authorities in a position to know, that such projects generally are of very great value, and the use of relief labor on projects sponsored by the various branches of the army represents as good an investment of public funds as could be made under the provisions of the emergency relief appropriation act."

Senator Byrnes, democrat, South Carolina, and Chairman McSwain, democrat, South Carolina, of the house military affairs committee, it was learned authoritatively, arranged a conference with Secretary Dern and General Malin Craig, chief of staff, in an effort to settle the politically electrified situation.

The senator and representative from General Hagood's home state of South Carolina, probably will be accompanied by several other members of congress, including Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, one of the general's staunch defenders.

Representative Luckey, democrat, Nebraska, described the general's exile from his command as "one of the most disgraceful persecutions" on record.

"Petty underlings" in the War Department, he asserted, had "ganged up" on Hagood.

Representative Faddis, democrat, Pennsylvania charged that republicans were "merely raising a smoke screen" in their efforts to make a political issue of the Hagood affair.

"The storm of criticism that has arisen," he asserted, "might lead the public to believe that such action was never before resorted to in this nation, whereas many, many times the President of the United States has felt it necessary to take disciplinary action.

"Military men should be subordinated to the civil authority. We need such men as Hagood as witnesses in their capacity as experts, but when they inject such things as he did in his testimony they destroy their value."

RURAL ELECTRIC BILL HITS SNAG IN SENATE

Leaders Drive To Reduce Appropriation To Please President.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Senate action on the $1,000,000,000 rural electrification bill was pushed back a week today as part of a drive by administration leaders to cut it small enough to meet the quoted wishes of President Roosevelt.

An agreement with Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, author of the bill, to postpone further debate until next Wednesday was reached by Majority Leader Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, amid growing evidence of opposition.

(The bill would authorize congress to appropriate $100,000,000 a year for 10 years to be apportioned among states in the form of loans for rural co-operatives and individuals. The loans would go into financing generating and distributing systems and the wiring of rural homes.)

The senate adopted minor committee amendments during the day, but all controversial features were passed over after Robinson urged that the proposed $100,000,000 annual appropriation might be "very materially reduced" by amendments considered in a conference before the bill should be taken up again.

Norris contended in his debate today that the $100,000,000 annual authorization was simply a maximum, and that in actually appropriating the money congress could determine upon any sum it desired. He indicated he would accept a cut to $50,000,000. Another amendment he proposed but which was carried over would exempt legal and engineering employment in the administration from civil service but would place all other employes within it.

Today's opposition appeared to hinge on the terms under which the rural electrification administration could lend to states, municipalities, farm co-operative groups, and private individuals or corporations for providing rural electrification.

Norris said a 40-year limit was placed on loans for generating and distributing systems but that on loans for farm and household equipment the loans undoubtedly would be limited by the administration to five or six years.

UPTURN IN BUSINESS IS NOTED BY SWOPE

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Gerald Swope, noted industrialist, told the New York state legislature at a public hearing today that "business is getting out of the depression."

The president of General Electric Company appeared before a hearing on a bill to create a committee to find out the basic causes for the need of relief in the state.

Asked if he thought there should be a study of unemployment and business conditions, Mr. Swope replied:

"There have been too many studies, taking up many months, that always end with a difference of opinion. It would be wise to let industry go along."

HUNDREDS FLEE HOMES AS FLOOD WATERS RISE

Many Rivers Overflow Banks as Snow Covers Midwest Areas.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Flood waters surging from ice-clogged streams forced hundreds of persons to flee to higher ground today.

Rising tributaries of the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers in Pennsylvania inundated streets in many communities and routed several hundred low landers from their homes. Rescuers carried scores of the stranded from marooned houses in rowboats.

More than 100 families left their homes in Buena Vista after a Wild Cat creek ice gorge broke. Chartiers creek went over its banks near Canonsburg, causing the evacuation of 200 persons.

Big floes sweeping down the Wheeling creek valley in Ohio wrecked the general store at Barton and put the water pumping plant out of commission. Pemberville experienced its worst inundation since 1913. Dynamite blasted a jam west of Bridgeport after 35 homes had been flooded. Many residents of low lands in Coshocton and Muskingum counties prepared to leave.

Upstate rains threatened serious floods along the Wabash and White rivers in Indiana. Ravenswood, resort town near Indianapolis, was under water.

A section of Keyser, W. Va., was flooded when three ice gorges in New creek resisted explosives.

Flood warnings for the Mississippi below Keokuk, Iowa., were issued. A substantial rise along the Wabash in Illinois was expected.

Small streams were out of their banks in the vicinity of Quincy, Ill. The illinois and Fox rivers receded after many families had fled from their homes.

Heavy snows in South Dakota, Wisconsin, upper Michigan, Minnesota and northwestern Iowa hampered transportation. Many highways were blocked. The fall measured more than a foot in Minnesota.

Fifteen persons were injured in a windstorm at Turley, Okla. A dust storm darkened the skies in the Goodland area of Kansas.

CONDITION OF GRAVES REPORTED NOT SERIOUS

FOLEY, Ala., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Dr. W. D. Holmes said tonight the condition of Governor Bibb Graves, ill with influenza at his gulf-shore cottage near here, was not serious although the chief executive still was running a temperature.

"The governor's condition is unchanged," Dr. Holmes said. "He has influenza and this afternoon his temperature was 101 degrees. His general condition is fair, and there is no threat of pneumonia developing at the present time. I would say that his illness is not a serious one."

The governor went to Foley last Saturday for a week-end rest but a relapse of a former case of influenza forced him to remain at the cottage. Dr. Holmes said he would not be able to return to Montgomery before Sunday at the earliest.

COAST FARM INCOMES SHOW BIG INCREASES

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 26.—(UP)—California agriculture, after staggering through the depression years, has returned to the $500,000,000 industry class.

Estimates prepared by the state department of agriculture indicated that the gross income from 78 crops and 13 livestock items totaled $493,525,000 for 1934. Evidence that that amount may be exceeded this year was contained in estimates that income up to August 31 amounted to $308,789,000, compared with $268,132,000 for the corresponding months of 1934 and $206,504,000 for the comparable period of 1933.

There has been greater production this year than in any previous year in corn, wheat, oats, barley, flaxseed, grain sorghum, potatoes, alfalfa and hay. Fruit and nut crops and livestock production have increased.

Successor Named.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Feb. 26. (AP)—Luis R. Esteves, a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, was named chief of the insular police today succeeding Colonel E. Francis Riggs, assassinated Sunday. Esteves is also a colonel in the Puerto Rican national guard.

Fisher To Seek Return of 'Jafsie' For Questioning in Kidnap Case

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 26.—(AP)—The defense, fighting desperately to save Bruno Richard Hauptmann from death in the electric chair five weeks hence, is ready to renew its attack on the kidnap ladder, it was authoritatively disclosed tonight.

A report that the ladder was "framed" evidence is now being prepared and will shortly be presented to Governor Harold G. Hoffman, it was said.

Coincidental with this disclosure C. Lloyd Fisher, chief counsel for the convicted Lindbergh baby killer, reiterated he will seek the return of Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon for questioning, citing the Bronx educator's own written word that he knew the man who made the ladder.

Dr. Erasmus M. Hudson, New York physician and defense fingerprint witness at the Flemington trial, and Robert W. Hicks, Washington criminologist, have been working on the ladder evidence for some weeks, seeking to disprove the state's contention that an upright of the ladder came from the flooring of the attic of Hauptmann's Bronx home.

They have reached a stage of their investigation, the source said, where they have "proof" the four nail holes in the attic joists—holes which matched holes in rail 16—were made approximately 18 months ago, about the time of Hauptmann's arrest.

The state, in support of its theory the rail was part of the flooring, emphasized at the trial that the holes matched. Dr. Hudson testified that when he examined the ladder shortly after the kidnaping there was only one hole in rail 16. He admitted he had made no notes.

In rebuttal the prosecution called a federal employe who had examined the ladder and made photographs of the rail showing four holes.

The report being prepared for the Governor, the source said, will declare "proof" the holes are of fairly recent origin was procured through violet ray tests.

Arthur Koehler, federal wood expert, testified there were four holes in the rail when he examined it, and swore the rail was part of a length of board, the remainder of which is still in the attic.

Fisher said he will suggest Condon's recall to Attorney-General David T. Wilentz.

"Wilentz says it (the kidnaping) was a one-man job," Fisher said. "Condon says at least two men. I don't see how the attorney-general can say it is unimportant. In my opinion there isn't a thing he can do except to call Condon."

The attorney-general, who had announced he would confer today with Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck Jr., of Hunterdon county, and Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, on the most recent developments in Governor Harold G. Hoffman's activities, decided his private legal business was too pressing to do anything today.

Tomorrow, if it is convenient for Hauck and Schwarzkopf, he will meet them in his Perth Amboy office. Hauck has "heard" he will be superseded as prosecutor unless he starts perjury action against Millard Whited, Sourlands logger, who testified for the state he saw Hauptmann near the Lindbergh estate about the time of the kidnaping.

The order to supersede him would have to be signed by Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, presiding judge at the trial, on application of the attorney-general.

Shakespearean Comedy Back at Georgia Theater

Max Reinhardt's super production of William Shakespeare's comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," reopens this afternoon at the Georgia theater for a two-day encore engagement. Reserved seat tickets are on sale at the boxoffice for all performances. Matinee performances begin at 2:45 o'clock and evening performances at 8:30 o'clock.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" is a play of fancy and a plea for fancy. It is a dream within a dream, in which the dreamers themselves form a definite part of their own dream world. Perhaps its greatest lesson, perhaps what Shakespeare intended to convey, is the fallacy of taking ourselves too seriously. An idea well summed-up in Puck's own phrase, "What fools these mortals be." "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is after all, the story of the mischievous little imp, Puck, who scrambles love affairs while the lovers sleep in the moonlight. It is a plea for people to forget the realities of life and give themselves over to blithe nonsense.

The character of Puck was a household fairy of the early Scandinavian people, among whom he was known by various names. He was supposed to play all sorts of pranks, such as misleading travelers by assuming the shape of false lights. Or perchance he would clean up the house at night for maids who attracted his impish fancy.

William Shakespeare, of course, could not have imagined motion pictures, but in "A Midsummed Night's Dream" he created the perfect motion picture story. He blended together fantasy and farce, romance and pathos, thrills and suspense, jealousy and agony. It was these ingredients that the genius of Max Reinhardt transferred to the screen and produced what is conceded to be the outstanding picture of all time.

Ponce de Leon and Hilan Bill 'Top Hat' for 2 Days

"Top Hat," featuring the king and queen of song and dance, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, will be seen at the Ponce de Leon and Hilan theaters today and Friday. It is probably this fascinating team's most popular picture. It is filled with new and thrilling song hits written by Irving Berlin, including "Top Hat, White Tie and Tails" and "Isn't This a Lovely Day?"

There are many new and thrilling dance numbers, including the reckless "Piccolina."

Edward Everett Horton lends his talents to make the picture one of the best of the season.

CITY OFFERED LAND NEAR PRISON FARM

Parks Department May Acquire Property on Rental Purchase Plan.

Acquisition on a rental purchase agreement of 166.98 acres of land adjoining the city prison farm was offered the parks department yesterday for $15,000.

Although no action was taken on the proposal, which would allow the lease payments to be applied to the purchase over a period of years, it was regarded as certain that the department is considering a move to raise hay and grain necessary for feeding animals at the Grant park zoo.

City tax assessors will be asked to appraise the tract and further negotiations depend on results of the recommendations. Definite rental payments were not discussed.

Advertisement for bids on concessions at Piedmont, Grant, Maddox, Candler and Oakland City parks also was authorized by the parks committee, of which Councilman Horace M. Rantin is chairman.

OUSTING OF OFFICIALS DEFENDED BY ROPER

Commerce Chief Defends Dismissal; 'Unauthorized' Report Is Released.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Another apparently "unauthorized" report on sea mishaps was forwarded to the press tonight after Secretary Roper had defended the dismissal of two officials for alleged "insubordination" in connection with a previous incident.

The usually soft-spoken cabinet member banged a table at his press conference today while discussing the ousting, effective Saturday, of Commander H. McCoy Jones and Frederick L. Adams from the Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection.

Roper said the dismissals were occasioned by "insubordination." His assistant, Colonel John Munroe Johnson, added that the insubordination was "violent and explosive." The discharged pair had declined to answer questions relative to the "unauthorized" release a few weeks ago of a report criticizing sea safety requirements.

But even as Harry Daniel, chief of Commerce Department publicity, asserted to newsmen the intention of department officials to "supervise" what reports "should and should not be released on the basis of accuracy and completeness," press associations received copies of a new report from the inspection bureau.

It was mailed in a bureau envelope, and listed "maritime casualties" for January, including 43 deaths. Accuracy of its statistics was confirmed by Joseph B. Weaver, director of the bureau, to whom the report was attributed, but both Weaver and Daniel said they knew nothing of its release.

Feeling obviously was high in official department circles over the affair. At the press conference, Colonel Johnson, who sat beside Roper, was asked if one of the men dismissed told him to "go to hell." Clenching his fist, he replied:

"No. He would not have been dismissed if he had done that."

Weaver, as the immediate superior of Jones and Adams, had recommended dismissal of charges against the former, and transfer of the later to another department. He said he would not resign until after sea safety legislation now before congress is enacted.

Johnson said at the conference there had been many "immature and inaccurate" news leaks, both before and after the inquiry involving Jones and Adams, and that he was trying to find a solution of the problem.

COFFEE-POT ARGUMENT ENDS IN DEATH FIGHT

band and then hiding the percolator in order to keep her father from becoming angry, she said.

Mrs. Gray was taken to police station and booked on a charge of suspicion of murder. The charge later was changed to "disorderly conduct—murder."

Mrs. Lowe was not held. Both women were near collapse yesterday as Detectives J. A. Denny and Richard Englebert began investigation of the case.

J. S. Hall, attorney for Mrs. Gray, said that a plea of self-defense would be entered for his client. Preliminary hearing was set for 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Mr. Gray was an employe of the Veterans' hospital until about three years ago. Since then he has not been steadily employed, it was said.

The couple were married at the close of the World War after a romance which started overseas when Mrs. Gray, then Miss Osia Baird, was a head nurse of the Emory University unit at a hospital in France, and Mr. Gray was in the A. E. F. The two met when Mr. Gray was taken to the hospital after being gassed.

He was said to have been 39 years old at the time of his death. Police dockets record Mrs. Gray's age as 54.

The body was taken to Awtry and Lowndes Company, who will announce funeral arrangements.

VETO OF SEED LOAN STIRS RESENTMENT

1936 or the fiscal year 1937 for additional crop loans," he said, "and notwithstanding my budget statement (cautioning against nonbudgetary charges upon the treasury) the congress by this bill authorizes an additional draft upon the treasury for $50,000,000 for new crop loans, without making provision for any revenue to cover such loans."

The President added that he recognized need still existed for loans to farmers hit by drouth, dust storms, floods, rust and other unforeseen disasters and that they could be taken care of with work relief funds.

Other borrowers "should seek credit elsewhere," the President said, adding the proposed $50,000,000 was excessive.

Coincidentally, a Farm Credit Administration report to congress showed private sources had supplied $470,000,000 in farm mortgage loans in the first ten months of 1935, an increase of 27 per cent over the same period in 1934.

ROOSEVELT CRITICIZED FOR SEED LOAN VETO

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Representative Hampton P. Fulmer, of Orangeburg, S. C., sharply criticized President Roosevelt today for vetoing the 1936 crop loan bill.

The measure would have continued this year loans not in excess of $300 to farmers to purchase crop supplies.

"The President lets Harry Hopkins pour millions upon millions into rat holes and then vetoes a bill that gives poor farmers who are unable to obtain credit elsewhere, an opportunity to borrow a little money from the government to start their crops," Fulmer said.

"This veto does nothing else than place these farmers on relief."

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 26.—(AP)—A. L. Threlkeld, superintendent of schools at Denver, was elected president of the National Education Association's department of superintendence by vote of its active members today. He will take office tomorrow.

Jesse H. Mason, superintendent of schools at Canton, Ohio, was elected second vice president, and J. C. Cochran, superintendent of schools at San Antonio, Texas, was chosen a member of the executive committee.

The retiring president, A. J. Stoddard, of Providence, R. I., automatically becomes first vice president.

Text of Message Vetoing Seed Loans

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP) The text of President Roosevelt's veto message on seed loan bill to the senate follows:

I return herewith, without my approval, S. 3,612, a bill entitled "To provide loans to farmers for crop production and harvesting during the year 1936, and for other purposes."

This bill authorizes an appropriation of $50,000,000 from the general fund of the treasury for loans to farmers during the year 1936, for production of crops—principally seed loans.

In approving the bill providing $40,000,000 for corp production loans for 1934, I stated that I did so on the theory that it was proper to taper off the crop loan system, which had been initiated on a large scale as early as 1931, rather than to cut it off abrutply, particularly since such loans would serve a useful purpose in aiding certain farmers unable to qualify for crop production loans through the newly-established farmers' production credit associations, and that the 1934 loan by the government should thus be considered as a tapering-off loan.

It is time that I gave my approval to a $60,000,000 crop production loan for 1935, but this loan was primarily for relief purposes principally in the drouth-stricken areas, and I recommended to the congress that the cost of such loans should properly be defrayed from the appropriation for relief purposes. Accordingly $60,000,000 was reappropriated from unobligated balances under allocations from the appropriation of $525,000,000 for relief in stricken agricultural areas contained in the emergency appropriation act passed the previous year.

In my budget message, transmitting the 1937 budget, I stated:

URGES NEW TAXES TO COVER CHARGES

"If the congress enacts legislation at the coming session which will impose additional charges upon the treasury for which provision is not already made in this budget, I strongly urge that additional taxes be provided to cover such charges."

No provision was made in the financial program for the fiscal year 1936, or the fiscal year 1937, for additional crop loans, and, notwithstanding my budget statement, quoted above, the congress by this bill authorizes an additional draft upon the treasury for $50,000,000 for new crop loans, without making provision for any revenue to cover such loans.

However, while I am returning this bill without my approval, I recognize that there still exists a need for crop production loans to farmers whose cash requirements are so small that the operating and supervisory costs, as well as the credit risk, make credit unavailable to them at this time through the usual commercial channels and who, unless extended assistance of this character, would no doubt find it necessary to seek some other form of relief from the government. This is particularly true with respect to those areas in which unusual conditions prevail because of drouth, dust storms, floods, rust and other unforeseen disasters.

IN FULL AGREEMENT WITH CONGRESS

I fully agree with the congress that provision should be made for such borrowers during the year 1936, but I feel that other borrowers should seek credit elsewhere.

I am convinced that the immediate and actual needs to which I have referred can be met during the year 1936 by an expenditure of funds materially less than that proposed in the bill under discussion.

Furthermore, these needs can be met, without the necessity of enacting authorizing legislation, through an allocation of funds by me from the appropriation provided in the emergency relief appropriation act for 1935, which appropriation, I am informally advised by the comtroller general of the United States, can be utilized for such loans as I might indicate by executive order to be desirable and necessary as relief measures.

I believe, therefore, that a special appropriation by the congress at this time is both inadvisable and unnecessary. That being so, and in the absence of such legislation, I propose in order to meet this need to issue an executive order within the next few days.

(Signed)
FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

MOCK TURKEY IS A GUEST DISH.

Menu Hint.

Mock Turkey
Mushrooms
Potatoes Baked With Meat
Green Peas
Cranberry Sauce
Celery
Indian Pudding
Coffee

Today's Recipes.

Mock Turkey—Five-pound leg of veal, one tablespoon ground mustard, one teaspoon sage, one tablespoon brown sugar, one tablespoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, five wide slices of fresh side pork, one cup hot water. Place the meat in a roaster and spread with the mustard, sage, sugar, salt and pepper mixed to a paste with vinegar. Arrange the strips of fresh side pork over the meat, and the hot water in the roaster, place in a hot oven (about 450 degrees) uncovered for ten minutes, cover and reduce heat to 350 degrees. Baste occasionally with the liquor in the pan, keeping about one cupful there all the time. Allow 30 minutes per pound for thorough cooking. Add milk to pan liquor for making cream gravy.

Indian Pudding—Three tablespoons corn meal, one tablespoon wheat flour, three pints scalded milk, one cup molasses, one cup brown sugar, one cup raisins, one cup currants, butter size of an egg, one dozen chopped apples, cinnamon and nutmeg. Bake slowly for about three hours until corn meal swells and thickens. Stir occasionally while baking.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

Basic Meat-Sauce for Spaghetti and Chili.

One pound ground meat (beef and pork), four medium sized onions, cut fine; two cups diced celery, two green peppers, diced; six tablespoons cooking fat, one No. 2 can tomatoes (put through colander), one can tomato soup with a half cup hot water, one and a fourth teaspoons salt, a tablespoon sugar, a small bay leaf, one-fourth clove garlic, one-eighth teaspoon black pepper. Saute vegetables in fat until golden brown, add meat and cook until meat is done, about 15 minutes. Add tomatoes and all seasonings and cook another five to ten minutes. Lastly add tomato soup and let come to a boil. Boil only a minute or two. Store one-half in glass jar for chili dinner and use the rest for spaghetti. The proportion of vegtables to meat in this recipe may seem large, but it makes a well-balanced dish.

To Amuse Children.

If you are in the habit of having small children come to see you, or if your own children tire of their regular toys and pastimes, have a reserve supply that can be relied upon to provide amusement.

Black paper and small scissors for cutting silhouettes, a magnifying glass, modeling clay, colored cardboard for making houses and furniture, old magazines from which the pictures may be cut and colored, crayons, paints all have infinite possibilities.

Encourage the child to use his imagination rather than to depend on mechanical toys, and he will be able to amuse himself more and not annoy you with queries as to what he shall do.

GANNETT IS NAMED BORAH'S OHIO MATE

Publisher Accepts Second Place Position on Idahoan's Ticket.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Fed. 26.—(AP) Senator William E. Borah-for-President forces announced tonight his running mate in his drive for Ohio's 52 delegates at the republican national convention would be Frank E. Gannett, publisher of 19 newspapers.

Glenn Hancock, representing John Knight, of Akron, a Borah leader in Ohio, said Gannett, owner of papers in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Illinois, had accepted designation as second choice for president.

In a statement of acceptance, released here, the publisher said:

"It would mean a great sacrifice for me to accept any public office and I prefer to devote myself to my newspapers and thus influence public opinion by a fair presentation of the truth on all questions.

"However, such a grave crisis confronts the nation that all who believe in our precious institutions, who wish to preserve the constitution and the integrity of the supreme court must be ready and willing to make many sacrifices.

"The republicans should nominate their greatest vote getter, a man who can match President Roosevelt in debating the issues and can arouse the nation to an appreciation of the gravity of the situation that confronts us.

"Senator Borah voted against NRA, AAA, the Guffey coal and other New Deal measures that sought to concentrate in Washington power and control over our individual lives, industries and agriculture, destroy free enterprise and lead us further on the road to a dictatorship.

"If the republicans will nominate Senator Borah he will be elected and the America we love will be saved."

'JITTERS HAVE HOOVER' SEC. ICKES DECLARES

Cabinet Member Flays Liberty Leaguers in Chicago Address.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, speaking before a Union League Club luncheon, said today that a "confirmed state of jitters" seems to possess former President Herbert Hoover.

"Some men tremble occasionally for the safety of our institutions, but he has developed a chronic ague about them," said the cabinet member.

"Three years ago Mr. Hoover's refrain was that 'prosperity was just around the corner.'

"Now he is just as certain that 'collapse is just around the corner.'"

He said the former president, who in recent weeks has criticized his successor publicly, was "laboring with all his might to re-establish in the minds of the American people that state of fear in which he left them."

The secretary's address on "New Deal or Old Deal" was given at a luncheon of the Union League Club, which since Civil War days has boasted a membership of leading Chicago industrialists and businessmen.

"The dukes and earls of big business," which he identified as the American Liberty League, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., and the du Ponts, famous Delaware industrialists, shared Secretary Ickes' fire.

He called the Liberty League "an interesting alias chosen by big business" in a campaign against President Roosevelt.

Of Sloan, Secretary Ickes said:

"Despite the vaunted initiative, capacity and intelligence of Mr. Sloan and his ilk, Detroit was one of the hardest hit cities in the country during the depression."

He listed 12 members of the du Pont family attending the Liberty League's recent Washington banquet, and spoke of "their self-sacrificing effort to preserve the constitutional liberties of us humbler Americans."

The cabinet members also said tonight in an address at the twentieth anniversary meeting of the Chicago Urban League:

"During the political campaigns the republicans were the solicitous friends of the race, but between campaigns it was a different matter; then the economic exploiter could have his will of the negro."

These "economic exploiters," he said, "generally speaking, have been members of the republican party."

The great debt of the republicans to the negro scorned in this manner, the secretary said, included: The returning of republican majorities in the southern states during the "Reconstruction era" immediately following the War Between the States, the nomination of "in many instances" since then of Presidents of the United States who could not have been nominated without the aid of negro republican delegates from the southern states; and the casting by the rank and file of the race of their votes almost unanimously for republican candidates.

All these favors, the speaker said, were predicated on a belief taught the negro that "the republican party by its unaided efforts had manumitted him from slavery."

A growing tendency to regard that obligation liquidated, Ickes continued, culminated in 1932 in thousands of the members of the race voting for a New Deal and President Roosevelt.

Asserting their hopes were not misplaced, the New Deal leader said "this administration has regarded its obligation to feed and clothe and give shelter to the negro as no less pressing than its duty to the white man."

HOUSE SPEEDS WORK ON FARM BILL FUNDS

Solons Approve One-Half of Items in New Agriculture Measure.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The house finished general debate today and approved half of the items in the $161,863,147 Agricultural Department appropriation bill for 1936-7.

Although leaders had not counted on passing the bill until Friday, today's speed—including rejection of two amendments which had promised trouble—made approval by tomorrow not improbable.

At adjournment, the house had reached the forestry section, in which the appropriations committee had deleted $1,000,000 asked in the budget for continuing the great plains tree shelter-belt. Representative Ferguson, democrat, Oklahoma, proposed to add $180,000 for distribution to farmers of some 63,000,000 trees already growing in private nurseries for the shelter-belt project. Action on his amendment will be taken tomorrow.

Another forest service fight loomed on an amendment by Representative Parsons, democrat, Illinois—backed by Great Lakes states members—to allow $25,000,000 for government purchase of lands for national forests.

Reject Wilcox Amendment.

By a 29-to-39 standing vote, the house rejected an amendment by Representative Wilcox, democrat, Florida, to add $25,000 for increasing the southern hurricane warning service. It approved $3,810,724 for the Weather Bureau, including increased funds for airways, flood, forest fire and other service.

Also rejected was an amendment by Representative Taber, republican, New York, to trim the $34,307 allowed the national arboretum to $19,307, and another by the New Yorker to cut the Forest Service's Washington office allotment from $532,163 to $365,800.

Taber argued there was no necessity for increasing appropriations unless it were in a constructive manner, and complained of lack of economy in the Forest Bureau's operation.

Representative Christianson, republican, Minnesota, said most of the items in the bill had been concerned with increasing production, and declared that it seemed somewhat inconsistent with administration curtailment programs.

Items Now Approved.

Among items in the portion of the measure approved today were $5,851,046 for experiment stations, $12,428,918 for co-operative agricultural extension work, $9,944,782 for the Bureau of Animal Industry, $4,529,206 for the Plant Industry Bureau and $675,094 for the Bureau of Dairy Industry.

Representative Focht, republican, Pennsylvania, complained that the dairy industry was not being treated fairly in this or the soil conservation-subsidy bill, but was told by Chairman Cannon, democrat, Missouri, of the subcommittee in charge of the Dairy Bureau was the largest in history. Last year it drew $646,594.

Repeal of reciprocal trade agreements was urged by Representative Robison, republican, Kentucky.

"I want the American farmer to get a real price for his products," Robinson said, "but I'm unwilling to create a market that brings in millions of bushels of foreign grain and millions of pounds of hides, meat and so on.

"Let us repeal the reciprocal trade agreements and protect this wonderful American market. Let's tighten up the tariff."

NUDE DANCE FINE IS UPHELD IN PARIS

American Girl Loses Appeal; Apparel Said Inadequate.

PARIS, Feb. 26.—(UP)—Joan Warner, blond "American poetess of nude rhythm," today heard the court of appeals uphold a 50-franc fine against her for dancing in a Paris night club in a gossamer G-string "made of moonbeams."

The court reduced a 200-franc fine against the night club proprietor to 50 francs.

The decision said, however:

"This is merely a question as to whether the G-string hid what it was supposed to hide. It appears that it did not.

"If the lower court's conclusions were correct its reasoning was wrong. It was not a question as to whether the dance was artistic.

"It is not up to the courts to decide what costumes performers should wear."

The judges explained they were compelled to base their ruling on last year's testimony by Fernand Boverat, secretary of the national alliance for the increase of French population.

He insisted the fair Joan's G-string was "most inadequate," making Miss Warner's dance "a public outrage against modesty."

Miss Warner contended her dance was artistic and in good taste. Her attorneys described the G-string or ribbon as proper coverage.

MARDI GRAS VIOLENCE CLAIMS 2 MORE LIVES

Another Saloon Hostess Found Dead; Negro Burglar Is Slain.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 26.—(UP)—A wave of violence and robbery at the Mardi Gras carnival has resulted tonight in the mysterious killing of two saloon hostesses; killing of a negro burglar; stabbing of a bartender, his left eye slashed out; shooting of two men, one a policemen; and 75 injuries in fights, falls and wrecks.

Mrs. Lillian McDowell, 38, died at noon of knife wounds suffered just before dawn in a prolonged celebration. Almost exactly a year ago a Spanish sailor killed himself because she fled from his advances. She was taken to a hospital still clad in her red carnival costume. Police sought Joe Sebro, 27, for questioning.

Murder charges were filed against Jack O'Day, a jockey, for the killing of Mrs. Estelle Hughes, 29, who was found shot to death Mardi Gras dawn on the lawn of a railway station.

Sailors from the U. S. S. Arkansas had been on parties with both women before they were slain, but were not involved in the killings.

Sheriff Lee O. Allen, of Austin, Texas, wired police he was sending witnesses here to try to identify Jockey O'Day in connection with a Texas murder. O'Day had been Mrs. Hughes' escort. His car was found near her body. He said he was drunk and remembered nothing of the shooting.

He is a free lance rider at the Fair Grounds track and had ridden 15 winners this season. His wife, an expectant mother, is in a critical condition after an operation for a ruptured appendix.

A negro identified as Joseph Alexander, of Memphis, Tenn., was slain by policemen who caught him robbing a grocery store.

Thomas A. Rodwell, 35, a policeman, was in a serious condition from bullet wounds allegedly inflicted by his wife after a quarrel. Mrs. Rodwell was placed under $2,500 bond.

Pascal Longo, 23, saloonkeeper, was seriously stabbed, losing an eye, when he tried to separate two fighting negroes. Longo fired on his assailants, wounding Antione August, negro ex-convict, seriously. Nina Longo, 18, brother of the barkeeper, was wounded slightly by a stray bullet. He lost an eye in a fireworks explosion four years ago.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

A cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. You can relieve them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery that aids nature to soothe and heal the infected membranes and to relieve the irritation and inflammation as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

Medical authorities have for many years recognized the wonderful effects of Beechwood Creosote for treating coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations. A chemist worked out a special process of blending Creosote with other ingredients so that now in Creomulsion you get a real dose of Beechwood Creosote which is palatable and can even be taken frequently and continuously by adults and children. Thousands of doctors now use Creomulsion in their own families and practice, and druggists rank Creomulsion top because in this genuine, original product you can get a real dose of Creosote so emulsified that it goes to the very seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles, especially those that start with a common cold and hang on and on. Get a bottle of Creomulsion right now from your druggist, use it all up as directed and if you fail to get satisfactory relief, he is authorized to refund every cent of your money. DRUGGISTS' PRESIDENT URGES BILL'S PASSAGE

In a written statement given out yesterday, Dr. R. Lee Olive, Augusta druggist and president of the Georgia Pharmaceutical Association, urged passage of the Robinson-Patman anti-discrimination bill and the Tydings' fair trade enabling act in congress.

"All the individual dealer wants is the right to live protected," the statement said, "and it is only through the passage of these anti-discriminatory laws that he can hope for such a privilege."

Dr. Olive said the Retail Druggists' Association, in conjunction "with other individual retailers, seeks a law whereby the prices of all commodities may be stabilized."

BUILDINGS AT CAMP DAMAGED BY FIRE

Blaze Wreaks Serious Damage at Y. W. C. A. Plant Near Smyrna.

Five buildings, including a two-story clubhouse, were burned to the ground when fire of undetermined origin swept Camp Highland, Y. W. C. A. summer camp near Smyrna, Ga., early yesterday morning.

Loss was unestimated. The buildings were partially covered by insurance. George Hoke, negro caretaker, who discovered the blaze, reported the flames spread rapidly from one building to another.

The clubhouse, known as the S. I. S. P. clubhouse, contained furniture, cots and bedding stored in the place. The camp was not in use at the time of the blaze. The burned buildings represented a third of the entire camp structures.

JUDGE REVEALS CAUSE OF CANDIDACY CHANGE

Judge Frank Harwell announced yesterday that his decision to offer himself for election to the court of appeals of Georgia, instead of the supreme court, as he had previously announced, was caused by Judge Frank Jenkins' decision to seek the supreme court seat that will be vacated by Judge Price Gilbert.

"Judge Jenkins is a close personal friend of mine," said Judge Harwell. "I shall not offer for the supreme court because of his announcement that he has decided to run. I shall be glad to see him elected, as he is an able jurist."

Judgment of 6 Cents Awarded in Slander Suit

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP)—A judgment of six cents was awarded today to Mrs. Viola F. Raphael in her slander suit against Mrs. Lucy Thomas Magraw, society woman and actress.

She had sued for $150,000.

The verdict by a jury in supreme court brought a courtroom flurry when the foreman, Philip B. Capelle, told Justice Louis A. Valente it was not his verdict.

The verdict, reached last night, was sealed in a yellow envelope when delivered by Foreman Capelle. After it was read Justice Valente asked Capelle:

"Is this your verdict?"

"No, sir, it is not," Capelle replied.

"Didn't you sign?"

"Yes," responded the foreman, "but that was last night. I have changed my mind since."

The bench ruled the verdict would stand.

SPECULATIVE STOCKS BANNED BY RESERVE

O'Connor Specifies Type of Investment for Member Banks.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, today banned speculative securities from the investment portfolios of federal reserve member banks.

The national bank chieftain defined specifically an "investment security" which a bank might buy and sell for its own account. He prohibited the purchase of "investment securities" in which the investment's characteristics are "distinctly or predominantly speculative."

Today's regulations source in provisions contained in both the original banking act of 1933 and the law of 1935, designed to bulwark the stability of banking institutions. Under the act of last year, 1933 regulations to restrict the purchase and sale of investment securities for a bank's own account were superseded and made more stringent.

As a guide, the comptroller referred banks to "recognized rating manuels" and further stipulated that in case of doubt as to the eligibility of a security such eligibility must be supported by not less than two rating manuels.

Treasury officials said the new regulations marked the first time the grading of bonds were stipulated in determining an eligible investment.

The new regulations also prohibit purchase of securities which are in default, either as to principal or interest.

O'Connor stipulated that investment securities could not be purchased above par unless the purchasing institution provided for the regular amortization of the premium paid, or set up a reserve account in order to amortize the premium paid.

The original regulations merely defined investment securities as "marketable obligations evidencing indebtedness of any person, co-partnership, association or corporation in the form of bonds, notes, and debentures commonly known as investment securities."

Member banks, which include all national banks as well as 900-odd state institutions elected to membership in the federal reserve system, have been under investment account restrictions since 1927 when the first restrictive law, the McFadden act, was passed.

LOSSES ARE FEARED IF TIME IS CHANGED

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Representatives of the grain and livestock markets joined other opponents of a local change from central to eastern standard time today with the claim they would suffer "confusion and losses" if the Interstate Commerce Commission granted a petition for the proposal.

H. R. Parks, of the Chicago Livestock Exchange, and Fred H. Clutton, secretary of the Chicago Board of Trade, testified at the hearing before Commissioner Clyde B. Aitchison. These effects they asserted would result from an order for railroads to conform to the city's new time, effective by ordinance next Sunday.

Livestock and grain markets throughout the west would be "disorganized" by the hour's time difference which would then exist between Chicago and them.

Shipments would arrive in Chicago an hour later, interfering with "advantageous disposition" in the case of grain, and missing stockyard schedules in the case of livestock.

The delay would cause more grain and cattle to be held over from one day to another, involving questions of feed and animal care in the stockyards.

CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL SOUGHT FOR MITCHELL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Resolutions calling for the posthumous award of the congressional medal of honor to the late Brigadier General William Mitchell, chief of the A. E. F. air corps, were introduced today in both the senate and house.

Authors of the two proposals were Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, and Chairman McSwain, democrat, South Carolina, of the house military committee.

Robinson's resolution asked the award to Mitchell for "having contributed so largely by his energy, his valor and his vision" to aviation.

Mitchell was court-martialed when he was assistant chief of the air corps because of attacks on the nation's air corps administration and flying equipment.

Killer Convicted of Second Degree Murder in New Year's Death.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Feb. 26.—(AP) Edward A. Cannon, 27, awaited a sentence of life imprisonment today following his conviction of second-degree murder in the New Year's Day death of Hilda Price, 20.

Supreme Court Justice Graham Witschief, before whom Cannon was tried on an indictment charging murder, first degree, said he would pass sentence Friday. District Attorney John R. Schwartz said the murder verdict, returned by a jury yesterday, carried with it a mandatory life sentence for Cannon as a second offender.

Schwartz said Cannon, son of a former wealthy family here, had been convicted several years ago of second degree rape.

The state charged that the blonde waitress suffered fatal injuries in resisting Cannon's advances. Cannon, in his testimony declared that she accidentally fell from his automobile.

Today Marks Red-Letter Date In Life of Popular Atlantan

By Sally Forth.

A SNAPSHOT of himself when one hour old, a picture that was later taken to France by his father when he went overseas during the World War, is the most interesting highlight of a scrapbook to be given Jimmy Moore, popular young Tech football star, today by his grandmother, Mrs. James Stanley Moore.

Today is a red letter day for Jimmy, for he is celebrating his twenty-first birthday. His grandmother is making the occasion even more memorable for him by presenting the scrapbook which she has kept for him since his birth.

That first and most important entry, the historic snapshot, was taken by Jimmy's father, the late Captain James Stanley Moore, when he was exactly one hour old. From the beginning Mrs. Moore has traced the life of her grandson down to the present time, when he is a junior in the naval department at Georgia Tech, a quarterback on the varsity football team, a member of the Chi Chi fraternity, and one of the most popular young men in school and social circles of Atlanta.

The snapshot of hour-old Jimmy was carried in his wallet overseas by Captain Moore, who kept it with him until his death somewhere in France. When Captain Moore's possessions were sent back to his mother, this picture was included, and she has taken good care to see that it be preserved for Jimmy. Jimmy's mother, the lovely former Julia Edmonds, of Baltimore, died when Jimmy was only eight months old and he has lived with his grandmother since that time.

He was only three and a half years old when his father sailed away to France, but he will always remember him, as Mrs. Moore has included in this interesting scrapbook clippings of his father, who was also a Tech football star, one of Atlanta's most prominent young men and later one of America's most heroic fighters.

It's a safe bet that Jimmy's scrapbook always will prove one of his proudest possessions.

WHEN Mary Wellborn became the bride last Tuesday of Linton Hopkins Jr. at a brilliant ceremony in Anniston, Ala., she had only one attendant, Virginia Courts. So when she was ready to follow the time-honored custom of throwing her bouquet, she decided to let all the guests scramble for it. The superstition is, you know, that the catcher will be the next bride. And who should catch it but Jimmy Calhoun, and was his face red! He immediately handed the arm bouquet of exquisite calla lilies to Mary's beautiful 16-year-old niece, Mary Wellborn Mathews, of Anniston.

Atlantans who motored to Alabama for the nuptials returned home enthusiastically exclaiming over Mary's beauty in her bridal robes and the brilliance of the church ceremonial and the reception following at Maxwellborn, the ancestral Wellborn home near Anniston.

WHEN Frances North gives a party, it is highly anticipated by her guests. For her originality and charm always make social affairs at her home unusually interesting and enjoyable. When the invitations for the buffet supper she is planning for Amelia LaHatte and her fiance, Tillman Morris, arrived with the postman this morning, Atlantans receiving the notes scratched their heads in dismay.

For Frances' invitations are in the form of a questionnaire, and are typed very "businesslike" on regulation office paper. Here are some of the questions:

"Do you like congeniality?"

"Does your mind need exercising?"

"Do you like to go out on Friday evenings?"

"Do you feel pangs of hunger at 7:30 p. m.?"

"Are you 'game' for anything on March 6?"

"Would you like to come to a party for Amelia and Tillman at my house?"

"Don't you think it would be fun to come with ———?"

Then Frances adds the statement: "Answers to questionnaire may be summed up in one word if you are in sympathy with the above—'yes.' Please advise Frances North immediately, 10 West Andrews drive." The guests for the party include only the members of the LaHatte-Morris wedding attendants, and it promises to be as successful as other affairs given by the charming hostess.

CAROLE LOMBARD

The photo of Carole Lombard is offered next Sunday, March 1st, in The Constitution's Screen and Radio Magazine. A great deal has been said and printed about Carole Lombard's demands at the Universal Studio when she was borrowed to star in "Love Before Breakfast." Anyway, the film is finished and ready to be released. It is about a man madly in love with a girl, who resents his affections, but they cannot get along without each other. Preston Foster is the man, while Cesar Romero completes the triangle. This photo offered by The Constitution of Carole Lombard is a newly posed one. Also offered with her next Sunday is Fred MacMurray. The Constitution offers you these photographs for your private screen star album, size 8x10 inches, linen-like finish.

There are two pictures to be offered next Sunday. You can start your private photo star album very economically. A coupon in Screen and Radio Weekly of The Sunday Constitution is appearing each week. See the offer; cut it out and save it in accordance with the terms of the offer. This is one of the popular features of The Sunday Constitution.

Distinguished Y. W. Secretaries To Be Honored at Tea Today

Miss Edna C. Sandlin, Y. W. C. A. national board secretary, at the left, and Miss Charlotte Niven, former general secretary of the World's Council of the Y. W. C. A., who will be central figures at the tea to be given this afternoon by Mrs. John J. Eagan and Mrs. Luther Z. Rosser at 902 Oakdale road.

Miss Charlotte Niven, former head of World's Council Y. W. C. A., and Miss Edna Cowles Sandlin, Y. W. C. A. national secretary, will be honored at a tea this afternoon at 3 o'clock given by Mrs. John J. Egan and Mrs. Luther Z. Rosser, at Mrs. Eagon's home, 902 Oakdale road. Miss Niven, whose experience abroad makes her a keen student of world affairs, will speak on "Youth—the World's Future." She will be introduced by Mrs. S. F. Boykin, trustee and former president of the Young Women's Christian Association.

Miss Niven, one of the most "internationally-minded" women in America, has for the past 25 years held executive positions in Italy, France, England and Switzerland, with headquarters in Geneva during the last 15 years. Miss Niven was succeeded by Miss Mary Dingman, who is present general secretary of the World Council.

"One could easily lose courage over the world today," according to views expressed by Miss Niven, "because jobless youth in nearly every country is one of the great international problems. These young people are growing up in the belief that they are not necessary to their communities. In Europe and England, many of the war generation have never held jobs and know nothing but idleness. In the Orient the major task of the Y. W. C. A. is aiding young women to live two lives, that of their own and of the west. It is a difficult period for them, to learn how not to lose what is beautiful in their own and yet not lose out on new western advantages."

Miss Nevin's family home is in Dobb's Ferry, N. Y. She is a sister of Thornton N. Niven, of St. Louis, general auditor of the Missouri Pacific railroad and of Mrs. Amos P. Wilder, whose husband was editor of the Wisconsin State Journal in Madison. The distinguished author, Thornton Wilder, is her nephew. Since arriving in America last September, Miss Niven has traveled extensively through the east and middle west and is now touring southern cities, meeting with Y. W. C. A. members and community groups.

Miss Sandlin, who is traveling with Miss Niven, is a native Alabaman, having lived for many years in Birmingham. She has observed the national work of the Y. W. C. A. in practically every state and has visited associations in 19 foreign countries. She is a specialist on finance and interpretation and recently returned from Oakland, Cal., where she did special finance work. She was formerly general secretary of the Metropolitan board in the Brooklyn Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Eagan, life member and former president of the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. Rosser, president, will be assisted in entertaining by the board of directors. Mrs. Julian Robinson, chairman of hospitality, and Mrs. Cullen Gosnell, world economic chairman, will preside at the tea tables.

Mrs. Gosnell honored the guests at a luncheon given yesterday at her home, 1162 Oxford road. As Mrs. Gosnell is forming a new World Fellowship committee, she invited the following to discuss program and plans for her study group: Mrs. Boone Bowen, Mrs. Lloyd Chapin, Mrs. Fraser Durrett, Mrs. Rosser and Miss Metta May Mitchell, Atlanta general secretary.

While in Atlanta, Miss Niven is the guest of Mrs. E. Marvin Underwood, former Y. W. C. A. president, and Miss Sandlin is visiting her brother, Major Earl Sandlin, 236 Bolling road. Mrs. Underwood honored Miss Nevin at a dinner Wednesday evening.

My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

THE WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON, D. C.—The service held for the assistant secretary of the navy, Henry L. Roosevelt, in the little Church of St. John, was very beautiful. The church, across LaFayette square from the White House, is small enough to give one a peculiarly intimate feeling. A military funeral is always very impressive to me.

After the service was over we followed the long, slow-moving procession across the bridge to the Arlington cemetery.

Mr. Roosevelt was a colonel in the marine corps as well as assistant secretary of the navy, so he was doubly entitled to military honors.

The spot chosen by his family for his grave has a beautiful outlook over Washington.

Time and time again, since the days of the World War, I have stood in that cemetery. Never can I hear the salute fired or the bugle blowing taps, without seeing like a flash little groups of sorrowing people standing by an open grave. There is kinship among them and consolation for them all in knowing their loved ones have made some contribution to their country.

My husband and I drove back across the bridge, with his two aides, up to the south door of the White House. He went to work, for work must go on. Perhaps that is the saving grace for all those who grieve—there is always work to be done.

I went to lunch with Mrs. Morgenthau and returned to see a young writer of children's books, Miss Marian King, who brought me a charming Dutch story which is to appear in book form soon. She urged me to come and speak at a boys' school. This is the second invitation of this kind I've had of late and I only wish I could accept, for there is nothing I like better than the give and take of talk in a school library or study, but days do fill up.

After this conversation I presented a cup to a high school girl, Miss Lou Dillon, from Jefferson, Mo., who won the cherry pie baking contest for this year. The usher who took me down to present the cup remarked, "I'm sure she can't make as good cherry pie as my mother."

The inevitable remark of every man.

A REDINGOTE DRESS FOR MATURE FIGURES.

An all-purpose frock that is at home in town or country is this swank model. Not too many tricks to make you tire of it. A redingote dress with simple and slenderizing lines for the larger figures. All the best points have been thought out in this distinctive model to achieve a pleasing effect. The pride of the dress lies in the cascade jabot collar which drapes gently and gracefully, accenting the V-neckline. Another stunning feature is the gore skirt and dart fitted back. For warm weather comfort the dress advocates short sleeves, but you can also make it with full bishop sleeves tight fitted at the wrists. The swagger lap-over belt deserves an approving eye, doesn't it?

- MYSTERY HOUSE -

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALLMENT XXVIII.

"I don't think so. They've three nurses on the case. Mrs. Hibbs, his cousin, was here."

"Oh, that's so—she's his cousin! Did she see him?"

"She stood at the door and looked at him. She told me he was exactly like the picture of Edward Lynn, her aunt's son by the first marriage. She said that she had known of his marriage—the marriage of Lynn's father, but she had never known there was a child."

"You told her everything?"

"A good deal: about Trudy Mockbee's taking her aunt's place, and about your having the diamond safe. She says it's all clear now, clear why her aunt wouldn't see her—why there was so much secrecy. And she feels, as I do, and I suppose as you do, that there'll have to be an investigation about the two deaths—Mrs. Prendergast's and Mrs. Roy's."

"They never could prove anything," Page said, shaking her head. "Fraud they could prove, and forgery, but not murder. In each case there were outside doctors—no witnesses against them."

"Moving the body of Mrs. Prendergast wasn't such a good note," Barnes suggested, and Page laughed weakly at the simple phraseology.

"Is it a crime?"

"You bet your life it's a crime. Oh, they've plenty to hold them on," Barnes said.

"Are they going to arrest them?"

"Yes; police everywhere are on the lookout. They think Flora and the old woman were going to drive east, but it seems more likely now that they made straight for the Mexican border. Harwood lived there for awhile, it seems."

"On his sabbatical year from China he was in Mexico."

"Smuggling dope, probably. They say there's a regular nest of it in there."

"Poor Flora!" Page said thoughtfully.

"Well, now about you. My mother wants to know if you'll come to a perfectly simple home dinner at our house tonight. Nobody but my college sister and my married sister."

"I'm too much worried about Lynn tonight," Page said simply.

"But getting out for an hour or two won't do you any harm, and we can stop in on the way. I've my car here, and we'll say 'hello' at your boarding-house to Mrs. Chayne. Do come, Page, it'll do you good to get out and see things!"

"I feel as if I had been dead, and had been brought back to life."

They stopped at Lynn's door on their way out. The nurse whispered to them in the hall. No change! He was just—resting. Had he had any nourishment? No; the doctors thought it better not. He had asked for Miss Hazeltyne; he had been asking for "Page" right along, but Dr. Alloessar thought it better for him not to see anyone today.

Barnes drove about the twilighted streets, and Page saw the movie signs flashing, and the little housewives of Mission street going into the delicatessen stores for sausages and chipped beef. She saw the white fog creeping down over Twin Peaks from the veiled sunset in the west, and thought of the Rock and that the fogs would long before this haze enveloped it in impenetrable whiteness. She touches her shoulder against Barnes with a sudden confiding movement that brought his eyes to her.

"You and I will not be together tonight, Barnes. We'll never forget it, will we? Hours and hours and hours there in that dark, cold cave. Hours and hours and hours without anything to cook or to eat!"

"I'll never forget you, standing it all, climbing up to that accursed beacon, shouting at the shore!"

"I'll never forget your saying over and over agin, 'We'll get out of this. We'll laugh at this!' "Well," Page said in a voice that had no laughter in it, "here we are. But not—exactly laughing."

"I don't know that after his fall anything would have saved Lynn," Barnes said, answering her tone rather than her words.

"They think he can't be saved, then?" she asked in quick fear.

"I don't know, Page. They said that the shoulder should have been operated on immediately. It was four days, you know."

Page did not speak, and after a moment Barnes said.

"Four days! This is Sunday night, and it was only Thursday when I went I went down to Halfmoon Bay. But of course it's changed all my life. It seems impossible to me," he went on slowly as she did not speak. "it seems impossible to me that I can go on without you. You've simply become—everything. Every girl I see makes me think of you. Those days on the Rock seem to me the only days I've ever lived: I know it's no use; I know it's no use. But I have to tell you!"

"I would want you to tell me," Page said mildly. "I'm sorry," she added, as an afterthought. "It's too bad, isn't it? But— you see, Barnes—there's nobody else but Lynn! And if Lynn dies," Page said steadily, "I'd—I'd . . ." Her voice thickened; she beat her two hands together. "Oh, well, we will just have to wait until they know how sick he is!" she said with a forced composure that was harder for him to see than any abandonment of grief could have been.

His mother and sisters were gentle with her, and he knew she liked them. She was quiet at the family dinner, but it was not an unnatural quiet, their glances said, for a girl who had been through the frightful experience from which she and Barnes had just emerged. Barnes talked, and now and then Page spoke, but she was restless after the meal was over and at about 9 o'clock Barnes took her back to the hospital and to Lynn's door.

No change. He was resting nicely. Fever? The nurse did not know, but the doctor would be in at any time now, and Miss Hazeltyine could then talk to him. Page knew that professional vagueness. She had a chair set in the wide empty hall and waited for the doctor.

At 3 o'clock in the dark of the early morning Lynn was taken up to the surgery. At 8 the next morning Barnes came quietly into the hospital to discover that while Page had changed her suit—the suit she had worn through all those days on the Rock—for a nurse's trim white uniform, she had not undressed and gone to bed all night long. Lynn was very ill. He had had a few moments of consciousness and Page had seen him; he had immediately lapsed back into his muttering coma again.

"He's pretty bad, is he?"

"They say so. They telephoned for Mrs. Hibbs at 4. But now she's gone home again. But he's so horribly—weak," Page said in a whisper, her cheeks wet. She and Barnes went out, came back again. Lynn still breathed, and now, with an abandonment of caution whose significance did not escape her, they let her go into his room. She knew why. . . . They thought he was dying.

Not knowing what she did, Page sat down beside his bed and murmured to him, and he opened his heavy eyes and looked at her painfully as a man looks who knows not reality from dreams. She linked her hand in his hand. Presently he was lightly, restlessly asleep.

The clock's hands moved. Daylight dropped on the white wall, lay in clean angles on the floor, was gone. Nurses noiselessly brought pillows. Page's back was luxuriously braced. Somebody took off her shoes, wrapped her feet in a warm blanket that held a hot water bottle. Somebody else held soup of just the right temperature at her lips. Five o'clock, with the subdued clinking of trays in the hospital corridor and the smell of toast everywhere. Six o'clock, with winter blackness at the windows, and still Lynn, fretting sometimes, muttering sometimes of the gulls and the noise of the sea, slept on.

A doctor wrote "Faint?" on a card, and held it before Page's eyes—eyes that were heavy now in the hooded lamplight. She shook her head with a white smile; the vigil went on. Long afterward they told her that those eight solid hours of sleep then had been the miracle that had saved him.

Coming into a hospital room that was filled with spring sunshine two weeks later, Page sent a quick glance toward the man who was sitting propped in pillows in the bed. His fine eyes still sunken, were fixed on her expectantly. She nodded at him with a reassuring smile, before setting the various things she had brought with her in their right places. His fountain pen was filled and went on the table beside his bed; his pajamas had been returned fresh and crisp from the laundry; there were magagines; there was a green paper box with wet violets in it and a small green glass bowl.

She did not look at Lynn while she went about, but he watched her steadily, contentedly. When at last she came to sit beside him and laid a hand in his, he gave a great sigh of relief.

"Always so horribly afraid you won't come back, Page, when you go away at night!"

"Goose!" she said. And for a moment of silence they smiled at each other. "You look quite specially rested and fine today," Page said then.

"It's because you're here," Lynn responded simply.

"I'm here, nothing! she scoffed. "You look as if you'd liked your breakfast and slept 10 hours and sat up in the sunshine!"

"All of which I did, Page," the man said, in his low somewhat hesitant voice.

"Wonderful!" she approved. "What did he say about going out for a drive tomorrow?"

"You to be with me?" The old anxiety—it was so much lessened now, but it was there!—was in eyes and voice as he spoke. His thin fingers tightened on her hand.

"You don't need me any more, Lynn. But, of course, I'll be with you—I see myself letting you move hand or foot without me! Only you could do anything or go anywhere now, without me."

"Perhaps physically I could," he agreed, speaking slowly his troubled eyes reading her eyes, "but—but inside me, Page, I'm still frightened—I still dream that I'm—back there—back at Mystery House—back on the Rock! We'll never have to see it again, will we? We'll slip away, you and I—just you and I, and you'll always be with me wherever we go, won't you?"

"To the end of our lives," the girl said smilingly, as she raised her eyes full upon his pleading look. "Are you going to ask me that question every few hours?"

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph.D.

The expression "crazy as a loon" is very unfair to the intelligence of this bird. The loon is really quite a sensible bird and is no more crazy than any other normal bird. The idea that a loon is crazy has probably arisen from the fact that during the mating season the far-carrying cry of this bird sounds at a distance like the wild, demoniacal laughter of the insane. These birds are widely distributed in the northern hemisphere and are fish-eating and diving birds. The northern loon is about three feet long.

VISITS IN CALIFORNIA.
IX—HOLLYWOOD.

In years gone by, Hollywood was a city separate from Los Angeles. It was named for "the Hollywood farm" which it covered, and that farm had been so called because of the large number of holly trees growing on it. In 1910, Hollywood was taken in as a part of the city of Los Angeles, and so remains today.

There are about 30,000 persons working in Hollywood moving picture industry. That number includes the cameramen, light men and stage carpenters, as well as the actors and actresses, the directors and their staffs.

A Spanish-style house in Hollywood.

In all that great army of picture workers. There are about 30 major stars and 70 lesser stars. They earn great sums of money—often from $2,000 to $7,000 per week. They live in large houses, few of which have less than 15 rooms, and some of which are mansions with 40 or more rooms.

In early years of "movie-making," most of the stars made their homes in Hollywood, but now the majority live in Beverly Hills. The making of movies still goes on largely in Hollywood, but there are moving picture studios in near-by places, such as Burbank, Culver City and Universal City.

Ranking under the stars are the "featured players" and the "bit players," who together are said to number close to 3,000. The featured players have important speaking parts, but not the main parts. The bit players may speak only a very few words in an entire film, but they rank above the "extras" who form an army from 15,000 to 20,000.

Some of the extras in Hollywood told me that their lives are far from smooth-flowing. "I get five dollars a day when I work," said one, "and I haven't had a call for three weeks."

The extras range widely in age. Some are children, while others are well past middle age. One with whom I chatted was a woman with graying hair, whose son sends her enough money to cover the bare cost of her room and board. Once in a while, she obtains work for a day or two as an extra player—but always she is hoping for better fortune.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

My husband makes a very small salary which has shrunk every year. Our children are poorly dressed. One child is actually taking free milk at school. Like many other families we are victims of the depression. Two of the children are in school and too young to work. The others are too young to leave at home by themselves; so I can't go out for a job. In spite of all this my husband is carrying on with a married woman who is 34 years old, not a flapper. I love him. I don't want to leave him and even if I did I couldn't because there would be nothing for the children to eat. I know that he will come back to his family and this woman will be the loser in the end. But oh it is so hard to endure things as they are. Please tell me this: What is a woman thinking about when she will inflict such torture on a poor wife?

DISTRACTED.

Answer: Of course the woman who tortures a poor wife isn't thinking. She is plunging headlong down a precipice and will do her thinking when she reaches the bottom, which, as you suggest, is only a matter of time. It seems as though pity for the wife would stay her but it doesn't because the man put up a stronger appeal for her pity. Her vanity is tickled by his lying confidences. Her maternal instincts are often roused by his unhappy plight. Isn't this the way it works?

The husband is worried and harassed by his failure to provide for his family. When he comes home in the evening there are reminders on every hand that he is failing to do what is expected of him and what he expected to do. His wife is a hard-worked and bedraggled person.

The children are ragged and possibly hungry. The rent is unpaid. Necessarily these are topics of conversation when he is at home. Every word that is spoken is a rebuke to him. Sick, defeated, spirit broken he goes out to find solace. Here is a married woman who sympathizes with him. He doesn't have to put up money for this entertainment. There is no obligation of a financial sort to embarrass him. She is well-groomed, well-dressed, light-hearted and happy because she has the things his wife hasn't. He turns his sad pan face toward her sobs about mama's misunderstanding him, her failure to sympathize with him and his desperate need of a comforting lap to put his head in. Now he has found escape from the misery of his poverty and the reproaching eyes at home that make him feel like the shrimp he is.

He doesn't let fall any hint of his failures. He doesn't mention the fact that his wife hasn't had a new dress for five years and that the children are ragged and hungry. He paints a fine picture of himself as a martyr to an unhappy marriage, and the gullible woman believes him. Here's the hope: The truth, like murder, usually outs. Some day she will find him out and put the skids under him unless perchance he gets sickened with his own deceit and slinks home before she does.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

BUILDING OF HOMES APPROACHES BOOM

Demand for Lots Heavy, Atlanta and Decatur Realtors Report.

Many Atlanta and Decatur realtors yesterday reported it almost impossible to supply demands for lots on which to construct homes. With the coming of warmth and sunshine, which realtors and builders have awaited for months, many said they thought Atlanta was on the verge of a building boom.

Homes costing a total of more than $120,000 are now under construction in Tuxedo Park, exclusive subdivision north of Pace's Ferry road, it was reported. The constrution of other residences at a total cost of $130,000 in that section is being contemplated.

Award of a contract to H. W. Nichols for a home at 124 Brighton road, to be built by the Burdett Realty Company, was announced yesterday. This residence, a two-story structure, will be built of brick and will have nine rooms and two baths. Excavation already has begun.

A two-story, nine-room home at 1100 Berkshire is being planned by the Land Lot Three Realty Company. Plans for another two-story residence at 1597 Sussex also were announced.

Henry F. Shorter will erect a brick veneer residence on West Hunter terrace. Another large two-story residence is being planned by J. P. Allen Jr., for erection on Howell Mill road near Peachtree Battle avenue, it was announced.

FAT AS A FREAK

But now as slender and as Graceful as an Artist's Model

I couldn't help but overhear what they said about me . . . cruel, sarcastic, biting things about my fat. It was awful. I was a social outcast in spite of diet, exercise and drastic purgatives. For nothing did me any good. Everything I ate turned to fat.

Then, a real friend told me of a simple corrective for abnormal obesity, prescribed by doctors the world over. Now put up in convenient tablets containing the right quantity. I took 4 a day. Results were amazing. I ate what I liked, took no purgatives or exercise, yet all that excess fat disappeared. Today I'm as slender and graceful as an artist's model.

That is what thousands who have reduced the Marmola way might well tell you if they had the chance. Would you like to learn their secret? Then buy a package of Marmola, read the simple directions, and start at once to get rid of burdensome fat!

Marmola is put up by one of the best known medical laboratories in America. Since 1907 men and women have purchased more than 20 million packages. Could any better recommendation be had?

Start today! You will soon experience Marmola's benefits. When you have gone far enough, stop taking Marmola. And you will bless the day when you first discovered this marvelous reducing agent!

Marmola is on sale by all dealers—from coast to coast!

NANCY PAGE

Bias Trimming Heads This Dress Straight for Admiration.

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

Nancy was making a new dress for Susan. By rights the dress should have been put into the gift box, but teh child needed the dress, so just so soon as Nancy finished it the youngster put it on and wore it with great pride.

The dress was made from a simple pattern with turn down collar, short puffed sleeves with turn back cuffs, and an inverted pleat going down the entire front. The pleat is stitched from neckline down to yoke length, but from there on it is left open. Nancy made a line of machine stitching on the extreme edge of each side of the pleat. This makes ironing easier and keeps the dress hanging better.

In trimming the dress Nancy planned to use bias tape. But just how she should put it on was a question. Nancy developed three ideas which you may use if you send for her leaflet. The first method illustrated corresponds to the dress that Susan is wearing. Bias tape in three groups of two rows each is spaced at intervals. The first two lines are stitched straight across the inverted pleat. They mark, as it were, the end of the stitched yoke. A small pearl button is attached at the ends of the strips.

The next two groups extend down in under the inverted pleat, so that as it flares open the bands are seen. Buttons make the finish for these bandings also.

The second method uses two pockets outlined in anchor fashion by the bias tape. A red round composition button is sewed on the dress above the pocket. A loop of buttonholing slips over the buttons. One of the pockets is placed at the upper right near the yoke part and the other is down on the skirt of the frock on the lower left.

The third method which Nancy considered, and which is shown in the direction leaflet, outlines a vestee on the yoke. A bowknot of bias tape stitched in place is at the lower right of the vestee. Each end of the tape bowknot is finished with a round red button. Get the leaflet by following the directions given at the end of the column.

Direction leaflet for "Bias Trimming designs on child's dress" may be had by sending three cents and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Nancy Page, care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Highway Users' Meeting Urges Universal Drivers' License Law

With adequate driver's license laws universally regarded as one of the most important means of reducing the nation's toll of the highway fatalities and injuries, at least 5,000,000 motor vehicles in 11 states still are operating without any driver's licensing control, it was revealed yesterday by the National Highway Users' Conference.

The driver's license law is particularly interesting to Georgians because of the fight which was carried on during a past session of the general assembly to enact such a law in this state. The situation was all the more interesting because the law failed to carry through the assembly in spite of the fact that it was generally favored by the people and apparently well supported in the legislature.

A communication from the national conference to The Constitution Safety Council showed, among other things, extreme differences between the states in the methods of procedure in granting licenses.

A national uniformity, both in the use of a driver's license and in the methods of issuing and using, is desired by the conference.

Far From Goal.

"Even in the important matter of the licensing of operators," the conference declared, "we are still far from the goal of uniformity.

"Although a model driver's license act was developed back in 1924 by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety as part of the uniform motor vehicle code, we find that 11 states with some 5,000,000 registered motor vehicles have not as yet adopted a state driver's license law.

"Figuring an average of one and one-half drivers to every vehicle, it means that we have more than 7,000,000 unlicensed operators in Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Illinois, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Wyoming."

The lack of uniformity in the use and administration of driver's licenses was deplored by the conference in its letter to the Safety Council.

"This lack of uniformity has a direct bearing on safety conditions because a driver's license is a powerful factor in control," the conference declared. "The power which the courts and authorities have to suspend or revoke licenses on the basis of major offenses should be strengthened by extension of licensing laws to all states and by injection of uniformity into those laws."

May Have Law.

At some future time Georgia may have a state driver's license law. Some general assembly of this state may take it upon itself to pass such a law in behalf of the safety of the drivers and pedestrians of Georgia. When and if the law is passed, it is probable that the ghastly annual toll of dead and injured from automobile crashes in this state will decrease greatly.

Not many motorists would like to be prohibited from driving for six months or a year.

But until something of that sort is done, individual thinking drivers must carry on the fight for sanity and safety of Georgia's streets and highways.

Pledge yourself to drive safely this morning. Clip out the safe driving pledge found in this issue, sign it and mail it to the Safety Council, Atlanta Constitution, with a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Display those red and white pledge signer stickers which will be sent you on the front and rear window of your car as a reminder for yourself and as a warning to others that the growing army of safe drivers in Georgia has outlawed highway "murders."

End Bad Cough Quickly, at One Fourth the Cost

Home-Mixed! No Cooking! Easy!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a much more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs only one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up distressing coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly, and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, helping clear the air passages, and soothing away the irritation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its soothing effect on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

USE BASIC MENU FOR FAMILY

When you need to lose weight, your husband needs to gain, your small daughter has no appetite and Sonny eats anything and everything at all times of the day — then family dietetics gets to be a problem.

Ida Jean Kain.

But adjusting the menu to the various calorie needs and capricious appetites of your family is easier, now that we know something about food. Four different diets are not required. Practical application of food science makes the problem less difficult than it sounds.

All members of the family need the same basic diet. Some require additional calories for either weight or energy, however, while you must curtail your own calorie allowance, in order to use up the calories stored under your chin and about your waist.

Your first concern is planning the day's menu is to include the food elements essential to health—proteins in some form, such as meat, eggs, cheese and milk; vitamins and minerals—the protective elements—in fruit, vegetables, dairy products and whole grains.

Now, apply this fundamental food knowledge to the three meals of the day. Begin with a breakfast menu of orange juice, grapefruit or tomato juice, whole grain cereal, buttered whole wheat toast, coffee and milk. This menu can be adapted to each member of the family. Fruit or fruit juice supplies Vitamin C and is for all members of the family. The whole grain cereal is an economical source of Vitamin B. This vitamin is essential to growth and stimulates the lagging appetites of your husband and daughter. You also need Vitamin B and this is one element which is only too likely to be inadequately supplied in a low calorie diet.

Cereals for your husband, daughter and husky son may be served with whole milk, plus cream and chopped dates, raisins or figs. Have your own cereal with skimmed milk only and without the fruit.

Whole wheat grain bread is another good source of Vitamin B, and should always be used in the reducer's diet. Of course, you must use very little butter on your toast, but butter, as well as being high in calories, is a source of Vitamin A, and may be used liberally by the thin members of your family. Another addition in calories may be supplied in jam for their breakfast, though jam is taboo in your own diet.

Your son and daughter should have whole milk. Every child needs one quart of milk daily, but no child should ever be given coffee. Measure both cream and sugar for your coffee. But for your husband—the more cream and the less coffee he has the better.

From this meal you may see that a basic menu is easily adapted to meet individual food requirements.

And it is already lunch time! Why not have a soup and a salad—or a sandwich and fruit—and a beverage? With either menu, fat is the principal calorie source. Use reducer's dressing on your salad, and go without butter on your sandwich for a weight losing luncheon on your part.

For dinner there will be, of course, a protein dish of meat or eggs in some form. No gravy for you! Potatoes may be baked, then mashed with plenty of butter for the gainers, but only the stipulated one-half pat for the reducer. One or two cooked vegetables are also included. Take yours without cream sauce. The salad to supply raw fruits or vegetables may be mixed with cream for your family and with reducer's dressing or vinegar for you.

For dessert, the reducer should choose fresh or cooked fruit, but extra calories for the gainers may be supplied in rice custard, tapioca pudding, date pudding, etc.

Apply food knowledge to add or subtract calories according to the requirements of each member of the family, and reduce or gain on the same menu.

For Reducer's Diet send a stamped addressed envelope to Miss Kain, care The Constitution.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

"SWING" HANDS.

In an ordinary session of rubber bridge, approximately 40 hands will be played. Of that number, unless the cards are running unusually "freakishly," well over half will be cut and dried, producing a certain number of tricks on the most ordinary play. Another 10 or 12 will offer some problem of opening leads, general defense, or dummy management. And, finally, there will be a few, sometimes only one or two, that have come to be known as the "swing" hands, deals from which large gains will accrue to the team that best rises to the emergency.

It is these crucial hands, with their demand for the utmost nicety in bidding and play, that create the true enthusiast's zest for the game. Incidentally, the final score of each player will be found to reflect, to an enormous degree, the direction in which the "swing" hands have swung!

A Difficult Hand.

In recent articles, I have told so many stories on myself, in which I figured as the absent-minded professor, that I may, perhaps, be pardoned for a slight digression to the always enjoyable pastime of "horn blowing." I was for a welcome change the hero in the hand described below.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 Spade	Pass
2 Spades	Pass	3 Spades	Pass
4 Spades	Pass	Pass	Double
			[final bid]

I was South, the declarer. West opened the nine of diamonds and East's king forced my ace. I could see that I would have no "cinch" with this hand. I knew West to be a conservative doubler, and had no doubt that I was going to find a bad break in trumps. The diamond lead did, however, place an important card for me. West could not have led the nine from any combination including the jack, therefore East must hold that card.

I entered dummy with the heart ace and finessed for the diamond jack. As I had expected, West ruffed my ten. He then led a small heart. When East put up the king, I no longer had any doubt as to the location of the king of clubs—west must have it for his double, along with the trump honors. I ruffed the heart and laid down the diamond queen. I could not afford to remove dummy's ace of clubs for another diamond finesse. West ruffed again, and again forced me in hearts. I ruffed and led the ace of trumps. Now my diamond was led and West was trapped. If he ruffed with the king, I would discard dummy's losing club. He chose to discard a club, but this was no obstacle. I ruffed the fourth heart in my own hand. Then I threw West in the lead with the king of trumps and he was forced to lead away from his club tenace, giving me the last three tricks. In this way, I managed to hold the opponents to three trump tricks.

Magnificent defense by West would have made the contract impossible to fulfill. If he had discarded on the second diamond play and waited to trump my queen, no coup of mine could have succeeded. On the other hand, the lead of a single trump by me at an early stage also would have been fatal. Rarely have I seen a hand so complicated from both the declarer's and the defenders' points of view.

Today's Question.

Question: What is the correct opening bid on the following hand: Spades K J x; hearts, A Q 10; diamonds, A J x; clubs, K J x x?

Answer: One no-trump is the correct opening bid.

Gene Sarazen rates the Masters' tournament to be played in Augusta in April, as second only to the National open.

"There is a tournament in which the boys have some feeling about things," he said. "I mean it is one in which they want to finish ahead of one another. It isn't like one of these pleasant little opens."

The Gadfly of Golf is quite correct. The third Masters' tournament is to be the greatest one yet. The boys are coming there with blood in their optics. And largely on account of this same Eugene Sarazen.

They want to finish ahead of the others. But most of all they want to finish ahead of Eugene Sarazen.

He loves that. He knows that in their rage they likely will "press." While Gene Sarazen will remain cool and sure. It will be quite a show with Lawson Little and all the professional field shooting for first place.

ONCE WORTH $100,000.

The open golf championship used to be worth an estimated minimum of $100,000.

When Sam Parks Jr. won the open on the slippery greens at Oakmont last year, he provided golf with its greatest upset. During the remainder of the season he played in the winter tournaments.

The figures recently released by Bob Harlow, of the P. G. A.'s winter tour bureau, show that in 12 events, the open champion won $1,889. Of this amount, $1,000 was won in the open. This leaves the amount of $889 won in 11 golf tournaments.

This does not mean, of course, that Sam Parks Jr. has had no other golf income. His club salary was increased and he had other items of revenue which came with the winning of the championship. Nevertheless, it seems safe to say that it has meant less to Parks than to any other open champion.

And the fact that he has not been able to finish well up in any competition with his fellow professionals, makes all the more startling his victory over the entire field at Oakmont. Not only can anything happen in golf. But it usually does happen.

THE BIG MONEY WINNERS.

The big money makers in golf have been, of course, Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen. Sarazen estimates he has made on the average of $25,000 per year from golf.

Walter Hagen has made more than $1,000,000 in his amazing string of years. The big years are behind him. Yet he goes along, threatening today with great rounds, at least one, in each tournament.

The winter tournament players never make fabulous sums. Johnny Revolta led last year with winnings of $9,543.

Jimmy Braddock, the world's heavyweight champion, will make that much on a two weeks' tour which he is now engaged in making.

Most of the winter golfers, of course, are taking the tour as a "university course" in golf. They can learn, in one winter tour, just what they have in the way of a golf game.

THE RASSLING PROBLEM.

Our best rassling minds are rassling with a new problem.

Danno O'Mahoney ran out on a match a few days ago and is suspended in all sections.

His time in this land of the free is about up. He soon must hie himself back to Ireland and his post in the Irish guards. He may take the title with him.

In fact, the latest word is that Danno will do that very thing. He will hie himself hence with the title.

Meanwhile, Jim Londos has returned to the wars.

A guess that he will be the next champion wouldn't be bad. He can toss any of our lads.

HENRY WEBER RESTS.

Henry Weber, the Atlanta wrestling promoter, is ill at St. Joseph's hospital. A prolonged cold and influenza sent him there for a rest of a week. When his rest is done, he plans to come back with another match and another battle royal which, according to reports, pleased his patrons Tuesday night.

MANGIN LEADS BIG ENTRY LIST

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Sixty-four players headed by Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., were drawn today for the national indoor singles tennis championship starting Saturday on the board courts of the Seventh Regiment armory.

Mangin, winner of the title in 1932-33-35, was placed at the top of eight seeded American players, including three "first ten" luminaries. Mangin is ranked sixth in the nation. The other two are Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., No. 8, and Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., No. 9.

They rank one-two-three in the seeding. The other preferred players are Frank Bowden, of New York; Henry Culley, of Santa Barbara, Cal.; Leonard Hartmann, Bill Feibelemann and Dr. Lawrence Kurzrok, of New York.

Mangin was placed at the top of the lower half of the draw. Hines and Culley loom as his principal obstacles to the final.

Karl Schroeder, of Sweden, one of Europe's foremost covered court players, was strategically placed at the bottom of the upper half. Hall, Bowden, Hartman and Feibleman are in the same division.

Schroeder's first round opposition will be furnished by Armand Bruneau, of New York. Assuming he plays up to form, it is likely Schroeder will be tested until the quarter-final round when he might meet Bowden.

Seven colleges are represented, Penn, North Carolina, Yale, Princeton, Columbia, New York University and St. John's of Brooklyn. The North Carolina entries are Edward De Gray, John Foreman, Ernest Byfield and Mace Gwyer.

RED SOX TEAM TO GRAB FLAG, CLAIMS CRONIN

Foxx, McNair, Cramer Expected To Make Big Difference.

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Manager Joe Cronin, generally cautious in his public pronouncements, was on record today with a prediction his Boston Red Sox would win the American league baseball pennant.

While visiting his father-in-law, Owner Clark Griffith, of the Washington club, and looking over his former charges, Cronin told newsmen he figured Boston had the power and all-round strength this season to nose out the defending champions from Detroit.

"Unless Al Simmons makes a mighty difference in the Tigers, the Red Sox will win," he said.

Cronin thinks that with the ecquisition of Jimmy Foxx, Eric McNair, Roger Cramer and Johnny Marcum, the Red Sox will be at least 12 games better than a year ago.

"A lot depends on Fritz Ostermuller," he explained. Fritz is the southpaw who suffered a broken foot and jaw last summer. "We'll need him to round out a four-man pitching staff."

Cronin said he had reports Lefty Grove and Wes Ferrell were "in great shape and I'm counting on that pair to go just as well this year as in 1935."

Marcum will round out the big four. Cronin feels that with a pennant-contending club, Marcum may move into the 20-victories class.

Cronin hasn't decided where Bill Werber, last year's third baseman, will be used. "Werber will be on the club. He's too good a man to leave off. He may be third again," the manager said.

No Bait Used To Land Big Garfish

The prize fishing story of the week—and one whose truth is attested by witnesses—is told by C. H. Ball, a negro minister, whose address is 898 Coleman street, S. W.

Ball startled downtown Atlanta late Tuesday when, with the aid of his brother, he hauled a still-breathing 15-pound garfish into the sports department of The Atlanta Constitution.

Fishing off Austell bridge in the Chattahoochee river, Rev. Ball, despairing of his ill luck, stripped the bait from his hook, and prepared to call it a day. Then, close to the bank, he saw and heard the huge and dangerous fish, which apparently was having his afternoon workout.

The negro preacher nervously slipped his hook against the side of the river terror. And it held. He dragged his monstrous victim ashore (praying all the time he says) and then when it seemed the garfish would squirm free and make its way back into the river, Rev. Ball dived for his catch, and firmly caught the fish by its jagged mouth.

This killer of the river was more than four feet long.

Y MATMEN FACE WEST GEORGIANS

Bowen David, Mike Warr and Guy Lichlyter, of the Atlanta Y. M. C. A., won over their opponents in the match between the Atlanta and Chattanooga Y. M. C. A.'s in Chattanooga.

David, 118-pounder, won a decision over David Wright, of Chattanooga. Mike Warr and Guy Lichlyter both won with falls over Tom Darras and E. Vandegriff with wrist locks. Jack Deacon lost a decision to V. Stone, of the Chattanooga champions. H. P. Davis, of Chattanooga, beat Clyde Holland on a decision as did S. Eeland over Jim Pantella, of the "Y."

The final score was Chattanooga 19, Atlanta 13. Two matches were forfeited to the Chattanooga team.

The Atlanta team meets the West Georgia College eight here Saturday night. As a double-header the G. M. A. boxing team will meet the Atlanta team.

The Atlanta Y. M. C. A. will send a complete team to the Southeastern A. A. U. boxing tournament in Memphis, March 17 through 21.

Smithie Ringmen Beat Cadets, 10-1

A. forfeited matches in three divisions, and of the eight staged was returned winner only in the first, in which Taylor, a southpaw, decisioned Owens.

It was the second victory for the Smithies over the Cadets and kept them ahead of Boys' High in the city race.

Coach Bill Ward plans to take his Cadet sluggers to Charlotte for a battle with Central High in a few weeks. They drew in an earlier match.

Metro Golf Meet Lost to Atlanta

Atlanta's chances of holding the third Metropolitan open golf championship tournament appeared lost Wednesday, as members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce have abandoned all plans of staging the event this year.

Inability to find an "angel" who would sponsor the tournament, following two years of reverses, has prompted the Junior Chamber to drop plans, according to Jake Crouch, the president.

YANKS INCREASE 'FARM' SYSTEM

Bassett, Rogers Clubs Have Working Agreements With New York

NEWARK, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The New York Yankees added two more minor league baseball clubs to their "farm system" today.

George M. Weiss, general manager of the Yankees' farm chain and vice president of the Newark baseball club, announced working agreements have been made with the Rogers club, of the Arkansas State league, and the Basset, Va., team in the Bi-State league.

He said the Butler team, of the Pennsylvania State league, would replace the Washington team as the Yankee farm club in that circuit.

The new additions raise the total of Yankee-affiliated clubs to nine. The Yankees own four outright, the Newark Bears, of the International league; Binghamton, N. Y., of the New York-Pennsylvania league; Norfolk, Va., of the Piedmont league, and Akron, Ohio, Middle Atlantic league.

Besides the Rogers and Basset clubs, working agreements have been made with Oakland, Cal., Pacific Coast league; Joplin, Mo., Western association, and Butler, Pennsylvania State league.

Bostwick Will Ride In English Classic

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(UP)—Tiny Pete Bostwick, polo player and gentleman jockey, sailed for England today confident he would become the first American rider to pilot a winner in the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree.

Bostwick, so small he barely can see over the top of his mount, will ride Castle Irwell, a seven-year-old Irish-bred gelding, in his third attempt to win the steeplechase on March 27.

Marshall Mauldin Off For White Sox Camp

Atlanta Boy Has Good Chance To Stick With Chisox; Appling Adamant.

By Jack Troy.

Marshall Mauldin departed the city yesterday for Pasadena, Cal., where he will join the Chicago White Sox in spring training.

Luke Appling, star Chisox shortstop and close friend of Mauldin, bade him goodbye and sent his regards to teammates and Manager Jimmy Dykes.

Appling, who has fired a second contract back to White Sox officials unsigned, says he will not consider joining the team at camp until his demands for a $1,200 raise are met.

The White Sox have offered Appling a $500 raise, but he isn't interested. He feels that if he is not worth the figure he asks he isn't worth anything. Appling is understood to have been paid a salary of $10,000 last year.

BEST SHORTSTOP.

However, he was the only shortstop in either league to play every game. He hit above .300 and fielded well. And he is one of the best shortstops in baseball.

Appling doesn't think he is acting unreasonably. He has never kicked on salary terms before. But he figures now that he is entitled to an increase and says if he doesn't get it, he will spend the summer here.

Luke thinks highly of Mauldin's chances to stay with the White Sox. Mauldin is an outfielder, has a good arm and is a promising hitter.

SECOND CHANCE.

It is not Mauldin's first trial with the Chisox. He played 12 games with the club in 1934.

A few of the reasons why Appling believes Mauldin will stay with the White Sox follow:

1—Mauldin batted .337 with Longview in the West Dixie league last year. He played 134 games, missing only one.

2—He made the most hits, 179, and was second in fielding. He was selected on the all-star team.

3—He was second in total bases with 243, hit five homers, nine triples and 33 doubles.

Mauldin is 5 feet 11 inches and weighs 166 pounds. He was married this winter. Appling was his best man.

Game Division Announces Close

The Department of Game and Fish called attention today to the closing on March 1 of the hunting season for quail and wild turkey.

With the end of the season for quail and turkey, there comes to a close the open hunting season for all game, foxes and rabbits excepted.

"We believe," the department announced, "that we are carrying over the largest brood stock of the last 10 years. This was due to the inclement weather that decreased hunting.

"Those hunters that entered the fields observed the laws better, also attributing to the large carryover of brood stock."

The department said figures on arrests and licenses would not be available until March 1.

Jack Doyle Says Jimmy Braddock Will Beat Louis

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Jack Doyle, New York betting commissioner, thinks Jimmy Braddock "is the greatest fighter alive" but he's quoting Joe Louis as a one-to-three favorite against the champion in his "future book."

He rates Braddock's odds at five to two.

"Now, remember," Doyle explained, "I'm just quoting those odds—the public's making them. There are a great many people who think Braddock is the greatest fighter alive—and I'm one of them."

"Joe Louis may be great," he continued, "but he's still got to prove it to my satisfaction. He beat Carnera when Primo had a broken foot. He defeated Baer when Max had a 'Louis complex.'"

The big question in Doyle's mind is "Can Louis take it?"

From his own reply, he apparently doubts it. "No one will get in a 24-foot space with Braddock today and void being clipped," he declared. "Braddock is being underestimated. He's got a great left and a right that's full of dynamite."

In Doyle's "future" betting on Louis and Max Schmeling, the Detroit negro is a one-to-four choice, while the German would be about seven to two.

"Louis will still have to prove he's a better man against my own money," Doyle said.

He added: "I believe there's no need for a so-called 'white hope' while Jim Braddock is holding the title."

North Avenue Girls Win Over Marietta

Holbrook, of the losers, led the scoring with 17 points.

The Napsites' next game will be against Athens High in Athens Friday night at 7:30 o'clock. A game next Wednesday intervenes before the annual final clash of the season with the Washington Seminary team.

Cecil Travis Looks Good at Shortstop

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Two short workouts have convinced Manager Bucky Harris that Cecil Travis will be the Senators' shortstop this season.

KID ELBERFELD COMES TO TOWN

Veteran Ready for Opening of Baseball School Here Monday.

Norman Kid Elberfeld came to town yesterday. The fiery Kid, one of the stormiest players baseball has known, and one of the smartest, will open his baseball school at the new Warren field Monday morning, where he expects some 35 or 40 youngsters to answer the call. Mercer Harris and Shep Lauter will assist the former major league infielder with his tutoring of the lads.

As usual, Elberfeld was talking baseball, spinning yarns of the diamond—in his own magnetic manner. The Kid can spellbound an audience for hours with those inimitable stories—many which have to do with his own stirring career in the big show.

Elberfeld, who knows all the answers, and who has had great success developing young players, is 61 years old. And recently became a grandfather. The little fire-eater, who certainly has given the game he loves so well a great deal more than the game has returned to him, is still in marvelous condition. Elberfeld doesn't have to tell the kids how to play ball. He can show them. And will, beginning Monday morning.

GRIFFIN TO AID OLYMPIC TEAM

George Griffin, track coach at Georgia Tech, has been named head of the Olympic committee in Georgia to raise funds for sending the United States team to Germany.

Coach Griffin said the money will be raised by popular subscription, by a percentage of receipts from track meets and by other means.

Georgia is apt to have two and possibly four representatives at the Olympic games. Forrest Towns, Georgia's crack hurdler; Perrin Walker, Tech's sprint and decathlon star; Bobby Packard, Georgia sprinter, and Mickey Radutzky, brilliant welterweight boxer, are all candidates.

Towns is almost a certain bet to make the team. Walker is an outstanding prospect. Should he fail to measure up in the sprints, Griffin will try him in the decathlon. Packard may be a year or so away from stardom.

Radutzky, in boxing, is just about the class of the college boys. He's a brilliant boxer and can hit with either hand. He's very cool under fire.

GRID DONOR HONORED.

Mundorff To Use Ed Jones, Jordan If Big Ben Can't "Go."

By Jack Troy.

Hopeful that Ben Jones will respond to treatments being administered to a very painful stone bruise on his heel, Coach Roy Mundorff this morning will leave with the Georgia Tech basketball squad for Knoxville and the Southeastern conference tournament. The squad will travel by automobile.

The Jackets meet Vanderbilt, second ranking team in the conference, Friday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. This will be the second game of the afternoon. Georgia plays Auburn in the opener at 3:30 o'clock. If the Bulldogs beat the Tigers, they will play Tennessee in a night game.

Coach Mundorff is virtually spending as much time endeavoring to return Ben Jones to the team as he is to getting the boys ready for the opening game.

ACE SCORER.

The Canton boy, ace scorer of the team and one of the finest forwards in Dixie, suffered the injury in the Georgia game last Saturday night at Athens.

He was able to play but briefly against Tennessee Monday night at Knoxville and yesterday, as the Jackets returned to practice at the naval armory, Jones sat on the sidelines in civilian clothes.

He is unable to put any weight on the heel.

In the event that the bruise shows no tendency to heal by Friday afternoon, Tech will take the floor against Vanderbilt with Bill Jordan at forward with Ed Jones.

Both Jordan and Ed Jones are capable forwards, but they are not the natural shots or the ball handlers that Ben Jones is. The Tech team is not a one-man team but it is almost a safe conclusion that without Ben Jones the Jackets cannot survive the opening round.

GOT 22 POINTS.

Big Ben scored 22 points against Vandy at the A. A. C. with Captain Willie Geny guarding, or rather attempting to guard him. Jones shoots with either hand or both.

Of late Big Ben also has been playing a remarkable defensive game as well and has been getting the ball off the backboard his share of the time.

The combination Coach Roy Mundorff will start in case Ben Jones is definitely out includes Jordan and Ed Jones, as mentioned; Bo Johnston at center and Culver Kidd and Burtz Boulware at guards.

This combination was used in a long scrimmage with the freshmen yesterday. The freshmen took the pseudo parts of Vandy players.

COMBINATION CLICKS.

The combination was clicking splendidly, but it is always best to recall that pseudo players, at best, are never half so good as the real McCoy.

In addition to the five starters and Ben Jones, who may yet respond to the opening whistle, Coach Mundorff will take Lawrence Hays, Whack Hyder, Fletcher Sims, Joel Tierce and Hank Crawford to Knoxville.

The Jackets face a tough opening assignment, but they are not worried about it. The type of game they played Vandy here, with the Commodores very

BERG ADVANCES IN ORMOND PLAY WITH 7-5 WIN

Patty Cards Eagle Two on 13th To End Match.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26. (AP)—Turning on relentless power, red-headed Patty Berg combined long straight drives with a sound putting game today to continue her march in the south Atlantic women's championship golf tournament on the wind-swept Ormond Beach course.

Going to the 13th tee 6 up in her first-round match with Miss Alice Rutherford, of Aiken, S. C., Patty drove the green of the 213 yard, par-four hole and then rolled in a 25-foot putt for an eagle 2. Miss Rutherford took a par 4, and the match ended, 7 and 5.

Her eagle on the 13th allowed the Minneapolis girl to complete her first 31 holes of the tournament four under women's par. She was all even with standard figures today, but shot a 73, four under par, in the qualifying round Tuesday.

Miss Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., the defending champion, had no trouble disposing of her first-round opponent, Miss Mary Pietsch, of Evanston, Ill., 8 up and 7 to play. Miss Miley equaled par 38 for the first nine holes, took a par four on the 235-yard 10th, and ended the match taking a careless 6 on the 406-yard 11th.

The most spectacular match of the first round featured Hilda Livengood, 17-year-old Illinois state champion, and Miss Helen Dettweiler, of Washington, D. C., with Hilda, who must play Patty Berg tomorrow, finally winning on the 18th green, 1 up.

Miss Dettweiler was 2 down going to the seventh. She watched Hilda drop her ball stoney dead, 18 inches from the pin. Then Helen chose a No. 1 iron and sent her tee shot into the cup for a hole in one. The ball bounced once, hit the flag and fell in. Miss Livengood got her birdie two but lost the hole.

Mrs. L. K. Zech, of Chicago, defeated Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo, N. Y., 1 up, to turn in the day's big upset.

'GATORS DECLINE.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Feb. 26.—(AP) Coach Carlos Proctor, of the University of Florida boxing team, announced today that the 'Gators would not enter the Southeastern conference tournament scheduled to be held in New Orleans March 6 and 7.

to work yesterday in the downtown financial section. He has been ill with influenza.

Yates recently had a curious experience. Some months ago Joyce Wethered appeared in Atlanta. She was in an exhibition match which included Bobby Jones, Dorothy Kirby and Charlie Yates.

During the match, one of the gallery asked for autographs and presented a dollar bill for the writing of the names. Yates wrote his along with the others.

A few weeks ago as he was working with the money in his daily job, he noticed writing on one of them. He investigated and discovered it was the bill he and his fellow golfers had autographed on the golf course.

Of all the dollar bills in the world, this one came back to one of two men who had written his name on it months before.

NOLEN RICHARDSON.

Nolen Richardson writes from the great open spaces he has signed his contract and will report to the Yankee training camp at St. Petersburg on March 7.

If the Atlanta boy gets a real chance, he will stick in the Yankee infield. At the recent Dayton baseball meeting, Joe McCarthy, the Yankee manager, spoke well of Richardson. But McCarthy is prone to depend on players who have been proved with other teams.

Richardson seems likely to get his chance in the spring camp. If he can show enough there, he will be carried along as a regular. He has the ability.

The Yankees will be in Atlanta for three days early in April.

VIRGINIANS SET FOR RING MEET

UNIVERSITY, Va., Feb. 27.—(AP) The boxing ring in the Memorial gymnasium is being made ready for the first of the two big fistic tournaments to be staged in it within the next four weeks. On Friday and Saturday it will be the scene of the tenth annual championship tourney of the Southern conference.

Four weeks later, on March 27 and 28, college and university boxers from all over the nation will come here to compete in the tournament of the National Collegiate Athletic Association which will be in the nature of an Olympic team tryout for intercollegiate scrappers.

Virginia's boxers will be defending their championship for the fifth season in succession in the tournament this week-end, with Duke and Maryland, the two teams that were tied in the runner-up place last February, rated as the favored contenders to topple the Cavaliers from their fistic throne.

BULLDOG SQUAD IN 'EXPERIMENT'

By Felton Gordon.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 26.—Coach Mehre officially declared the Georgia Bulldog grid squad under a state of experiment today.

Roy Gatchell, Atlanta tackle running at left guard; Claude Spearman, guard, now at center, are the players figuring currently in the plans.

"What I am working for is the best line possible," he said. "These changes may be temporary, depending on the performance of the individuals in question at these positions."

Otis Maffett, left end, is out with a sprained back received while blocking in Tuesday's scrimmage. Wallace Miller, Macon quarterback, is out with a bad ankle. Roddenberry, another signal caller from Macon, is detained with flu.

A scrimmage is planned Thursday afternoon, and then a "game" will be played Saturday. The summer weather is to Coach Mehre's liking. He expects to accomplish plenty if it stays clear the remaining two and one-half weeks of practice.

Monroe Aggies also will be represented, giving the northern half of the state five well-balanced teams, and an even chance to return the title, won by Tech High last year.

Other entrants in the tourney include Lanier High, of Macon, the host team, Savannah High and Benedictine College, of Savannah; Richmond Academy, of Augusta, and Columbus Industrial and Columbus High, of Columbus, Ga.

Boys' High, a runner-up last year, will open the tournament at 1:30 o'clock against Savannah High. Columbus Industrial and Lanier High follow at 2:30 o'clock. Commercial and Richmond Academy play at 3:30 o'clock and Columbus High and Monroe Aggies close the afternoon program at 4:30 o'clock.

NIGHT PROGRAM.

G. M. A. and the winner of the Savannah-Boys' High game will open the night program at 7:30 o'clock, followed by Benedictine and the winner of the Columbus-Lanier game at 8:30 o'clock and Tech High and the winner of the Commercial-Richmond game at 9:30 o'clock.

The semi-finals will be played at 8:15 and 9:15 o'clock Friday night and the finals on Saturday night.

Cliff McGaughey, assistant coach at Commercial High, and Lieutenant Dwyer, of Lanier High, will be the officials.

The tournament is being sponsored by the Macon Junior Chamber of Commerce in co-operation with Lanier High and Macon's many civic organizations.

Columbus High, with a veteran team from last year and a record of only one defeat this season, has been established as the tourney favorites. The winner of the Lanier-Columbus Industrial game will be rated the other favorite.

LITTLE TO CHOOSE.

As for the other teams there appears little to choose. Commercial High won the North Georgia Interscholastic conference title and tied Boys' High for city honors, but could finish no better than fourth in the Big Eight race.

Monroe Aggies won the Big Eight championship with nine victories and one defeat, but will lose several players during tournament play.

Tech High, the 1935 winner with a new inexperienced team, will rank well down the list as will G. M. A. and Boys' high, though either team is likely to get 'hot" and run a dark horse's race.

Each team will be allowed 10 players in the tournament.

Boys' High and Commercial's teams left the city late Wednesday with Tech High and G. M. A. leaving early this morning.

G. M. A.'s squad will include Captain Rowlett, Wood, Burdick, Suttles, Bosch, Wright, Lacey, Lindsey, Sam Burbage Jr., and Arthur, in addition to Coach Sam Burbage.

Tech High will take Enloe, Manning, Childrey, Simpson, Williams, Pitner, Terrell, McDaniels, Plaster and Thibadeau, and with Coaches Gabe Tolbert and M. A. Olson.

Down the Alleys

Bill Hargrove, of the Gem team, led the bowling for the Gulf Refining Company Duck Pin league Wednesday afternoon with a series of 360 as his team won a couple of games from the Oil team in the league competition. Games of 120, 93 and 147 were instrumental in building up the high series of this splendid bowler.

Lawrence topped the No-Nox team with 342 to be runner-up for the league. Smith was high for Aviation with 315; McBride led Lube with 339; Collier led Furnace with 314; Deck topped the Pride team with 339; Dameron was high for Spray with 328; Shropshire was second high for the No-Nox team with 311; Reagin had 310 and Harmon 308 for the Gem team; Johnnie Carter led the bowling of the Oil team with 305.

Competition in the league has been better than in any previous year and the enthusiasm and friendly rivalry passes all previous seasons for the Gulf bowlers.

Thirty-four bowlers are signed for the handicap duck pin sweepstakes that will be bowled this coming Saturday night at 8 o'clock, with no entry fee other than the cost of the five games that will be rolled being charged.

Nineteen of the entries are men who will compete for the $25 suit of clothes that will be given to the winner. They include Bill McAdams, Randy Gann, Jimmy Warrington, J. B. Cash, Ed Glading, P. S. Denison, A. L. Stokes, Hobert Crowe, George French, Joe Chambliss, Joe Dyer, Luther Tiedeman, Walter Lawson, H. W. James, C. R. Robinson, T. G. Allen, Emile Stein, Clyde Gibbons and Tommy Clonts.

Included among the group of ladies who will bowl for the pair of bowling shoes that goes to the winner are Sarah Karner, Dot Morris, Bebe Bangert, Tommy Thomas, Mrs. Overton, Wilma Yeager, Evelyn Davis, Emily Busha, Margaret Erb, Mrs. Tiedeman, Mrs. Blick, Mrs. J. C. Townley, Mrs. Carl Tidwell, Mrs. T. G. Allen and Mrs. J. Warrington.

The 12-team Coca-Cola Club Duck Pin league is scheduled at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon with the teams closely bunched for the lead and several of the bowlers trying for the title of "high average bowler" for the league.

The WPA men and ladies, the Junior Chamber of Commerce men and ladies, the Bell System and the Power Club men and ladies will occupy most of the alleys in league pin spilling this evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Mackey Klein Is Host To Progressive Team

Officers and Supporters Pay Tribute to Shep Lauter and Club Champions.

By Jack Troy.

Members of the Jewish Progressive Club team, city and southern champions in basketball, sat themselves down before another festive board last night at the Henry Grady.

It is, as Coach Shep Lauter said night before last: "There is nothing too good for my boys." And more, much more, is in store.

Mackey Klein, one of the most enthusiastic supporters the Progressives had this past season, was host last night. Klein was a real booster of the club all through the season. And last night, by way of word and food, he showed the team in even more convincing fashion that his was the attitude of the J. P. C.—one for all and all for one.

KLEIN.

There was fine food and fancy speeches. And, withal, great fellowship. You may put it down for future reference that when members of the J. P. C. do anything, they will do it well.

Among the club dignitaries present were Sydney Saul, president; Joe Smolen, vice president; Max Mendel, the greatest after-dinner speaker of them all, secretary; Joe Zimmerman, governor of athletics; Irving Galany, governor of entertainment; Joe Lazear, a toastmaster from away back; Shep Lauter, the greatest coach the club ever had; Mendel Zaban, a great supporter; Herman Gross, a "101" per cent supporter; Charlie Shinas, governor of publicity; Meyer Balser, a manager than whom there is no greater; Buster Herman, assistant coach; Ben Sherman, sports editor of the Progress, and S. Isacoff, another dyed-in-the-wool supporter.

There were speeches in praise of the club team by all the above mentioned officers and supporters. There were glowing tributes that will long be remembered.

JOE LAZEAR.

Joe Lazear was toastmaster for the second straight night. And there is no gainsaying that his ability earns him the post any time the club can persuade him to serve.

There was considerable unrest through most of the lavish dinner because of the fact that Hy Katz did not appear. But before the evening was over Omaha appeared in person. And, much to the delight of the assembled players and dignitaries, he wore a ring studded with rubies.

The dinner was complete as Omaha made his dramatic entrance. And, but for the presence of Mr. Isacoff, I do not know what I would have done. There was never a dull moment—before and after—the entrance of Omaha, the greatest hardwood race hoss of them all.

Everybody was heard from before the most enthusiastic festival ended. And not among the least of them by any means were the boys who brought the club 19 straight wins and a couple of titles.

THE PLAYERS.

They included Morris Katz, Happy Ginsberg, Steve Browdy, Gabby Greenberg, Pony Minsk, Hy Katz, Izzy Friedland, Elliott Rubin, Emanuel Kulbersh and Harry Spielberger.

A future event to which the club is looking with great anticipation is the Victory Ball Sunday week at the club. The annual banquet will follow.

After that, the boys will really know that the splendid efforts they put forth were not in vain.

SAILOR JACK MEETS ALMOND

Sailor Jack, a newcomer, will meet Sun Almond, popular Atlanta boy, in a feature wrestling match Friday night at the new arena, Piedmont and Ellis.

In the semi-windup John Mauldin and Wild Bill Collins will battle in a winner-take-all event.

The opener will include Pat O'Brien and Boy Stinart.

In addition there will be a battle royal.

However, the wrestling attractions will stand on their own merits. A battle royal is merely an added attraction.

It is a Roby and Bettis show and begins at 8:30.

EIGHTH DISTRICT.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Staging a sensational shooting spree to come from behind in the fourth period, the Red Terrors of Glynn Academy, Brunswick High school, retained the eighth district basketball championship by defeating the previously unconquered Ocilla Terrapins, 38 to 31, on the Wacona court, near here, last night.

Brunswick trailed the Terrapins throughout the first three periods of play, holding a decided advantage until the last quarter, during which the Ocilla sharpshooters were held to two lone foul shots. A shooting spree in the fourth gave Brunswick 17 points and a commanding lead.

The defeat for the Terrapins was the first of the season, having won 20 straights, while Brunswick's record, intact, contains a string of 22 straights, including three pre-schedule games.

In the preliminary Pearson defeated Rockingham for third place in the district tournament.

Bob Johnson Signs Athletics' Contract

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Connie Mack had one less worry today—his recalcitrant outfielder, Bob Johnson.

Relatives of the Tacoma slugger revealed Johnson left late Tuesday night for Florida to join the Philadelphia Athletics in training camp after signing the third contract offered him. Terms were not disclosed.

Market Outlook

By MAX BUCKINGHAM.

(Copyright, 1936, by United Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(UP)—The stock market pulled into a rut today while traders waited for some news development.

The close was irregular. Trading barely exceeded 2,000,000 shares. Continued irregularity seemed likely.

There were a few developments of significance including:

1—The Japanese political crisis, reflected in silk futures, Japanese bonds and the Japanese yen, all of which broke sharply. Silk futures trading was the second largest since the market opened in 1928.

2—Action of the stock exchange in starting an investigation of the wild trading in utility shares on the day of the TVA decision.

3—Marked improvement in wheat prices, reflecting belief that western crops have been badly damaged by the bitter cold weather and dust storms.

The Japanese situation had little significance on stocks, although it provided a Wall Street talking point particularly as Japanese bonds broke more than three points. Instead, traders were more interested in watching for the development of a technical market trend.

This technical development likely will be delayed until something is known of the government's tax program. Inflation talk has quieted down, bringing a cessation of the hedging against that development.

Business developments continued fairly favorable. Steel production, according to Iron Age, rose 1 1-2 points to 55 per cent of capacity. Motor car production this week will show another decline but Iron Age saw chances for improvement in March.

Electric power production showed 12.4 per cent gain over the corresponding 1935 week. Crude oil prices were increased in California, a development expected for some time, while the American Petroleum Institute report showed that demands for fuel oil increased during the week.

The Offering Prospectus, which must be furnished to each purchaser, should be read prior to any purchase of these Bonds.

THE COMPANY The New York Edison Company, Inc., all but two shares of the stock of which is owned by Consolidated Gas Company of New York, was incorporated in New York on August 1, 1935, as a consolidation of The New York Edison Company and The United Electric Light and Power Company. The Company is engaged in the distribution and sale of direct and alternating current electricity to consumers in Manhattan and that portion of The Bronx lying west of the Bronx River, New York City. The Company also supplies electricity to certain affiliated electric companies of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York System for distribution outside of the territory served by the Company. The energy is in part purchased from others and in part generated at the Company's own plants. The Company's properties include generating stations, substations and a transmission and distribution system. Practically all of the underground transmission and distribution lines are in conduits rented from an affiliated company.

EARNINGS Reference is made to the Offering Prospectus for information as to earnings for 1933, 1934 and 1935. The statements therein, subject to the related notes and other important relevant information, indicate that in each of these years the gross income of the Company together with that of its two predecessors available for fixed charges, after deducting a provision for Federal income taxes and for "retirement expense", was more than three times such fixed charges in each of such years.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE The proceeds from the sale of $55,000,000 Series D Bonds to the Underwriters will aggregate $53,900,000 (exclusive of accrued interest) and will be applied to the redemption on April 1, 1936, at 104% and accrued interest, of $30,000,000 Series B Bonds and $25,000,000 Series C Bonds issued under the First Lien and Refunding Mortgage. The balance required for such redemption plus the Company's estimated expenses in connection with the sale of the Series D Bonds, together aggregating approximately $3,725,000 (exclusive of accrued interest on the Bonds redeemed), will be obtained from the Company's current cash.

SERIES D BONDS The Series D Bonds will be issued under the First Lien and Refunding Mortgage of The New York Edison Company, assumed by the present Company, as amended and supplemented, particularly by a Supplemental Indenture to be dated February 27, 1936, and, in the opinion of counsel for the Company, will be secured by a lien on all the distributing systems and franchises and substantially all the real estate, including generating stations, now owned by the Company, subject to the liens, so far as they attach, of mortgages securing outstanding indebtedness of $39,344,511.74. The Mortgage is also, in the opinion of counsel, secured by pledge of $55,000,000 First Mortgage Bonds of The United Electric Light and Power Company, one of the Company's predecessors, and the latter bonds are secured by a first lien on the distributing system and franchises and substantially all the real estate, including generating stations, formerly owned by the United Company as the same existed immediately prior to August 1, 1935.

Bonds of Series A, B and C are now secured by the lien of the Mortgage. The Mortgage permits the issuance of additional bonds which also would be secured equally thereby.

Upon retirement of the bonds of Series A, B and C, or due provision therefor, the foregoing Supplemental Indenture will amend the "after acquired property" clause of the Mortgage so that its lien on property acquired by the Company after February 29, 1936, will extend only to electrical transmission or distribution lines or systems (but not generating stations) located in the territory now served by the Company's distribution system. The Series A Bonds will be redeemable, commencing on October 1, 1936, at 105%.

The Mortgage permits the Company, in certain instances, without any notice to bondholders to obtain the release of property covered thereby, including, upon retirement of the outstanding issues of The New York Gas and Electric Light, Heat and Power Company, the above $55,000,000 of United Company bonds.

The Mortgage contains provisions permitting its modification, in any particular, with the approval of the holders of 75% in amount of outstanding bonds, subject to certain limitations.

UNDERWRITING Subject to certain terms and conditions, the Underwriters named in the Offering Prospectus have severally agreed to purchase these Bonds from the Company at 98%, or a total of $53,900,000, plus accrued interest. Such Bonds are to be offered to the public at 100%, or a total of $55,000,000, plus accrued interest. The underwriting discounts are 2%, or a total of $1,100,000.

Price 100% and Accrued Interest

The Underwriters have agreed to purchase these Bonds when, as and if issued, and subject to the approval of Messrs. Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed, counsel for the Underwriters, and to certain further conditions. The validity of the Company's titles and franchises will be passed upon by Messrs. Shearman & Sterling and by Messrs. Beardsley & Taylor, respectively, and proceedings before the Public Service Commission and certain items in the Registration Statement have been passed upon by Messrs. Whitman, Ransom, Coulson and Goetz, all counsel for the Company. It is expected that delivery of Bonds in temporary form, exchangeable for definitive Bonds when prepared, will be made at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. on or about March 5, 1936, against payment therefor in New York funds.

Further information, particularly financial statements, is contained in the Registration Statement on file with the Commission, and in the Offering Prospectus which must be furnished to each purchaser and is obtainable only from such of the undersigned as are registered dealers in securities in this State.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—A continued adjustment of values threaded its way through the stock market today with prices for the most part irregularly lower by a minor margin.

The volume of trading at 2,023,055 shares was slightly under the previous day, and the number of issues traded also was restricted. During the final hour, after the mold of the market had been formed, buying and selling slowed to a walk.

National Lead advanced 27 1-2 to 248 1-2 after directors submitted to stockholders a proposal to split the high-priced common stock 10 for 1.

The steels were mostly lower, both United States Steel and Bethlehem being off fractions to over a point, but Midland Steel products was traded actively at a 4-point advance on the day.

Metal shares appeared mixed on one outstanding piece of bullish news, a mark-up of $1 a ton in the price of lead.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined .4 of a point to 60.5, reflecting a slowing down after three days of greater reductions.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—The general fundamental conditions of cheap money and good business, which is expected to continue, are unchanged and should assert themselves before long.

FENNER & BEANE—Although we believe the market now in a buying range we would await more definite indications of resistance before materially increasing commitments.

BEER & CO.—We look for the market to regain its equilibrium at approximately current levels.

DOBBS & CO.—Wednesday's turnover was approximately that of Tuesday, may be slightly heavier, but the action of the market throughout was quiet and orderly and did not give much indication of trend.

COTTON OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—With agreement on farm legislation and cessation of pool selling, we would expect a moderate technical recovery.

FENNER & BEANE—We are inclined to view that the outlook at Washington has begun to clear and that purchases on the dips are advisable.

BEER & CO.—The market will likely continue unsettled and irregular pending a clarification of the legislative situation at Washington.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—Our cotton market was a little steadier following the liquidation of Tuesday, which evidently left an improved technical position behind it, as offerings Wednesday were light and prices responded to comparatively moderate buying orders.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—We would expect wheat prices to continue upward with increasing crop scare rumors.

FENNER & BEANE—We look for more active and stronger markets.

BEER & CO.—We continue over the opinion May wheat will sell higher.

DOBBS & CO.—With apprehension of possible damage to the new crop together with decreasing stocks and little country movement we feel the market will continue to maintain its strong position.

OILS AND INDUSTRIALS LEAD CURB RECESSION

Utilities Stand Ground as Market Prices Decline Generally.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Curb market prices, generally, pointed lower today, although selling pressure was not pronounced in the majority of issues.

It was noted that the utilities, recently depressed, gave less ground than other categories. A number of the mines, oils and industrial specialties backed up fractions to a point or more.

Transfers approximated only 445,000 shares compared with yesterday's moderate volume of 479,000.

Among the losers were Gulf Oil at 81 1-2, Aluminum of America at 118, American Cyanamid "B" at 36 1-2, American Gas at 39 1-8, Creole Petroleum at 30 5-8, Bunker Hill at 69 1-2, Newmont Mining at 86 7-8, Parker Rust-Proof at 76 and Pioneer Gold at 10 1-4.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The eruption of Tokyo's political situation brought liquidation into Japanese government and corporate bonds today which swept them down for losses of 1 to 3 or more points.

The most severe drop was that suffered by Yokoahama 6s of 1961 which closed down 3 3-8 at 84 1-4. Japanese 6 1-2s were down 3 at 95. Recessions of 1 to 2 points occurred in the Japanese 5 1-2s at 84 1-4, the Tokyo 5s at 75 and the Tokyo 6s at 82.

Steadiness in the dollar and the reported abatement of inflationary talk in financial quarters were among explanations given in investment circles for the advances of 1-32nd to 4-32nds in the United States government group. The Treasury 4s were the only losers, down 2-32nds at 112 10-32nds.

Treasury 2 7-8s, regarded in banking circles as the bellwether of the government group, was up 3-32nds at 101. Treasury 3s of 1951 had a gain of 2-32nds to 103 19-32nds on heavy turnover. In the government-guarteed division Federal Farm Mortgage 3s of 1947 rose 8-32nds.

Lehigh Valley 5s dropped 5 to 63 1-2 and the Consolidated 4 1-2s were off 3 1-2 at 56 7-8. Other rails down fractions to a point or more were Atlantic Coast Line 4 1-2s at 86 and Nickel Plate 4 1-2s at 83.

American Rolling Mill 4 1-4s gave up 1 1-2, closing at 127, or 7 5-8 under its 1936 high. The issue has been heavily traded recently owing to its conversion privilege.

The Associated Press average of 20 rails declined .5 to 93, while the average of 10 utilities went ahead .1 to 101.4. The foreign average of 10 issues slid back .2 to 71.1, under the weight of offerings of Japanese loans. Other foreigns were mostly steady.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN No. 52

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

R-52
© 1936, Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc.—Tm. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
REX MAXON

Tarzan's amusement at Nkima's antics changed to deadly seriousness when the little monkey warned that an army of Leopard Men was on the warpath near by. He himself might easily escape, but he had the responsibility of the two white men and Orando.

Walking quickly back to Old Timer and The Kid, he announced gravely: "Many Leopard Men are coming this way. We cannot fight them all. I must hide you in the trees." Old Timer regarded him with awe and admiration. "You must be Tarzan," he said.

"I am," the ape-man answered shortly; "but this is no time for introductions." Without another word he seized Old Timer and bore him high into a tree. Then, with The Kid, he repeated that spectacular climb. "Remain quietly here," he ordered. . . .

. . . By now the fugitive from Tarzan's raid arrived breathless in the ranks of the great war party of Leopard Men and reported his harrowing encounter. "We are many," the leader cried; "we will surround this white giant. He cannot escape our deadly talons."

So Says Mr. McCollum—

It's Constitutional, I'll Admit That—

IF YOU want to go on worrying about your financial problems, getting old before your time—there's no law against it—

BUT—You'd feel a whole lot better, and you'd live a lot longer—if you had no money worries. Why not clear up all those scattered obligations and arrange to have just one place to pay?

I'LL let you have the cash you need—$60 to $1,000—at interest less than 1 per cent per month per annum—and you can take from ONE TO TWO YEARS to repay. See me at the Seaboard Loan and Savings Co., 12 Pryor St., S. W.

FARM GIRL IS FREED IN SLAYING OF FATHER

Jury Holds Defendant "Not Guilty by Reason of Insanity."

ANADARKO, Okla., Feb. 26.—(AP) Emma Willis, 18-year-old farm girl, was acquitted today of murder charges in the shotgun slaying of her sharecropper father.

The jury held the girl "not guilty by reason of insanity."

Attorneys said the verdict means Miss Willis must be committed to an institution for treatment.

A sordid story of beatings and abuse was related during her trial by Miss Willis, defendant, her mother, Mrs. Zona Willis, and 20 other defense witnesses.

"He beat me just like he did the stock," the brunet defendant testified. She also told of alleged improper proposals made by her father, Iddis H. Willis, 51, slain in his farm home near Eakly last December 21.

"He told me that if I'd do what he wanted," she testified, "it would be easier on me and the family, and he'd see to it that I got to go places and wouldn't have to work in the fields."

AVERAGE PRICE.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, middling 25 points up at 11.80.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The cotton market continued its day-by-day trickle downward today, closing net unchanged to 11 points under Monday's close.

March, still the favorite selling target, broke another 11 points on additional liquidation, closed at 11.02 cents a pound, the lowest sale of the day in that option. Other months shot upwards in the final hour of trading and finished at the highs without exception. The buying was attributed to belated efforts of shorts to cover.

The day's bearish influences included the more favorable weather over the cotton belt, the political upheaval in Japan, and the break in the New York market yesterday which was the Mardi Gras holiday here, with no market.

On the other side of the ledger, there was a better foreign market and the report that the government pool would discontinue spot sales.

The pool sold over 131,000 bales of cotton in the past two weeks. Goods markets were moderately active.

Slight speculative interest was evinced in the new crop months and from the start they moved upwards and closed on the highs. Initial prices were the lows for the day. Speculative factors have been hesitant to enter the market on any large scale recently owing to the uncertainty of what the cotton farmer may expect in aid from the government for acreage limitation. The elimination of what the trade considered unfavorable features in pending farm legislation helped to dispel some of the uncertainty.

Port receipts 3,624; week 45,929; this year 6,239,862; last year 3,205,441. Port stocks 2,451,953; last year 2,500,550. Stock on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 86,952; last year 73,243. Spot sales at southern markets today totaled 10,192 bales; last year 6,846 bales on the same day.

COTTON PRICES GAIN ON N. Y. EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The cotton market rallied today on an improved technical position, closing steady with March net unchanged and later deliveries 11 to 21 points net higher.

A moderate demand for March was supplied by selling through brokers supposed to be operating for pool account within a comparatively narrow range, but offerings of later deliveries were light and prices responded to small buying orders. New crop positions led the advance and showed the maximum gains at the close.

Exports today 9,675, making a total of 4,504,228 for the season. Port receipts 3,624. United States port stocks 2,450,380.

NEW U. S. DESTROYER LAUNCHED IN NORFOLK

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 26.—(AP)—The U. S. S. Tucker, a destroyer, was launched this afternoon at the Norfolk navy yard. The vessel is being built at a cost of $4,000,000 and is about 80 per cent completed.

The new ship, first of seven destroyers to be launched at the Norfolk navy yard, slid down the building ways shortly after noon as a crowd numbering thousands cheered her plunge into the Elizabeth river.

The ship was christened by Mrs. Leonard P. Thorner, of Marblehead, Mass., who broke a bottle of champagne across the bow as the Tucker started its descent along the ways. The sponsor is a member of the Tucker family of Massachusetts, from which sprang the late Commodore Samuel Tucker, U. S. N., Revolutionary figure, for whom the ship is named.

DAILY SHORT STORY

KICKBACK

Dr. Shorey Demonstrated the Fact That You Can't Play the Part Simply by Wearing the Costume.

BY CYRIL J. CONRAD.

The man who was half reclining in the chair by the center table was evidently asleep. He did not move as one of the side windows was gently raised and then lowered behind the dark figure that had passed through it.

The sleeper was revealed in the glow of the table lamp and the intruder moved stealthily toward him and then around until he was facing the chair.

He was a flashily dressed young man with hard eyes and grim lips, and his right hand gripped the butt of a blue automatic pistol.

The man in the chair sighed deeply and his lids fluttered. The scowling face of the marauder was bent close to his as he prodded gently with the gun.

"Easy, now," he cautioned softly as the eyes before him opened wide. "I'm in a jam with the cops and if you raise a squawk you'll get it. They have the whole block covered, so I won't have any more to lose by knocking you off. Be good——"

"The man in the chair sighed."

His voice trailed off into silence as a light of amazed recognition crept into his eyes. He moved back a step and his lips twisted in a sardonic grin.

"Dr. Shorey, huh? Well, if this ain't the luck! Remember me, don't you? You bet you do."

The calm eyes of Dr. Preston Shorey did not waver before the threat of the gun as he nodded slowly in reply.

"Quite well, Randolph. It's about seven years, isn't it?"

"Three of them in Sing Sing," Dan Randolph snarled, "because you sent me there with your crooked testimony——"

"Scientific testimony. I didn't even know you. There was nothing personal in it."

Dr. Shorey's gaze swept over him coolly and speculatively.

"You also said something about being in a jam with the police. You probably didn't expect that, either."

"It won't stop me——"

"Murder means the chair, and you can't love death. Of course if that's what they are after you for now——"

"No, it ain't. I just come back from four years in Chi and was prowlin' a joint because I needed quick dough. Somebody musta got wise and called the cops. The streets and alleys are full of them. Then I saw the light in your window and crossed lots. That's all."

"Four years in Chicago?" Dr. Shorey repeated almost abstractedly. "That's probably why we haven't met before. A great many things can happen in four years."

"I didn't forget what I owe you."

"You would do better to remember what you owe yourself. The police will search every house in the block. That's routine. You can't beat this game, Randolph."

"The hell I can't! You're the answer. You know everything around here like a book. You know some way I can get out. Think fast, Shorey. You get me out or we both go!"

"I get you out? If it meant my life I wish I could do it, because life really has some value to me, but I'm utterly helpless——"

"You were not too helpless to send me up. Start thinking, doc. We can't just walk out of here. Two of us would be a dead giveaway, but there's an answer and you better find it."

There was a grimly humorous light in Dr. Shorey's eyes as he answered.

"No," he said, "you can be sure we can't just walk out together. The police would merely find that amusing, I think. But—it does suggest a possibility."

Randolph's face lighted eagerly, but his eyes remained suspicious and glowering. "Spill it. It's a break for you. But if you try to pull anything, so help me, Shorey, I'll plug you before they get me."

"Am I to take your word for it that you won't use that gun?"

"Take it or leave it, it's all you get. Do you think I'll throw the rod away for you? If you're crazy about living you better shake a leg. That gang's working fast. I can't stay here all night. You give me the out and I'll mark you off—till later. Come on, what is it?"

"I was thinking of my bag and my hat, but especially of my Inverness cape. Very few men wear them any more. We are about the same build. Obvious, isn't it?"

Randolph's eyes lighted and he exclaimed, "Good shot. And I only have to get out of this block. One thing sure, they won't be lookin' for a cape. What's it like? And what kind did you say?"

Dr. Shorey's smile was a little quizzical as he indicated the hat and the Inverness cape that swung from a clothes tree in a corner.

"You've probably seen picture of them. They aren't at all popular any more, but I wear one constantly. It is sure to be an effective disguise in this neighborhood, and anyone seen wearing it will undoubtedly be mistaken for me. The bag is in the glass case. Here is the key."

"This is the berries. Couldn't be better—except I wish I had a silencer on this rod. I wouldn't leave you here—alive. But I want to crash that gang and make them feel sick. I can square you any old time."

He strode to an arch and pulled down two portiere cords.

"I'm not leaving you free to yell, you know. Stay put now and take it. Maybe you can break loose—sometime."

He bound Dr. Shorey quite capably to the chair and then gagged him. Picking up the bag again, he leered down at his victim.

"So long. I'll be seeing you, you bet. I only wish it was safe to bash you one for luck."

There was a new light in Dr. Shorey's eyes as he muttered unintelligibly into his gag, "You can't beat this game, Dan."

It was Officer Terence O'Hara who made the arrest, but there was no elation in his report of it.

"How can I be anything but disappointed? There he was, comin' down his steps as big as life, and me happy and rushin' up to congratulate the whitest man that ever drawed breath—him that hadn't walked a step for three years."

STOCKHOLDERS VOTE BETHLEHEM MERGER

Creation of New 5 Per Cent Stock Approved by Steel Officials.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Stockholders of the giant Bethlehem Steel Corporation, second largest concern in the industry, today approved a merger of the New Jersey parent company and four subsidiaries into a new Delaware corporation which will bear the same name.

A small group of dissenting stockholders held up the proceedings more than 2 hours but in the end mustered less than 1 per cent of the stock voted. Officials announced that 692,927 shares of the 933,887 preferred stock and 2,403,908 shares of the 3,194,314 common shares were voted in favor of the proposal. Some treasury and other shares were not voted.

By the same vote, the owners of the corporation gave their assent to creation of a new 5 per cent preferred stock, $20 par value, which will be used, together with $1 per share in cash, to liquidate arrears of $21 a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock.

Stock of the new corporation created by the merger will be exchanged share for share with presently outstanding common stock.

Eugene G. Grace, president of the corporation, who presided, told stockholders the principal gains to be achieved through the merger were a considerable savings in taxes, economy in cost of management, and a more workable and simplified corporate structure.

The subsidiaries merged into the new Delaware corporation are: Bethlehem Steel Corporation of New Jersey, the old parent company, Bethlehem Steel Corporation (Delaware), Kalman Steel Corporation, Bethlehem Mines Corporation and Union Iron Works Company.

HARPER IS RE-ELECTED BY LABOR FEDERATION

Tiller, Sanders, Scott and Johnson Are Named Vice Presidents.

J. A. Harper, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, was re-elected for another term in that office last night at the annual election of officers of the central labor body.

The four vice presidents who will serve during the next 12 months are J. Sid Tiller, Eugene Sanders, John F. Scott and Dewey F. Johnson.

George F Haney was re-elected for another term as recording and corresponding secretary, and William Van Houten for another year as financial secretary.

Mr. Harper was designated as the delegate from the Atlanta Federation of Trades to the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, and J. B. Jablonsky was named as alternate.

Delegates from the central body to the annual convention of the Georgia Federation of Labor in Columbus this spring will be J. A. Harper, George F. Haney, William Van Houten, Charles B. Gramling, Miss Allie B. Mann, A. Steve Nance, Dewey F. Johnson, William Cetti, J. F. Burdett, W. C. Kendrick, J. Sid Tiller and John F. Scott.

The finance and auditing committee to serve during 1936 will include William Strauss, E. O. McClain and F. H. Puckett.

Approving a resolution previously adopted by the carpenters' organization, the central body went on record as urging the Atlanta board of education to abolish fees in the local high schools.

FARM LAND REDUCTION URGED IN TENNESSEE

NASHVILLE, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Permanent withdrawal of 250,000 acres from farming in 15 middle Tennessee counties was recommended today by the State Planning Commission.

The commission proposed that the land be devoted to forests, extensive grazing or recreation. A summary of the commission's findings did not suggest a means of compensating the landowners, although as to certain thin or "glady" land, it said:

"If some adjustments of ownership could be effected which would provide for a combination of grazing and cedar production on the areas which are predominantly glady, it would seem to be about all the change necessary. Such an arrangement could probably be best handled in private ownership."

Millicent Weds Again

MILLICENT ROGERS SALM RAMOS BALCOM.

OIL HEIRESS WEDS BROKER IN VIENNA

Millicent Ramos Married Third Time; To Live Abroad.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The New York Evening Journal said today Millicent Rogers Salm Ramos, daughter of the late Henry Huddleston Rogers, was married to Ronald Balcom, young New York broker, in Vienna yesterday.

The Journal said the couple will spend the remainder of the winter season at San Anton in the Tyrol and then live either in Paris or London.

This is the third marriage for the former Millicent Rogers, heiress to a Standard Oil fortune. Her first husband was County Ludwig Salm-Hoogstraeten, of Vienna, whom she married in 1924. The marriage ended in divorse in 1927.

After a brief romance, she then married Arturo Ramos, of Argentina. They were divorced in Reno last year.

Mrs. Balcom has three sons—Peter, now 11, by her first marriage, and two by her second.

HIGHWAY REGULATION EXPLAINED BY WATKINS

Attorney Outlines National Problems in Speech Before Evening School.

Federal regulation of transportation was defended, explained and described in its future possibilities by Edgar Watkins, Atlanta attorney, in an address last night before students of the University System of Georgia Evening School. The attorney traced the development of regulatory measures on freighting from the code of Hammurabi, enacted more than 40 centuries ago, through the English common law and the motor carrier act of 1935.

The work and nature of the Interstate Commerce Commission was described by the speaker, who pointed out that its regulatory powers and certain legislative restrictions are justified because of two main points.

The speaker, who is a former member of the commission, declared that the term "interstate" is a misnomer, with the commission empowered to consider conditions within the state when one or more other states are affected. The commission actually is a body ruling on questions among states rather than interstate problems only, he declared. The term "interstate" is not found in any constitutional amendment, he pointed out.

Federal transportation and commerce statutes have had the effect of limiting state's rights more and more, the students were told.

"In our federal government, sharing its sovereignty with state government, there is a division of power between the federal and the state governments," the lawyer said. "It is not always easy to determine whether a particular power shall be exercised by one or the other government."

In speaking of the problems of regulations in private business, the speaker declared them to be highly complex and subject to a variance of opinions.

"We have regulation," he said, "we probably shall continue to have it, and the issue now is largely whether that regulation shall continue, or whether the government itself shall consume proprietary rights. All we can do, as a practical matter, is to meet situations as they arise, and as far as possible protect the public against unjust and unduly preferential charges."

LIGHT RAINS TO BRING LOWER TEMPERATURES

Light, occasional rains today, with the sun hiding behind overcast skies after a week of renewing old friendships in Atlanta, is the best the weather forecasters can offer.

Temperatures today will remain as they have been for the last two or three days, but tonight there will be a turn to colder weather, as it is officially termed by Chief Forecaster George W. Mindling.

Yesterday, the mercury started at 52 degrees and soared to 69 during the afternoon with a brilliant sun hard at work. Today the start will be near 50 degrees with a similar rise during the day. The colder weather is scheduled after nightfall.

LOCAL WELFARE GROUP HOLDS MEETING TODAY

Judge John D. Humphries and Dr. W. W. Young will address the Family Welfare Society at its annual meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the society's headquarters, 11 Pryor street, S. W.

Dr. Young will speak on the topic, "Mental Hygiene and Family Life." Judge Humphries will discuss the use of the Family Welfare Society by courts. The organization serves person facing serious personal and family problems, who need someone with whom to counsel.

TOLERATION SCHOONER ARRIVES AT KEY WEST

KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP)—The weather-beaten schooner Fleetwood slipped into port here today, her eight pilgrims to a Virgin Island Utopia red-eyed and weary after battling blustering winds that left sails in tatters.

The ironically named schooner, in difficulty three times since Leader Maurice Allard and his party of liberals first left Tampa, encountered the gale at sea on a 152-mile voyage from Boca Grande to Key West.

Members of the party said the expedition likely would be delayed here several days in patching the damaged sails.

GOLD MINE ARTICLE

Description of Battle Branch Project Is Published.

A description of the Battle Branch gold mine at Auraria is now available, Richard W. Smith, state geologist, announced today. The description is an article published in the current issue of Economic Geology and is written by C. F. Park Jr., and Roy A. Wilson, who investigated this mine in a study of Georgia's gold resources for the United States Geological Survey.

Mr. Smith stated the Battle Branch mine located in the Dahlonega area of Lumpkin county is a splendid example of profitable hard rock underground mining in Georgia. "Its conservative and patient development has brought a profit to its owners while many other mines were being worked at a loss or without adequate returns," the state geologist said.

Mr. Smith stated that copies of this article can be secured through his office, 425 state capitol, at cost of ten cents.

F. D. R. Promises To Aid Polio-Stricken Girl

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Brown-haired 15-year-old Dorothy Porter, for nine years a sufferer of infantile paralysis, counted a host of new friends tonight.

Messages of sympathy and cheer poured into the home of the plucky little girl who waited five hours Saturday night on the steps of Harvard College's Fly Club to see President Roosevelt.

There she hopes to find a cure.

Life has been happy for Dorothy since that night.

Many of the friends her courage brought her then have called to visit. Among them were two of the President's sons, John and Franklin Jr. Others sent gifts.

Police Chief Timothy F. Leahy has obtained a complete report of Dorothy's case and will forward it to the President.
